ALL SEE VICTORY IN RATE SOLUTION

Both President Roosevelt and So-Called Railroad Pool in Senate Declare Agreement Is Triumph.

DOUBT ON COURT REVIEW.

Test Case by Complainant Shipper May Be Necessary to Determine Real Extent of Reform.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—[Special.]—Actual voting on amendments to the railroad bill was begun in the senate today. Pipe lines for oil were declared to be common carriers and put under jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission on the same basis as railroads.

The Allison amendment containing the basis of compromise between the radicals and conservatives on the republican side was not offered, owing to the absence of the senator from Iowa, who was still confined to his hotel by illness. He expects to be in the senate Monday and will offer the court review compromise then. It will be reached only in its order and will take several days probably to clear up all the amendments, although the republicans now will be able to work harmoniously toward a common end.

The Allison compromise, which originally was prepared by Senator Fulton, will be fully indorsed and accepted by President Roosevelt. I have authority for making this statement which cannot be gainsaid. This means, of course, it will be passed by nearly the solid republican vote and it will be accepted by the house and will be in the bill when it goes to the president.

Roosevelt Calls It Triumph.

As a matter of course there is a vast amount of difference of opinion as to the scope of the court review compromise which Senator Allison will offer next Monday and which I telegraphed to THE TRIBUNE last night. President Roosevelt considers that the amendment in question is a victory for the administration. He believes it merely goes to the extent of stating in so many words that Circuit courts have jurisdiction in cases against the interstate commerce commission, whether brought by carriers or by shippers. This jurisdiction, the president thinks, clearly was conveyed by the Hepburn bill itself and by ordinary guarantees of constitution.

The Allison amendment does not limit jurisdiction of the court, to be sure, but on the other hand, it does not direct the court to inquire into any specific things. For that reason the president has accepted the Allison amendment under the belief it is as limited to form of court review as could be given constitutionally and that in effect it is nothing more nor less than a soft cushion for the railroad senators and friends of broad court review to fall on.

The president's friends, too, insist he has won a sweeping victory and that he has brought the railroad senators to terms. According to the administration view, therefore, Aldrich, Knox, Keane, and Crane were beaten, and were only seeking excuse to get into line, which they found by accepting the Allison amendment which conveys jurisdiction to the Circuit court in so many words, it does nothing more.

Railroad Men Claim Victory.

But there is a totally different story told in the railroad camp. They, too, claim they have won a signal victory, and they are celebrating it tonight. Spooner, Knox, Foraker, and even Mr. Bailey, all of whom are great constitutional lawyers, insist the amendment drafted by Mr. Fulton of Oregon, approved by the president, and about to be introduced by Mr. Allison as the official compromise, is the broadest kind of court review that possibly could be imagined. Railroad senators insist they have won all they have been fighting for, and they smile with considerable openness when told the Allison amendment is claimed to be an administration victory.

According to lawyers, there has been a good deal of misunderstanding as to the real point at issue between the president and the Aldrich combination in the senate. The Hepburn bill as it passed the house did not confer any specific jurisdiction upon any court to hear any appeal.

The constitution of the United States, however, provides that property shall not be taken from a citizen except by due process of law. Under this familiar constitutional guarantee any railroad which felt aggrieved at the action of the commission could appeal to the Circuit court as a matter of equity and assert that the rate fixed by the commission was confiscatory of the property of the railroad. This constitutional right of appeal was not specified in the Hepburn bill because there was no need for it. It is a right which cannot be conferred nor taken away by any action of congress.

What Railroads Wanted.

What the railroads were fighting for was something entirely different. They knew their constitutional appeal could not be taken away from them. What they wanted was to confer upon the Circuit court specific jurisdiction to try the same case which was tried before the commission, to determine whether the evidence properly was digested by the commission and to find out whether the rate fixed was a proper one without regard to whether it was confiscatory or not.

Senator Spooner in his great speech explained that it was necessary to confer jurisdiction upon a court to enable it to go beyond the constitutional guarantee, but that when a court had jurisdiction it acquired full judicial power at the same time and for the same purpose. Senator Foraker called attention to the fact that there was a wide range between a rate which might be absolutely confiscatory and one which was unfair and unreasonable to the railroads.

As to Jurisdiction of Courts.

What the railroad people were after, therefore, was that the court should be able to go a step farther than to decide whether a rate was confiscatory. With a broad review the court would be able to go into the question whether a rate fixed by the commission, even if not absolutely confiscatory, was high enough to afford a fair margin of profit to a railroad, whether it was justifiable in view of competition by other railroads, and whether, in fact, it was absolutely just and reasonable as between carrier and shipper.

There is no doubt the Allison amendment will confer upon circuit courts of the United States in so many words "jurisdiction" over suits brought against the interstate

2 CHICAGO TRAINS IN FATAL WRECK.

MANY DEAD OR INJURED.

Cars Are Smashed to Matchwood; Feared 25 Were Killed or Hurt in One Coach; Several Under Wreckage.

Altoona, Pa., May 5, 3 a. m.—[Special.]—The Chicago mail train No. 18, east bound, and the Chicago and St. Louis express No. 21, west bound, collided while running on the Pennsylvania railroad at full speed, eighteen miles from this city, at 11 o'clock tonight.

One coach in which twenty-five persons were traveling was smashed to matchwood. It is feared that every one in this car was either killed or injured.

The first report said three persons were killed and twenty-seven injured. Succeeding reports increased the number of dead to ten persons, and possibly many more, with an indefinite number of injured.

Several Pinned Under Wreckage.

Up to a late hour few details of the wreck had reached this city. Railroad officials here say it will be impossible to give a complete list of the casualties until daylight.

According to information received by the railroad people there are several dead and wounded pinned under the wreckage. Relief trains have been rushed to the scene. So far as known here the wreckage has not caught fire.

Freight Wreck Cause of Disaster.

The collision was indirectly due to a freight wreck on the middle division at 8:24 o'clock, when twenty-seven loaded cars of an eastbound freight train were wrecked at Union furnace, about twenty miles south of here, blocking all tracks.

In order to avoid detention of trains, passenger traffic was sent over the Petersburg branch. The Pennsylvania special, the eighteen hour flyer, westbound, was the first train to pass around and make the trip in safety. No. 21, the St. Louis and Chicago express, was the next train to be sent westbound over the branch. It collided with No. 18, the Chicago mail, going in an opposite direction, on a single track, near Clover Creek junction.

Chicagoans in Wrecked Cars.

Both locomotives were wrecked. Six cars on No. 18—five mail cars and a coach—were caught in the smashup. The dead and injured were passengers on the coach.

No. 21 was sent out of Altoona reversed—that is, the coach was run next to the locomotive. This was done in order to avoid a long detention that would have been occasioned by shifting the train. The train was sent east as far as Elizabeth furnace, on the main line, when the locomotive was shifted and the trip over the cutoff started.

Fear for Twenty-five in One Coach.

Information received by the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad here indicates that there were twenty-five passengers in the coach next to the engine on train No. 21. There is little hope that any one escaped from this coach without serious injury.

At 2 o'clock this morning Supt. Preston learned that a number of passengers were fastened under the twisted iron and broken timbers of the wrecked cars. He said that whether they are dead or alive will not be ascertained until after the debris is cleared from the tracks.

Physicians from Altoona, Huntingdon, and Williamsburg have been sent to the scene to render aid to the injured, who will be brought to the Altoona hospital.

Train No. 18, the east bound fast mail, left Chicago at 3 a. m. Friday. Train No. 21, the west bound Chicago and St. Louis express, was due to reach Chicago at 4:30 p. m. Saturday.

EIGHT DAYS IN LIVING TOMB; QUAKE VICTIM DIES IN RESCUE

Oakland, Cal., May 4.—[Special.]—As a result of the earthquake Antonio Compania, a fisherman, lived eight days in agony, shut in from the world by the thick walls of a meat refrigerator in the rear of a fish market in Clay street. On the eighth day after the flames had leveled every wall within a mile and after dynamite had rent its terrific way through masses of brick about the spot, the door of this man's tomb was wrenched aside and he was found, a skeleton but still alive, on the floor of the zinc lined closet. The man opened his eyes for a minute, then expired.

When the shock came on the morning of April 18 Compania with several workmen was caught in the ramshackle market house in the wholesale quarter. In his fear he rushed into the open refrigerator and slammed shut the door behind him. For hours the imprisoned man heard faintly the roar of fire outside. There was meat in the vault and this Compania ate. But there was no water.

Finally came the eighth day of his imprisonment. Fishermen who had remembered seeing their companion run into the meat safe bethought themselves of his welfare. They climbed over the ruins and pried open the door of the vault. They lifted Compania into the air; then he died.

PROGRESS OF THE RAILWAY RATE BILL.

No. 4 in the All-America Cartoon Symposium.

BY C. K. BERRYMAN OF THE WASHINGTON POST.

SUGAR REBATERS INDICTED.

Grand Jury Has 7 Bills Against Railroads and Individuals.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED.

Inquisitors Urge Continuance of Investigation Into Trust.

New York, May 4.—[Special.]—The federal grand jury, which has been investigating charges that rebates were secured by the American Sugar company from trunk lines running out of New York and from other railroads, today appeared before United States Circuit Judge Holt and handed down seven indictments against corporations and individuals and a presentment recommending the continuance of the investigation.

The New York Central railroad.

The American Sugar Refining company.

The American Sugar Refining company of New York, a subsidiary concern of the trust, and C. Goodlee Edgar and Edwin Earle, wholesale sugar dealers of Detroit, Mich.

The New York Central and Hudson River railroad company and Nathan Guilford, vice president, and F. L. Pomeroy, general traffic manager.

The American Sugar Refining company and the American Sugar Refining Company of New York and C. Goodlee Edgar and Edwin Earle.

Coincidence in Jury's Action.

By a curious coincidence the action of the grand jury timed almost exactly with the reading of President Roosevelt's message to congress, submitting the Garfield report, in which he said on the subject of the grand jury's sugar rebate investigation:

"The attorney general reports to me that the investigation now going on as to the shipments by the sugar trust over the trunk lines running out of New York City tends to show that the sugar trust rarely if ever pays the lawful rate for transportation, and is thus improperly, and probably unlawfully, favored at the expense of its competitors and of the general public."

It is not probable that the men named in the grand jury's investigation will be arrested on a warrant, but all will be notified by the federal authorities that an indictment has been found and be requested voluntarily to appear and give bail for an appearance at the next term of the federal court in June. In the case of a corporation it is presumed that the president or some other important executive officer of the company will appear and answer to the indictment.

Heavy Penalties Provided.

The first six indictments were found under the "Elkins anti-trust law," which provides penalties of a fine not exceeding $10,000, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, for giving, granting, applying for, or accepting any rebate or concession from the regular freight rates, as published by a railway company as a common carrier.

The seventh indictment, found against Guilford, Pomeroy, Edgar & Earle, is the most serious. The penalty for conspiracy to violate a federal law falls under section 5,440 of the revised statutes, which imposes imprisonment of not more than two years or a fine of not more than $5,000, or both, for each violation.

In recommending that the investigation be continued by its successor the grand jury's report says:

"In addition to cases in which indictments have been handed down, the evidence has indicated that rebates have been regularly given to sugar refiners and their customers by several other interstate lines; that a regular allowance of 2 cents per hundred pounds has been made by various railroad companies to sugar refiners to cover alleged cartage, an allowance which is not made to other shippers, and that other special favors of various kinds have been regularly made in regard to sugar shipments, either to the refiners themselves or to their officers or agents.

Elkins Law Never Regarded.

"The evidence before us has shown clearly in several instances and has indicated it to be a fact quite generally that the Elkins law as to the giving of rebates has been disregarded since the day of its enactment."

The charges which culminated in these indictments were filed with Attorney General Moody at Washington in February. Charges of rebating were made against several differential lines, as well as all the trunk lines, which divided up the entire through westbound traffic of the sugar trust on a pooling arrangement which had existed since 1900. By this the New York Central got nearly 25 per cent of the traffic, the Pennsylvania came next with 20 per cent, and so on down.

The trust got the rebates in return for a monopoly of its freight. The differential lines, it was alleged, gave their rebates during a period in 1903, when the trunk lines refused to be held up by the trust. It took the trunk lines six months of seeing their cars go west empty and slow, and roundabout differential lines loaded down with lucrative sugar shipments to induce them to give in and accede to the trust's terms.

ALLEGED CUBAN REVOLUTION STIRS UP LAUGH AT CAPITAL.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—[Special.]—Rumors of a revolution in Cuba circulated in Washington tonight were ridiculed at the state department and at the Cuban legation. Señor Quesada, the Cuban minister, received a cablegram, dated at Havana at 4:53 o'clock this afternoon, in which announcement was made that President Palma formally had been proclaimed reelected, but nothing in the dispatch indicated there was any trouble of any kind. The minister said that if there had been a row he would surely have been informed.

The revolution rumor started at Key West, where early in the evening this bulletin was sent out:

Alarming reports here of revolution in the eastern end of Cuba under the leadership of Modesto Leal, recent agitator of the cigar strike last November. Pilots were ordered to intercept all American warships last night and report at Key West. The Cuban consul wired Havana for the truth concerning the revolution. Answer no information whatever. Reported here President Palma sought safety at Morro castle.

MAGAZINE HEADS AT WAR.

McClure's Department Chiefs Reach Parting of Ways.

THREE WILL QUIT POSTS.

Owner Resents Idea That Muck Raking Views Caused Trouble.

New York, May 4.—[Special.]—Strife among the heads of departments of McClure's Magazine has been going on several weeks. It now has reached a point where it practically is certain the staff of the magazine will be thoroughly reorganized.

As a result of this reorganization several members of the staff, who for several years have been among its most prominent contributors, will leave the publication, and it is on the cards they will start another magazine.

Three writers who are slated for retirement are Miss Ida M. Tarbell, who has been writing about the Standard Oil for McClure's Magazine for several years; Lincoln Steffens, who has made a specialty of the study and analysis of political corruption in American states and cities, and Ray Stannard Baker, who recently has been handling railroads and their rebates without gloves.

Although nobody connected with the management of McClure's Magazine would go into details today regarding the cause of dissensions in the office, it is learned on excellent authority that the real source of all the trouble has been a difference of opinion as to who is the real editor of McClure's Magazine.

McClure in Emphatic Mood.

S. S. McClure, president of the company, has decided notions on this subject.

"I am editor of McClure's magazine," he declared today. "I have been its editor since its inception. I shall continue to be its editor as long as I live. McClure's since its beginning has represented my ideas of what a magazine ought to be and it will continue to represent them."

Mr. McClure resented emphatically the suggestion that the president's recent speech about muck raking and muck rakers in any way had affected his views of what a magazine ought to be.

"This magazine always has set out to report the activities of contemporary life," he declared. "It will go on doing this, but because you frequently use a camera it doesn't follow you will keep on making the same sort of pictures."

Future Policy Not Indicated.

Whether this indicated the intention to shelve the policy of municipal, state, and corporate castigation, along with the departure of Miss Tarbell and Messrs. Baker and Steffens, did not appear.

It appears the question of the editorship of McClure's began to be debated with some vigor in the McClure office while Mr. McClure was in Europe. News of the debate came to his ears and he came back to take part in it. Persons in a position to know maintain it was a spirited affair and that McClure got the decision.

DANCES AS LIVING TORCH; DIES.

Woman Ignites Clothing Soaked with Oil to End Life as Mother and Sister Did.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, May 4.—Paola Nizza, a resident of Palermo, soaked her clothing with petroleum today, then set it afire. She danced around madly until she fell, burned to death. It is stated her mother killed herself in the same way in Chicago four years ago, and that her sister met a similar death last year.

TEARS THE MASK FROM OIL TRUST.

Railroads in League with Corporation to Crush Out Competition and Build Up Monopoly.

PROSECUTION TO BE PROMPT.

Law Giving Interstate Commerce Commission More Power to Apply Quick Drastic Remedy Urged by the Executive.

President Roosevelt gave to congress yesterday the long expected proofs of the system of secret rebates and open discrimination by the railroads which have enabled the Standard Oil company to build up the greatest monopoly in the world.

The proofs sent to congress were contained in a report made to the president by James R. Garfield, commissioner of corporations.

Piles Proof on Proof.

Mr. Garfield, after an exhaustive inquiry lasting fourteen months and covering every oil field in the United States, lays bare a system of rebates which almost staggers belief. He shows that the railroad companies of the country return to the Standard Oil company every year in rebates more than $800,000.

These rebates have crushed out competition in many fields and limited it in others.

Under the system the Standard Oil company is able to add as much as 5 cents a gallon to the price of kerosene. As Mr. Garfield points out, half a cent a gallon is considered a fair profit, the profit of the Standard Oil company is not only enormous but exorbitant.

Railroads to Be Prosecuted.

President Roosevelt, in his message to congress, calls attention to these plain violations of the law and announces that prompt prosecution of the guilty railroads will be undertaken by the department of justice as soon as congress passes the pending bill to "correct the interpretation of the immunity provision rendered in Judge Humphrey's decision" in the Chicago beef packers' case.

The president says, too, that the railroads should be permitted by law to unite for the protection of themselves and the public against the Standard Oil and other great corporations.

He also urges laws giving the interstate commerce commission more power to examine the affairs of a railroad as thoroughly as a bank examiner investigates a bank.

Stung to Quick Reply.

President Roosevelt's message and Commissioner Garfield's report had the unexpected effect of stinging the Standard Oil officials to a quick and sarcastic reply. Last night Henry M. Rogers and John D. Archbold gave to the public a remarkable statement, sarcastic in its reference to the president and blunt in its criticism of Mr. Garfield. In opening its statement the oil magnates say:

"One does not care to bandy words with the president of the United States. It is not easy to differentiate between Mr. Roosevelt, the president, and Mr. Roosevelt, the individual. He has given us his advice most generously on every subject from the size of our families to the mistakes of federal judges, and some error is inevitable now and then to the most conservative man under such circumstances."

Deny They Get Rebates.

Mr. Rogers and Mr. Archbold deny the Standard Oil company has received or is receiving rebates from the railroad companies.

They say if the railroads have violated the interstate commerce law it is none of Mr. Garfield's business. They ask why the interstate commerce commission has not prosecuted the violators of the law.

They claim the right to a lower rate in many instances because they have been enterprising enough to lay pipe lines while their competitors have not.

They say that of the 23,000,000 barrels of oil controlled annually by the Standard Oil company 15,000,000 barrels are exported, and that the American public has no concern with the price charged the foreigner.

Causes Them Amusement.

Messrs. Rogers and Archbold close their reply to the president with these words:

"The grief which the president expresses in his message over the inability of the railroads to combine and protect themselves from the shippers probably will arouse amusement.

"The president says respecting this investigation that the facts are not in dispute, only the inferences are disputed. The Standard Oil company furnished the facts, and a man with a muck rake dug out such as, under his manipulation, he felt would prove damaging.

"The Standard Oil company has been investigated over and over again, at the instigation of its rivals, and it always welcomes such investigation when conducted in good faith and fairly. We are engaged in a large and honorable business. We are conducting it honorably, and, we sincerely believe, in conformity to law."

Text of President's Message.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Following is the text of the president's message:

"The Senate and House of Representatives: I transmit herewith a report by the commissioner of the bureau of corporations in the department of commerce and labor on the subject of transportation and freight rates in connection with the oil industry. The investigation, the results of part of which are summarized in his report, was undertaken in accordance with house resolution 490, passed on Feb. 15, 1906, but for the reasons given in the report it has been made general and extensive than was called for in the resolution itself.

"I call your especial attention to the letter of transmittal accompanying and summarizing the report; for the report is of capital importance in view of the effort now being made to secure such enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission as will confer upon the commission power in some measure adequately to meet the clearly demonstrated needs of the situation. The facts set forth in this report are for the most part not disputed. It is only the inferences from them that are disputed and even in this respect the dispute is practically limited to the question as to whether the transactions are or are not technically legal.

Profit in Unlawful Rates.

"The report shows that the Standard Oil company has benefited enormously up almost to the present moment by secret rates, many of these secret rates being clearly unlawful. This benefit amounts to at least $750,000 a year. This $750,000 represents the profit that the Standard Oil company obtains at the expense of the railroads; but of course the ultimate result is that it obtains a much larger profit at the expense of the public.

"A striking result of the investigation has been that shortly after the discovery of these secret rates by the commissioner of corporations the major portion of them were promptly corrected by the railroads, so that most of them have now been done away with. This immediate correction, partial or complete, of the evil of the secret rates is, of course, on the one hand an acknowledgment that they were wrong and yet were persevered in until exposed, and, on the other hand, a proof of the efficiency of the work that has been done by the bureau of corporations.

Prosecutions to Follow.

"The department of justice will take up the question of instituting prosecutions in at least certain of the cases. But it is most desirable to enact into law the bill introduced by Senator Knox to correct the interpretation of the immunity provision rendered in Judge Humphrey's decision. The hands of the government have been greatly strengthened in securing an effective remedy by the recent decision of the Supreme court in the case instituted by the government against the tobacco trust, which decision permits the government to examine the books and records of any corporation engaged in interstate commerce, and by the recent conviction and punishment of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and certain of its officers.

"But in addition to these secret rates the Standard Oil profits immensely by open rates which are so arranged as to give it an overwhelming advantage over its independent competitors. The refusal of the railroads in certain cases to prorate produces analogous effects.

"Thus in New England the refusal of certain railway systems to prorate has resulted in keeping the Standard Oil in absolute monopolistic control of the field, enabling it to charge from $300,000 to $400,000 a year more to the consumers of oil in New England than they would have had to pay had the price paid been that obtaining in the competitive fields.

Evil of Monopoly Shown.

"This is a characteristic example of the numerous evils which are inevitable under a system in which the big shipper and the railroad are left free to crush out all individual initiative and all power of independent action because of the absence of adequate and thoroughgoing governmental control. Exactly similar conditions obtain in a large part of the west and southwest. This particular instance exemplifies the fact that the granting to the government of the power to substitute a proper for an improper rate is in many instances the only effective way in which to prevent improper discriminations in rates.

"It is not possible to put into figures the exact amount by which the Standard profits through the gross favoritism shown it by the railroads in connection with the open rates. The profit, of course, comes not merely by the saving in the rate itself as compared with its competitors, but by the higher prices it is able to charge and—even without reference to these higher prices—by the complete control of the market which it secures, thereby getting the profit on the whole consumption. Here, again, the only way by which the discriminations can be cured is by conferring upon the interstate commerce commission the power to take quick and effective action in regulating the rates.

"One feature of the report which is especially worthy of attention is the showing made as to the way in which the law is evaded by treating as state commerce what is in reality merely a part of interstate commerce. It is clearly shown, for instance, that this device is employed on the New York Central railroad, as well as on many other railroads, in such fashion as to amount to thwarting the purpose of the law, although the forms of the law may be complied with.

Sugar Trust an Offender.

"It is unfortunately not true that the Standard Oil company is the only great corporation which in the immediate past has benefited, and is at this moment benefiting, in wholly improper fashion by an elaborate series of rate discriminations which permit it to profit both at the expense of its rivals and of the general public. The attorney general reports to me that the investigation now going on as to the shipments by the sugar trust over the trunk lines running out of New York City tends to show that the sugar trust rarely, if ever, pays the lawful rate for transportation, and is thus improperly, and probably unlawfully, favored at the expense of its competitors and of the general public.

"The argument is sometimes advanced against conferring upon some governmental body the power of supervision and control over interstate commerce, that to do so tends to weaken individual initiative. Investigations such as this conclusively disprove any such allegation. On the contrary, the proper play for individual initiative can only be secured by such governmental supervision as will curb those monopolies which crush out all individual initiative. The railroad itself cannot without such government aid protect the interests of its own stockholders as against one of these great corporations loosely known as trusts.

Where a Good Law Fails.

"In the effort to prevent the railroads from uniting for improper purposes we have unwisely prohibited them from uniting for proper purposes; that is, for purposes of protection to themselves and to the general public as against the power of the great corporations. They should certainly be given power thus to unite on conditions laid down by congress, such conditions to include the specific approval of the interstate commerce commission of any agreement to which the railroads may come. In addition to this the government must interfere through its agents to deprive the railroad of the ability to make to the big corporations the concessions which otherwise it is powerless to refuse.

"The government should have power by its agents to examine into the conduct of the railways, that is, its examiners, under the direction of the interstate commerce commission, should be able to examine as thoroughly into the affairs of the railroad as bank examiners now examine into the affairs of banks.

More Power for Commission.

"It is impossible to work a material improvement in conditions such as above described merely through the instrumentality of a lawsuit. A lawsuit is often a necessary method, but by itself it is an utterly inadequate method. What is needed is the conferring upon the commission of ample affirmative power, so conferred as to make its decisions take effect at once subject only to such action by the court as is demanded by the constitution. The courts have the power to and will undoubtedly interfere if the action of the commission should become in effect confiscatory of the property of an individual or corporation or if the commission should undertake to do anything beyond the authority conferred upon it by the law under which it is acting.

"I am well aware that within the limits thus set the commission may at times be guilty of injustice; but far grosser and far more frequent injustice, and injustice of a much more injurious kind, now results and must always result from the failure to give the commission ample power to act promptly and effectively within these broad limits.

"Though not bearing upon the question of railroad rates, there are two measures consideration of which is imperatively suggested by the submission of this report. The Standard Oil company has, largely by unfair or unlawful methods, crushed out home competition. It is highly desirable that an element of competition should be introduced by the passage of some such law as that which has already passed the house, putting alcohol used in the arts and manufactures upon the free list.

"Furthermore, the time has come when no oil or coal lands held by the government, either upon the public domain proper or in territory owned by the Indian tribes, should be alienated. The fee to such lands should be kept in the United States government whether or not the profits arising from it are to be given to any Indian tribe, and the lands should be leased only on such terms and for such periods as will enable the government to keep entire control thereof.

POINTS SCORED BY COMMISSIONER GARFIELD.

The Standard Oil company has habitually received from the railroads and is now receiving secret rates and other unjust and illegal discriminations.

Secret rates have given the company absolute control of the northwestern part of New York, a portion of Vermont, the New England territory, the country south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, many parts of the middle west, and California.

Unjust discrimination in open published rates or secret rates by the railroads on a total annual output of 23,000,000 gallons of oil has saved the Standard $750,000, distributed as follows:

Western New York	115,000
Other territory (New England and middle west)	245,000

These discriminating open or secret rates have given the Standard an unfair advantage over all competitors of from 1 to 12 cents per 100 pounds throughout the United States. This has limited seriously independent refiners in some markets and shut them out absolutely in others.

Secret low rates from Whiting, Ind., to East St. Louis, Ill., by the Burlington, Alton, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads have saved the Standard $240,000 annually and blocked competitors in this field.

Unfair discrimination by railroads in Kansas against local producers has prevented practically all competition with the Standard.

Direct rebates and discrimination in secret rates in California have crippled all competition with the Standard.

RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE PRESIDENT.

Prosecutions which soon are to be started should be preceded by the passage of a bill to "correct" the interpretation of the immunity provision rendered in Judge Humphrey's decision" in the beef cases in Chicago.

Railroads should be permitted to unite for protection to themselves and the public as against the power of great corporations.

The proper play for individual initiative can be secured only by such government supervision as will curb these monopolies which crush out all individual initiative.

Examiners under the direction of the interstate commerce commission should examine the affairs of a railroad as thoroughly as bank examiners investigate banks.

The commission should have affirmative power, making its decisions take effect at once, subject only to such action by the court as is demanded by the constitution.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY'S REPLY.

"One does not care to bandy words with the president of the United States. It is not easy to differentiate between Mr. Roosevelt, the president, and Mr. Roosevelt, the individual. He has given us his advice most generously on every subject from the size of our families to the mistakes of federal judges, and some error is inevitable now and then to the most conservative man under such circumstances."

The Standard Oil company furnished the facts (to Commissioner Garfield) and a man with a muck rake dug out such as, under the manipulation, he felt would prove damaging.

It would have been fair of him (Commissioner Garfield) to have stated that over 15,000,000 barrels of this annual manufacture (23,000,000 barrels of oil) is exported, and with its manufacture or the price the American public is not concerned.

If the interstate commerce law has been violated it was the duty of the interstate commerce commission to sue the railroads, which it has not done. The views of Mr. Garfield, who has nothing to do with this matter, are valueless.

The New England roads, and not the Standard Oil company, are blamable for causing the discrimination in that territory. Mr. Garfield should have attacked Long Island sound, the competitive cause of the railroad's discrimination.

There have been no secret rates at Whiting, and there is no opposition refinery within 100 miles to be hurt if there were any discrimination.

Generally, the Standard has obtained as low rate as it could within the law; it has not received secret rates or rebates, and it is innocent on all counts in the attack.

Competition has not been crushed, but is growing, and there are now at least 125 competitive refineries in the United States.

TURNS LIGHT ON OIL RATES.

Indiana to Investigate Charges by Garfield That Tariff in That State Was Secret.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 4.—[Special.]—The charge in the report of Commissioner of Corporations Garfield that the Standard Oil company had a secret rate for shipment of oil from its refinery at Whiting to Evansville and that it paid about $10,000 a year less to railroads than would have been the case if open rate had been charged, is to be the subject of an investigation by the attorney general of Indiana under the law inhibiting discriminations against shippers within the state.

Whiting and Evansville are both in Indiana and it is claimed that discriminations came within the scope of the law which affixes heavy penalties for such practices. Companies engaged in producing oil in Indiana and who supply independent refineries frequently have charged that the Standard Oil company was being favored by the railroads at the expense of independents, but no investigation ever was made.

The last legislature created a state railroad commission with authority in such cases, and as the revelations by Commissioner Garfield show clearly that the state law has been violated persistently the attorney general and railroad commission have determined upon investigations.

New York Central Explains.

New York, May 4.—Replying to the statement by Commissioner Garfield that the New York Central railroad refused to disclose its rates within New York state, W. H. Newman, president of that company, said today:

"We refused to furnish our state rate to the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor because the department has jurisdiction only over instate commerce. We cheerfully gave the department access to our instate commerce books, just as we would give the proper state authorities information as to our state rate, if it was called for.

"As to the New York Central being the only company which refused to supply Commissioner Garfield with the state rate, attention should be called to the fact that the New York Central is the only large state railroad in the country."

"I do not think that the Standard Oil company received rebates from any railroad. Naturally, it is always on the lookout for the most favorable rates, and, by the reason of its compact organization, is instantly ready to take advantage of any changes in the tariff. If it had failed to take advantage of any rate changes favorable to itself, the Standard Oil company would have been foolish."

Says Garfield Is Mistaken.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—[Special.]—President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad, when asked today if he had any comment to make on Commissioner Garfield's charges concerning his road, said:

"If Commissioner Garfield is correctly reported as stating that the Boston and Maine railroad has refused to prorate on oil shipped from the west to this territory over connecting roads, all I have to say is that he is entirely mistaken. The Boston and Maine road for years, except in certain sparsely settled sections of its territory, has joined with the roads on which the oil traffic originated in through rates, and every shipper and receiver of oil has been treated exactly alike. In certain parts of Boston and Maine territory, where smaller quantities of oil are received, rates have not been prorated for the reason that this road never has been asked to enter into such an arrangement. On the Fitchburg, Connecticut River, Worcester, Nashua and Portland, and Southern divisions such prorating arrangements have been in effect at least as far back as the last eight years and are in effect today.

"Moreover, there is a great oil plant at Beverly, generally known to be an opposition concern to the Standard Oil company, and this receives from us practically the same treatment with respect to through rates and facilities as any other oil concern or consumer in our territory."

GARFIELD PROVES LAW IS VIOLATED.

ENABLE TRUST TO RULE.

Specific Instances Show How Competition Is Crushed and Monopoly Intrenched.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Commissioner James R. Garfield's report on the relations between the Standard Oil company and the railroads, as transmitted to the president and by the latter to congress, makes out a strong case against the railroads.

Mr. Garfield cites many instances in which railroad companies pay rebates to the Standard Oil company and gives many other instances of the manipulation of open rates by which the oil trust is enabled to crush its competitors.

Commissioner Garfield began his report with a statement of the scope of the inquiry and the methods he used in securing his information. He personally visited all the great oil fields and through his agents interviewed practically all the refiners and transportation agencies engaged in the distribution of oil. He cites the following as indicating the scope of his investigation:

Therefore, a general and extensive investigation has been conducted, covering the following subjects:

1. The crude oil production in the United States and its relation to the world's supply; the prices and methods of purchase.
2. The use, development, and control of pipe lines.
3. Refining of oil, the control of refineries, the cost of refining and marketing, the prices of petroleum products.
4. The organization, ownership, and relation of the companies engaged in the production, manufacture, and distribution of oil.
5. The competitive methods used in the production and sale of oil.
6. Transportation and freight rates.
7. Foreign trade conditions and their relation to the domestic industry.

Extent of the Monopoly.

Mr. Garfield's present report to the president deals only with the question of the transportation of oil. He shows that by a system of secret rebates and open discriminations the Standard Oil company has been able to make exorbitant profits.

He shows that the manufacture of refined oil, commonly known as kerosene, is about 26,000,000 barrels annually, of which the Standard Oil company controls, directly and indirectly, about 25,000,000.

After deducting the freight rate the price of such oil is usually from 2 to 5 cents a gallon higher where the Standard Oil company has no competition. A reasonable profit upon refined oil is about ½ cent a gallon. It is clear, says Mr. Garfield, that the Standard Oil company obtains exorbitant profits in non-competitive fields.

Goes Into Details.

Mr. Garfield then goes into the subject of railroad rebates. On this point he is explicit.

During 1904 the Standard saved about three-quarters of a million dollars through the secret rates discovered by the bureau; and, of course, there may be other secret rates which the bureau has not discovered. This amount represents the difference between the open rates and the rates actually paid. Many of these discriminations were clearly in violation of the interstate commerce law, and others, whether technically illegal or not, had the same effect upon competitors. On some state business secret rates were applied by means of rebates.

These discriminations have been so long continued, so secret, so ingeniously applied to new conditions of trade and so large in amount as to make it certain that they were due to concerted action by the Standard and the railroads.

The Standard Oil company is receiving unjust discriminations in open rates.

The published rates from the leading Standard shipping points are relatively much lower than rates from the shipping points of its competitors. The advantage to the Standard over its competitors from such open discriminations is enormous, probably as important as that obtained through the secret rates.

If an unfair discrimination be obtained by one shipper through a device which in itself is seemingly not prohibited by law, that fact shows that the law is defective and should be strengthened; it does not show that the discrimination is proper or just.

Who Gives the Rebates?

The following are a few of the most important discriminations and the methods by which they were obtained:

1. For about ten years the New England territory has been in control of the Standard Oil company by reason of the refusal of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road and of the Boston and Maine road, on all but a few divisions, to prorate—i. e., to join in through rates—on oil shipped from west of the Hudson river, and by means of the adjustment of published rates.

The Standard is entitled to the advantage of its water shipping points in reaching New England, but that advantage was greatly and unfairly increased when the railroads, by refusing to prorate, virtually kept independent refiners from using allrail routes. The refusal to prorate increased the rail rates from the west from 8 to 10 cents a hundred pounds. These railroads do prorate on all other commodities; their refusal to do so in the case of oil amounted to imposing a substantial tax on all consumers in the region they cover, and is also a heavy discrimination against the smaller refiners.

2. The Standard Oil company has been able to control absolutely for many years the sale of oil in the northeastern part of New York and in a portion of Vermont by means of secret rates from its refineries at Olean and Rochester.

Pennsylvania Railroad Guilty.

The Pennsylvania railroad has given the Standard a rate of 9 cents a barrel from Olean, N. Y., to Rochester, while the independent refineries situated in territory adjacent to Olean were given a rate of 38 cents a barrel. By means of this 9 cent rate, in combination with a rate from Rochester, N. Y., a virtually secret and low rate from Norwood, N. Y., to Burlington, and secret local rates therefrom, the Standard has been able to supply central and northern Vermont with oil at a rate from 15 to 21 cents a hundred pounds, whereas no independent refiner could reach that territory from western Pennsylvania save by a rate varying from 33 to 50 cents a hundred pounds.

The saving to the Standard during 1904 by the secret rate from Olean to Rochester alone was $115,000. This and other less important rates from Olean were unknown to the independent refiners and were not published on the ground that they were wholly state rates; yet in fact they were used for oil consigned to points beyond the state boundary of New York. Furthermore, all the shipments from Olean on these secret rates were blind billed—that is: the rates were not shown on the way bills.

Rebates in the South.

The Standard Oil company has maintained absolute control of almost the whole section of the country south of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi by means of secret rates and open discrimination in rates from Whiting, Ind.

For example, the published tariff rate from Whiting, Ind., the great western refinery of the Standard, to Birmingham, Ala., was 44 cents a hundred pounds. For at least ten years the Standard, by means of a secret combination of rates by way of Grand Junction, Tenn., over the lines of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, the Illinois Central, and the Southern railway, has shipped oil to Birmingham for 29½ cents. The Toledo competitor, no farther distant, had to pay 47½ cents.

A great area in the south has been reached by this same secret combination at rates averaging one-fourth less than the published rates. The total saving to the Standard on these rates has been about $70,000 a year.

The records of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad company show plainly that these Grand Junction and Evansville rates were intended to be secret, were given for the sole benefit of the Standard, and were handled as secret rates with the knowledge of Standard officials.

Secret Rates in Illinois.

4. The Standard Oil company has for at least ten years shipped oil from Whiting to East St. Louis, Ill., at a rate of 6 or 6¼ cents on three of the five railroads running between those places, while the only published rate on all roads has been 18 cents during all that period. The saving to the Standard amounted to about $240,000 in 1904.

For many years East St. Louis has been the gateway for oil shipments by the Standard into the southwest. The rates from the independent refining points of Ohio to East St. Louis have been about 12 cents higher than the rate from Whiting, whereas on other commodities of similar grade these points pay only about 5 cents more than Whiting.

Whiting is located in Indiana, about two miles from the Illinois line. East St. Louis is in Illinois, just across the river from St. Louis. The secret low rates were given by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Chicago and Alton, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads. They were not published on the ground that they were state rates. In dealing with these rates one of the roads—the Chicago and Alton—falsely waybilled the freight at 18 cents and collected from the Standard at 6 cents. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois blind-billed at the 6 cent rate, but it was none the less secret.

Unfair Rates in Kansas.

5. In the Kansas territory field there are some unfair open rates. The more important discrimination has been in the arbitrary weights fixed by the railroads on crude oil and fuel oil. This discrimination prevents the Kansas producer from selling his crude oil, especially low gravity, advantageously in competition with the fuel oil produced by the Standard and the small refiners.

Crude oil is charged on the basis of 7.4 pounds a gallon; its actual weight is about 7.2 pounds. Fuel oil produced by the refineries is charged at 6.4 pounds; it actually weighs about 7.6 pounds. A barrel of crude oil shipped from Kansas to St. Louis is charged nearly 10 cents more than a barrel of fuel oil; this difference in freight charges is equal to more than one-third of the price of low grade Kansas crude.

This discrimination has existed for about four years. It does not exist in any other field. The legislation of Kansas in 1906 put an end to it only so far as shipments within the state are concerned.

Rebates in California.

6. In California direct rebates as well as discriminations by the use of secret rates have been given in oil. These rebates and discriminations benefited the Standard to the extent of about $100,000 in 1904. The Associated Oil company, the Union Oil company, and some consumers of oil also received rebates and secret rates, but the Standard apparently received as much as all other interests combined. These favors were almost invariably denied the ordinary shipper. On shipments to Arizona rebates on state rates were received by the Standard in connection with interstate shipments; this virtually was a rebate on interstate business. Owing to the fact that fuel oil is extensively sold under contract on the Pacific coast, rate discriminations obtained by a few favored shippers have enabled them to monopolize markets for long periods.

Great injury has been inflicted by railroads upon independent shippers through discriminations in the distribution of tank cars.

7. Open published rates from Whiting into a large part of the United States have given the Standard Oil company an unfair advantage of from 1 to 12 cents a hundred pounds. This discrimination seriously limits independent refiners in some markets and shuts them out completely from other markets. It is accomplished by the use of commodity rates—that is, rates which apply only to petroleum and its products—and by refusal to prorate.

Most of the secret rates and some of the open discriminations discovered by the bureau were abolished by the railroads shortly after such discovery. The more important changes thus far noted are as follows:

1. The secret rate of 9 cents a barrel from Olean to Rochester and 10 cents a barrel from Olean to Buffalo has been changed to an open rate of 29 cents a barrel to Rochester and 27 cents a barrel to Buffalo on shipments of all refined oil products, and the practice of blind-billing of oil has been discontinued by the Pennsylvania railroad.

2. The low tank car rates made by the Rutland railroad from Norwood to Burlington, Rutland, and Bellows Falls, Vt., have been made applicable on oil in barrels.

3. The cancellation of the secret rate from Whiting to Grand Junction will reduce by about three-fourths the Standard's advantage over competing refiners at Toledo, Cleveland, and vicinity on shipments into a large part of the south. Instead of 14 or 15 cents the differential against them is now 3 or 4 cents a hundred pounds, while the disadvantage of competing refiners of western Pennsylvania has been correspondingly reduced.

Where Toledo Will Gain.

4. The cancellation of the secret rate from Whiting to Evansville will reduce the Standard's advantage over competing refiners at Toledo on shipments into many other parts of the south from about 6¾ cents to 3½ cents a hundred pounds. The advantage which the Standard has enjoyed over competitors in Cleveland, Pittsburg, and other independent refining points has been correspondingly reduced.

5. The cancellation of the secret rates from Whiting to East St. Louis and the substitution of the rate of 10 cents will reduce the Standard's advantage from 11 cents to 7 cents a hundred pounds, with a corresponding reduction of its advantage over more easterly refining points.

6. The railroads have advanced their published rates from Whiting into northern Indiana and Michigan by about 2 or 3 cents a hundred pounds and have put the rates on practically an equality, distance considered, with those from Toledo and more easterly points.

New Haven Road Repentant.

7. The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has resumed the practice of prorating on oil, thereby reducing the average freight charge to independent refiners of western Pennsylvania and Ohio on shipments into a large part of Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts by about 8 cents a hundred pounds. This will materially increase their opportunity for competition with the Standard Oil company in that territory. The interstate commerce commission recently denounced the former practice and recommended a change.

8. A large number of the secret rates of California railroads have been published as open rates. While under the contract system of selling fuel oil generally employed in that region the concerns formerly enjoying the secret rates continue to benefit from them, this revision of tariffs obviously operates to the benefit of independent shippers on future business. A number of discrepancies in open rates on the Pacific coast have also been adjusted.

The changes above described, with others of less importance, mean much more than the increase of freight charges to the Standard. They show in striking fashion the good which has already resulted from this investigation. They put independents upon a fairer footing and make competition possible in territories heretofore inaccessible.

Discrimination Still Exists.

Nevertheless, the widespread discrimination in open rates still in force leave the independents at serious disadvantage. The investigation has only incidentally touched state shipments from distributing centers, particularly in less than car loads. The few instances examined suggest the probability of discriminations on such shipments which, taken in connection with through traffic, may result in discrimination on interstate business.

In a supplementary letter to the president Commissioner Garfield explains in fuller detail the results of his investigation. In this letter he says:

"The general result of the investigation has been to disclose the existence of numerous and flagrant discriminations by the railroads in behalf of the Standard Oil company and its affiliated corporations. With comparatively few exceptions, many of other large concerns in California, the Standard has been the sole beneficiary of such discriminations. In almost every section of the country that company has been found to enjoy some unfair advantages over its competitors, and some of these discriminations affect enormous areas.

"Discriminations in the transportation of oil embrace a variety of forms, the more important of which may be classed under the following heads:

"1. Secret and semi-secret rates.

"3. Discriminations in classification and mode of shipment.

"4. Discrimination in treatment of private tank cars.

"Blind Billing" of Oil.

"Many of the secret rates discovered by the bureau of corporations have applied only on shipments of oil wholly within state lines. The Standard Oil company, which controls refineries in twelve states, is obviously in a position to make extensive use of such intrastate rates, or, as they are ordinarily designated, state rates.

"For the purpose of more effectively concealing the secret rates given to the Standard Oil company railroads in several important cases have used peculiar methods of billing and accounting. In some cases it has been 'blind billed'—that is to say, the way bills have been made out showing the kind of product transported and its weight, but without showing, as is the custom, the freight rate or the amount of the freight charges. In such instances the collection of freight is ordinarily made not by the local agent of the railroad but through the general office by the presentation to the Standard of a summary bill showing the amount of freight charges at the secret rate. Local agents often do not know what the secret rates used on blind bills are.

"An especially large number of secret rates and rebates on the transportation of oil was found in California. In all, more than eighty distinct violations of tariffs on oil were discovered in this state. The total concessions to shippers and consignees under these rates as compared with the published tariffs may be safely estimated at about $200,000 a year, of which amount about $100,000 went to the Standard.

Rebates Are Still Possible.

Under the head of "Possibility of Further Discriminations," the commissioner says:

"It seems wholly possible that there may exist a multitude of other discriminations effected by secret rates or even by rebates of great aggregate importance, involved in the local distribution of oil, especially in less than car load lots. The Standard Oil company ships enormous quantities of oil in less than car load lots, and, although the distances involved in such cases are usually comparatively short, the amount of freight charges under the high tariff rates which prevail on such business under regular tariffs would be great and the possibilities of departure from these charges extensive.

Regarding discrimination in the open arrangement of rates, Commissioner Garfield declares:

"Different methods are used in different places and under different conditions, but the net result is that from Maine to California the general arrangement of open rates on petroleum oil is such as to give the Standard an unreasonable advantage over its competitors. The conclusion is inevitable that the Standard Oil company has had an important voice in the construction of such rates, and this conclusion is supported by specific evidence developed by the investigation."

Shipments in Tank Cars.

In many cases, he says, there are unreasonable differences between the rates on oil in carloads and less than carloads, the charges that discrimination is practiced to some instances in the treatment of private tank cars. On this point he says:

"In most sections of the country all refineries operating tank cars or their own cars receive equal treatment in respect to the mileage allowances. On the Pacific coast, however, most independent refineries receive but 8-10 cent a mile, and this on the loaded movement only. An exception is made where the haul exceeds 800 miles, in which case ¾ cent a mile is allowed on the excess mileage over that distance, but again on the loaded movement only. The Union Tank line and the Waters-Pierce company—also a Standard concern—are the only oil companies operating tank cars on the lines of the Southern Pacific company and the Santa Fé on the Pacific coast, which receive ¾ cent a mile on both loaded and empty cars.

"Similar discriminations in the mileage allowance are practiced by some of the transcontinental systems traversing the northwestern states.

"The advantages of the Standard Oil company would alone give it a highly favorable position in the oil industry. To a certain extent a natural policy of railroads would be to neutralize these advantages by giving favorable rates to the smaller refiner. The Standard Oil company, through its pipe lines and its fleet of oil carrying vessels, is an active and powerful competitor of the railroads. Except in the Texas and California fields it has already taken the transportation of crude oil almost wholly away from railroads.

"The general policy of the railroads with regard to other freight traffic has been to equalize conditions of competition in given markets by the use of commodity rates, relatively more favorable to distant points or points than to the nearer producing points. But it appears that in the case of the oil industry the policy has been generally reversed and natural disadvantages of independent have been enormously increased.

STANDARD TRUST IN ANGRY DENIAL.

H. H. Rogers and John D. Archbold Make Sarcastic Reply to Roosevelt.

SAY GARFIELD IS "DENSE."

Oil Magnates Deny Their Company Enjoys Secret Rebates from the Railroads.

New York, May 4.—In reply to President Roosevelt's message and the report of Commissioner Garfield, Messrs. H. H. Rogers and John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company said that their examination of the message and report had necessarily been a hurried one, and that they should at a later date make a full answer to their shareholders. Meanwhile they made the following statement:

"In the president's effort to secure the passage of a bill enlarging the powers of interstate commerce commission and just and equitable railway rates we have precisely the same interest that any good citizen has. No more and no less. Regarding his criticisms upon the management of the railways, or his strictures upon any acts of the interstate commerce commission, we have neither responsibility nor concern. When, however, he or Commissioner Garfield attacks the Standard Oil company and uses its methods of doing business as an object lesson for the purpose of promoting his views, we protest.

"It may be frankly stated at the outset that the Standard Oil company has at all times, within the limits of fairness and with due regard for the law, sought to secure the most advantageous freight rates and routes possible. There will be no denial of this fact on our part. The question is whether we have at any point violated the law or the properties.

Welcomed Present Inquiry.

"The present inquiry grew out of a resolution adopted by congress a year ago on motion of Mr. Campbell of Kansas, instructing the secretary of commerce and labor to investigate the oil business as carried on in this country. We welcomed the investigation. When Commissioner Garfield in the discharge of his duty visited our office he and his experts were given free access to our books and the fullest opportunity to ascertain the manner in which our business was conducted. Frank disclosures of all of our methods were made and every criticism offered by him was met with a candid and painstaking answer.

"So conscious were we of our rectitude that we repeatedly importuned Mr. Garfield to make public the conditions existing in Kansas, but he refused. We proposed ourselves to answer some of the unfair criticism upon the subject, but refrained on Mr. Garfield's advice and on his assurance that his report would present the case fairly. It turned out that, so far as Kansas was concerned, the state authorities abandoned their attack.

"One does not care to bandy words with the president of the United States. It is not easy to differentiate between Mr. Roosevelt, the president, and Mr. Roosevelt, the individual. He has given of his advice most generously to every subject, from the size of our families to the mistaken of federal judges, and some error is inevitable now and then to the most conservative man under such circumstances.

"Untruthful and Unjust."

"We say flatly that any assertion that the Standard Oil company has been or is now knowingly engaged in practices which are unlawful is alike untruthful and unjust.

"The commissioner's report, upon which the president's message is based, opens with the statement that the manufacture of refined oil in this country is about 26,000,000 barrels annually. It is unimportant, but it would, nevertheless, have been fair for him to have stated over 15,000,000 of barrels of this annual manufacture is exported, and with its manufacture or price the American public is not concerned.

"He next calls attention to the fact that the Standard oil refineries are located at points of distribution, while the independent refineries are usually in the crude oil fields. This fact, if borne steadily in mind, will answer many of the criticisms which he later indulges in.

"He charges that this location of refineries and the natural advantages following it were obtained by means of unfair competitive methods, but beyond this mere assertion does not go into a history or explanation of these alleged unfair methods at all.

"He says the development of the pipe line system by the Standard Oil company was 'the result of special agreement with the railroad companies.' What he can mean is past our comprehension. As a matter of fact the development of the pipe line system by the Standard Oil company was in the face of violent hostility on the part of the railroads, which naturally were opposed to the introduction of such means of transportation.

"At enormous cost and in the face of constant railway opposition at an early date the Standard Oil company adopted the pipe line system for handling crude petroleum. The first line was extended from the western Pennsylvania oil fields to Bergen Point, on the Atlantic coast. This line diverted an enormous amount of freight from the railway companies, which fact they did not view with complacency.

Says Garfield Is Dense.

"Passing this point, Commissioner Garfield takes up the question of favoritism, which is alleged has been shown by various railroad corporations to the Standard Oil company. The first specific case of alleged discrimination to which he directs attention is in the New England territory. It is charged that we enjoy a monopoly in certain parts of that section because some of the railroads there refuse to prorate.

"The man who could be deceived by such a statement must be pretty dense. First, if the New England roads ought to prorate, out of fairness to do so, it must occur to some one, somewhere, that perhaps the New England roads and not the Standard Oil company are blameable. Second, a casual inquiry would show that the New England roads are simply doing what they are forced to do by natural conditions, and that Mr. Garfield's attack to be effective, should be directed at Long Island sound as a means of freight communication.

"Obviously, we have an advantage by the use of our own pipe lines from the western oil fields to the coast and the use of water transportation thence to New England over any one who uses all rail transportation from western points. But this advantage is one which it is not possible to correct by any rate legislation unless it is proposed to bankrupt the railroads in order to meet water competition. Yet we are not alone in this method of transportation. Some of our competitors do the same thing and deliver oil at the points in New England that we do by the same process.

"Mr. Garfield claims that the refusal to prorate on the part of the New England railroads has given the Standard Oil company practical control of New England territory and enabled it to maintain exorbitant prices for kerosene, yet while it is admitted that the New Haven road has recently begun to prorate, this alleged condition of control has not changed in any way, nor have the prices of kerosene been affected.

"The New England roads believe they can make more money by a refusal to prorate and if in so doing they are violating the proprieties, clearly they and not the Standard Oil company should be made the object of attack.

Then as to Rebates.

"The commissioner is peculiarly unfortunate on the subject of 'rebates.' The public will take his word that he made an exhaustive examination, and yet withal he says that with one or two exceptions the investigations of the bureau have as yet discovered no rebates in the technical sense of interstate business. These exceptions were on business wholly within the state of California, which, of course, neither Mr. Garfield's bureau nor the interstate commerce commission has any jurisdiction. But in those cases the alleged rebates were fully explained to Garfield, and involved no turpitude whatever. It was a new business on the Pacific coast, and before it had been systematized there were overcharges, not to the Standard Oil company alone, but to every one engaged in the enterprise, which overcharges were subsequently adjusted.

"He says the Standard Oil company has habitually received from the railroads and is now receiving 'secret' rates and other unjust and illegal discriminations. It is hardly fair or manly for him to add the sentence, 'Of course, there may be other secret rates which the bureau has not discovered.'

"In dealing with the discriminations which are alleged to be violations of the interstate commerce law the plain answer is that if Mr. Garfield's statement is correct it was the duty of the interstate commerce commission to have taken action and brought not alone the Standard Oil company but the railway companies involved to book, and this they have never done. Violations of the law in this respect do not fall within the jurisdiction of the bureau of corporations, and any statement on the part of Mr. Garfield respecting this subject is gratuitous and valueless.

"Again, he has no control whatever over state rates, which by the law are put under the jurisdiction of the state authorities, and over which the bureau of commerce nor the interstate commerce commission has any control.

Denies Secret Rebates.

"But, all of this aside, there have been no secret rates or unlawful discriminations in the interest of the Standard Oil company. Take the case of rate from Whiting to East St. Louis, upon which he lays so much stress. While discussing it at great length as an important 'find' he qualifies and explains it all by the statement that Whiting was a suburb of Chicago, within the 'switching district' of that city, and that all freight rates from Whiting for many years had been the same as those from Chicago.

"This practice had obtained for twenty years and had applied to all kinds of merchandise, and to say that a rate that had been in use thus freely and openly for that period by every one was a 'secret' rate is manifestly unfair. Moreover, our oil refinery is the only one at Whiting, or within 100 miles of it, so that the so-called discrimination clearly could not have worked any harm to any competitor shipping oil from Whiting or its vicinity.

Right to Lower Rates.

"Mr. Garfield's claim that by the use of low interstate rates the Standard Oil company gained an unfair advantage is equally unfortunate. At great expense we constructed pipe lines from the Pennsylvania and Ohio oil fields and from the Kansas and Indian territory fields to Whiting. If our competitors did not do the same thing, shall it be said that any one is unfair who does not give them the advantage of this enterprise of ours?

"It is quite true that having our oil at Whiting and desiring to transport it to points in the interior of Illinois we used the state rates. To say that a man in Ohio who had never expended a dollar for a pipe line to Whiting should be able to transport his oil to an inland town in Illinois over an all rail line at the same rates that we enjoyed by reason of our pipe lines must appear absurd to any one.

"Are we to have no advantage because we constructed these pipe lines? Is the amount invested and the interest on that investment to count for nothing?

"Take two men going to Boston, one uses an $8,000 automobile to go to New London, and there takes the train. Is he to have no advantage in rate from the man who leaves New York and travels all the way by rail?

"The case of a shipment from New York to Vermont of which mention is made is susceptible of like explanation.

"Respecting the use of private cars, of which Mr. Garfield makes much, it is only necessary to make answer in his own words. He says that owing to the relatively slow movement of tank cars in the petroleum oil trade, the mileage allowance of rental does not appear to result in an excessive profit to the private tank car owner.

No Rates Are Secret.

"It is asserted over and over again in the report that the Standard Oil company profits by 'secret' and 'unlawful' freight rates. Yet in the same connection it is admitted in the report that all of these rates are covered by tariffs filed with the interstate commerce commission precisely as the law provides, and therefore cannot be either 'secret' or 'unlawful.'

"The commissioner uses the curious phrase at one point in his report that, 'although a tariff or a rate has been filed with the [interstate] commission in compliance with the terms of the law, none but the favored shipper may know of its existence.' As the interstate law explicitly provides that every tariff of rates so filed must be posted at every freight station and open to the inspection of every shipper, it is hard to conceive of the commissioner's temerity in making such an utterance.

"The president's message complains of 'the way in which the law is evaded by treating as state commerce what is in reality merely a part of interstate commerce, although the forms of law may be complied with.' Yet this method of making a through rate by a combination of two separate state rates has been held to be by the interstate commerce commission as lawful and proper.

"The statement that the 'Standard Oil company has largely, by unfair and unlawful methods, crushed out home competition' is fully answered by the fact that home competition has always existed, is steadily growing, and that there are now at least 125 competitive refineries in the United States.

"As to the claim that changes in rates have been made since the commissioner's efficient work began all the Standard Oil company has to say is that any such changes have been made without its suggestion or effort.

Laugh at President's Grief.

"The grief which the president expresses in his message over the inability of the railroads to combine and protect themselves from the shippers probably will arouse amusement.

"The president says respecting this investigation that the facts are not in dispute, only the inferences are disputed. The Standard Oil company furnished the facts, and a man with a muck rake dug out such as, under his manipulation, he felt would prove damaging.

"The Standard Oil company has been investigated over and over again, at the instigation of its rivals, and it always welcomes such investigation when conducted in good faith and fairly. We are engaged in a large and honorable business. We are conducting it honorably, and, we sincerely believe, in conformity to law."

ROGERS ASHAMED OF INNOCENCE

Reported Comment of Oil Magnate After Figuring Alleged Rebates on Refined Oil.

New York, May 4.—[Special.]—This story was told in Wall street on good authority today:

President Roosevelt's message was read to Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company by his son, H. H. Rogers Jr. Young Rogers had just read that the company had been obtaining $750,000 a year through secret rebates on a total business of 23,000,000 barrels of refined oil, each barrel containing fifty gallons. This would figure out a great deal less than a mill a gallon.

"My dear Harry," remarked Mr. Rogers, "that is not even petit larceny, and I almost am ashamed of my innocence."

MURDER PUZZLES POLICE; WRONG DONE WOMAN CAUSE?

Killing of Rich Memphis Man Made More Mysterious by the Attitude of His Family.

Memphis, Tenn., May 4.—[Special.]—Twenty-four hours after the mysterious assassination of Walter T. Bowdre, a wealthy Memphis cotton man, the local police are as much at sea regarding the identity of his slayer as when they first reached the scene of the murder.

Bowdre was 65 years old and one of the best known citizens of Memphis. He was walking along Vance street a leading residence thoroughfare, at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night, when he was shot to death. A party of three white men is said to have been observed in the neighborhood some time prior to the shooting.

The family of the dead man and his friends insist the killing was the work of footpads. This theory is rejected by the police.

It is said tonight Bowdre had a number of affairs and that there are several skeletons in his family closet. All this is indignantly denied by his family. He is reported to have had trouble with a step daughter, since married, at the time of his wife's death. The police are seeking for every clew and bringing undreamed of scandals to light. They say they are hindered in their efforts to solve the mystery by the attitude assumed by the Bowdre family.

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE; DIVORCE.

After Turbulent Wedded Life Connecticut Woman Seeks Legal Separation from Husband.

Stamford, Conn., May 4.—[Special.]—It became known today Mrs. Antoinette Converse Morrill, a daughter of E. C. Converse, is about to institute proceedings for divorce from her husband, Walter C. Morrill of New York City.

The information was conveyed in an order of court, directing that the deposition of Isabella Burns, a nurse girl in Mrs. Morrill's employ, be taken for use in such suit. Miss Burns is seriously ill in New York.

Morrill was served with papers in New York City a few days ago in order that he might have an opportunity to examine the witness. Her death is expected before the case can come to trial. The order recalls the mysterious assault made on Mrs. Morrill Sept. 11, 1905, at her home in Greenwich by a masked intruder. The theory at that time was the intruder was seeking to kidnap her two children. The Morrills were married in 1900. It was a runaway match and the Converses objected strongly.

OIL INQUIRY HERE IS THE NEXT STEP.

Coming Session of Interstate Board Troubles Roads More than Garfield Report.

SAY NO LAWS ARE BROKEN

Railway Men Deny Paying Rebates and Assume Attitude of Injured Innocence.

Surprise and injured innocence were the attitudes assumed by railroad officials yesterday when they read the report of Commissioner Garfield, and saw how severe was his arraignment of them and of the Standard Oil company. Some of the officials contented themselves with a categorical denial of the charges, others attempted to explain away seeming violations of the law. All of them "pointed with pride" to the fact that Commissioner Garfield and his agents had been given every opportunity by the railroads to prosecute their investigations, and it was intimated that he had repaid them in poor coin.

What caused even more concern in the railroad offices than the publication of the Garfield report, was the simultaneous announcement of a hearing on the Standard Oil rate situation by the interstate commerce commission to be held here May 10. Although it had been known for some time that the commission intended to visit Chicago, the object of its coming has been concealed.

The railway officials were interested greatly to know who had been subpoenaed, especially among the oil men, but this matter is being kept secret by J. T. Marchand, special counsel for the commission.

Expect to Learn the Facts.

While this investigation has been carried on in the east to a certain extent it has been desultory up to the present, but careful preparations have been made for the hearing here which, it is believed, will develop facts of a startling nature.

In his report Mr. Garfield calls attention to the fact that many secret rates and rebates which doubtless exist have not been developed by the investigators of his department. To discover these will be the aim of the commission here. One of the men who has received a subpœna is M. Maxon, who for twenty-nine years was employed by the Standard Oil company, most of that time as a superintendent in Illinois.

That secret rebates were paid to the Standard Oil company on interstate business was absolutely denied by all the railroad officials.

Admits Standard Oil Dictation.

On the other hand, one of the most reliable traffic officials in the country stated, that owing to the immense traffic controlled by the Standard Oil company every railroad in the country is subject more or less to its dictation in the matter of making oil rates. What Mr. Garfield says about rates being made through collusion of the Standard Oil company and the railroads this traffic official substantiated.

One of the points which traffic officials brought out as vindicating any seeming preference in rates to the Standard Oil, when they would admit such preference at all, was that this company had an almost complete monopoly of the oil business in many districts, and that because it furnished traffic in such immense quantities, often by the train load, it was entitled to all the concessions it could get. These men seemed to think that a rate of 6 cents a hundred from Whiting to East St. Louis for the Standard Oil company, and a rate of 17 cents to the same destination from Toledo, for the independent refiners, although the distance is equal, is a fair adjustment, because the Standard company can furnish so many more cars to the railroads than the independent dealers can.

J. W. Blabon, freight traffic manager of the Alton, speaking for that road, relative to the charges in the Garfield report, said:

"The rate of 6 cents which we made to the Standard Oil company was not an interstate, but an intrastate rate, therefore was not necessarily filed with the interstate commerce commission. It is the rate that the published rate is 18 cents, and after I came here I found that we were issuing waybills on Standard Oil shipments at that rate, although our auditing department was collecting only 6 cents. Whiting takes the same rate as Chicago, but we do not consider that oil originating at Whiting and destined for East St. Louis is interstate business, because we do not receive it until it gets to Chappell, Ill., and it is billed from there."

Says Santa Fe Pays No Rebates.

For the Santa Fé, W. B. Jansen, who represents President Ripley in his absence, referred the matter to the traffic department. J. M. Gorman, freight traffic manager, said:

"Mr. Garfield refers to the Santa Fé when he says that rebates have been paid in California he is mistaken. The Santa Fé does not pay rebates to anybody, and, what is more, my knowledge of the Standard Oil company, which extends over a period since the passage of the anti-rebate law, leads me to make the assertion that that company would not accept a rebate. I do not believe that the investigation of the relations between the railroads and the Standard Oil company will produce a single case where an illegal rate has been made or an illegal rebate paid."

George H. Crosby, freight traffic manager of the Burlington, would only say that his road charged the Standard Oil only 6 cents from Whiting to East St. Louis, when the published rate is 18 cents, and that the Burlington does not file its interstate rates with the interstate commerce commission.

T. J. Harahan, vice president of the Illinois Central, was asked regarding the charge that his road, in connection with the Eastern Illinois and the Southern Railway, made a secret rate for the Standard Oil company from Whiting to Birmingham. He replied:

"I have not read the report. I have no knowledge of what the rates are to Birmingham without looking the matter up, but I will say that the Illinois Central does not make secret rates for the Standard Oil company or any other shipper."

As for the prosecutions which will follow this report, railroad men say they have no fear. They declare that the agents of the department of commerce have been aided in every way by the railroads in their work and they say that incriminating evidence has not been found.

WILL MUENTER GIVE UP?

REPORT THAT ACCUSED TUTOR IS WAITING IN CHICAGO.

Police Hear Rumor Concerning Harvard Man Wanted on Charge of Murdering Wife—Powder Found in Pocket to Be Analyzed by the City Chemists—Inquest Held in Secret by Cambridge, Mass., Judge and Results Not Announced.

Is Erich Muenter in hiding in Chicago and is he preparing to give himself up? These questions were brought yesterday before the Chicago police, who are trying to clear up the case of the Harvard tutor who is wanted on the charge of murdering his wife.

"I have heard these rumors," said Lieut. Rohan. "I simply give them for what they are worth. We have not yet located Miss Bertha Muenter. She probably is avoiding the police to escape annoyance."

Find a Powder in Pockets.

In the afternoon a new development in the mystery was the finding of a package of white powder in one of the pockets of an overcoat worn by Muenter when he came here from Boston for the funeral of his wife. The box was discovered by Eugene Krembs, a brother-in-law of Muenter. Suspecting that there might be arsenic in the powder he took the package to the health department. An analysis probably will be made this morning.

"At first my father thought he would analyze the mixture," said O. M. Krembs, another brother-in-law, "but later he came to the conclusion that it would be better for an outside party to conduct the examination. That is the reason for the delay in the analysis. The substance looks like salt. If it contains arsenic it may help to solve this mystery."

Inquest Held in Secret.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—[Special.]—The inquest into the death of Mrs. Leone K. Muenter was begun by Judge Almy in Cambridge this morning. It was held behind closed doors and City Solicitor Pevey, who was retained in the interest of the missing instructor, was not admitted. Nearly a score of witnesses were on hand, among them being Prof. William Whitney of Harvard, who discovered arsenic in Mrs. Muenter's body; Dr. McIntire and Dr. Frederick W. Taylor, who were called at different stages of Mrs. Muenter's illness.

Other witnesses were Mrs. Dora M. Nickerson of Winchester, a faith healer, who attended Mrs. Muenter; Miss Edith Chase, a nurse; Mrs. Mary C. Tales, who gave Mrs. Muenter absent treatment; Mrs. Bertha Derick of Cambridge, who took the two Muenter children to Chicago after their mother's death; Frederick E. Bryant, who lived in Muenter's suite; Undertaker George Long; Jerome D. Greene, private secretary to President Eliot of Harvard; Prof. Kuno Francke, head of the German department of Harvard, where Muenter was an instructor; Job O. Wait, also of the German department; Medical Examiner W. E. Swan of Cambridge and Thomas M. Durrell, who performed the autopsy, and Prof. Charles R. Sawyer of Harvard.

Find No Arsenic.

The police searched the Muenter house for arsenic, but found none there. Dr. McIntire was under examination for an hour. He was followed by Dr. Taylor, who was in the inquest room for half an hour. Frank E. Bryant was on the witness stand for an hour and twenty minutes and was followed by Mrs. Edith Chase, who was questioned for nearly an hour.

Judge Almy tonight adjourned the inquest without naming the day on which to resume. Attorney Sanderson said nothing new of consequence had been obtained.

RUMORS START RUN ON BANK.

Reports That Peoria Institution Had Lost in Business Transactions Cause Flurry Among Depositors.

Peoria, Ill., May 4.—[Special.]—Rumors that the Home Savings and State bank of Peoria had lost heavily in recent business transactions caused a run on that institution late this afternoon. Money now is on the way from Chicago, and the local banks have promised to help prepare for any trouble which may come tomorrow. The run was started by a rumor that the bank was connected with the Teis Smith & Co. bank in Pekin, which closed its doors three weeks ago. The officers of the bank deny any connection with that institution.

HOTEL LEADS TO DIVORCE

GREAT NORTHERN PROVES UNDOING OF MRS. ORA DANKS.

She Visits It with Clarence A. Tileston of New York Two Weeks Ago and Result Is Decree Awarded to Her Husband, a Department Manager for First National Bank—Man Driven from Home by a Boarder Wins Suit.

Because Mrs. Fred Franklin Danks, 4059 Grand boulevard, registered at the Great Northern hotel two weeks ago with Clarence A. Tileston of New York, Mr. Danks yesterday obtained a decree of divorce in Judge Walker's court.

The story of the meeting between Mrs. Danks and Tileston was told by Daniel H. Flynn, who testified in behalf of the complainant. Flynn said he and Tileston are acquainted and that he met the latter with Mrs. Danks at the Stratford hotel on April 20.

"Tileston took me to one side," said the witness, "and asked if I knew anything about the hotels in town. I told him I was not particularly familiar with them, and then he said that he and Mrs. Danks had occupied a room at the Great Northern hotel several days prior to that, and he asked if I thought it would be advisable for them to return to that place again. I suggested that he procure a valise.

Sees Them Register at Hotel.

"Well that evening I went to the Great Northern hotel, myself, and stood before the clerk's desk. Soon Tileston and Mrs. Danks came in and registered as 'A. C. Thurston and wife.' They did not see me, but took an elevator to the eighth floor. I followed and saw them enter one of the rooms together."

Mr. Danks, who is a department manager for the First National bank, told the court that his wife and Tileston became acquainted at the world's fair two years ago in St. Louis. Mr. Danks exhibited the following note, said to have been written by the defendant after the discovery of her love for Tileston:

"Dear Fred: I am going at last, and so will end torture both for you and me. I pray you will meet some one who will appreciate you more than I have, for we never could be reconciled again. I hope the future has much happiness for you. ORA."

Husband Driven Away by Boarder.

Isador Butkus obtained a divorce from Ludmeila Butkus in Judge Heard's court.

"We were happy," said Butkus, "until Frank Nakutis appeared at our home as a boarder. Finally I suggested it would be well for the boarder to leave."

"Did he go?" asked the court.

"No," replied the witness. "He took a big stick, which he handed my wife. Then she beat me until I was glad to leave."

Deserted by her husband, Mrs. Clair Keavin was granted a decree of divorce from John J. Keavin, said to be a wealthy merchant in Newton, Ill.

UNCLAD BODY FOUND IN LAKE.

Piece of Cloth Picked Up on Shore Causes Police to Think Drowned Woman Was a Nurse.

The body of a woman, apparently 35 years old, unclad with the exception of a black stocking and a black shoe of an expensive pattern, was found in the lake yesterday near the foot of Thorndale avenue by the police of the Summerdale station. No mark of violence could be found.

The police are of the opinion that the woman may have been a nurse, as a piece of cloth such as is used in making uniforms for hospital nurses was found on the shore near where the body was taken from the water.

The police records were examined, but no report was found of a missing woman whose description fits that of the body. The police think the body may have floated for some distance down the north shore.

Welcome to John G. Woolley.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Woolley, who have returned after a year's travel in New Zealand and the orient, will be the guests of the Central Prohibition alliance at its weekly dinner this afternoon at 1 o'clock, at Thompson's hotel, 131 Dearborn street. The dinner will be followed by an informal reception.

SHIPPERS URGE PRESIDENT TO ACT

Reform in Freight Rates Will Be Demanded by Organization.

HOLD A MEETING HERE.

Concessions by Railroads Part of Plan to Arbitrate Trade Difficulties.

A telegram was sent to President Roosevelt yesterday afternoon by the American Shippers' association. In it the shippers outlined their grievances against the railroads. The old organization, being temporary and for the purpose of fighting a form of bill of lading, did not give them sufficient scope to go after the railroads on the subject of rates that are too high.

The telegram to the president follows:

The American Shippers' association was permanently organized here today. Carriers fix their rates first and then notify the public that the rates are in force. When one party to a transaction can fix the price without regard to the rights of the one who must pay great oppression necessarily results. The advance in railroad rates has been extreme and burdensome. The shipper has been given no voice in the matter, and there has been no tribunal to correct the abuse. All the recent legislative agitation and court proceedings with reference to rebates has had the effect of largely increasing the profits of the railroads, but has not resulted in the slightest reduction of rates paid by the public, but, on the contrary, has increased their burden. Your persistent, fearless, manly, and independent fight, against strongly intrenched interests, for the right of the American shippers, which means every person in this country, commands the highest possible appreciation and indorsement, stronger than words can convey. Irrespective of all party ties, we congratulate you and all of the people whose cause and right you uphold in the pending railroad controversy.

AMERICAN SHIPPERS' ASSOCIATION.

Conkey Is President.

The organization was made permanent and the shippers will be in a position to hold an effective club over the roads whenever they have a grievance to take up with them. Permanent officers were elected as follows:

President—W. B. Conkey, Chicago.

Treasurer—W. L. Bibb, Chicago.

General counsel—Levy Mayer, Chicago.

Secretary—J. M. Glenn, Chicago.

The association is composed of shippers from all over the United States, and it is now planned to greatly enlarge its membership.

Bylaws Are Adopted.

"For many years the cost of transportation in this country has been steadily advancing," says the statement drawn up by the association. "This increase has been at times forcefully brought to the public's mind effected by the carriers, and then the public apprised of it. Compensation for the carriage of goods should, like all charges paid for service or property, be reasonable and just. In all transactions among merchants, the consideration paid is a matter of prior negotiation and discussion between the parties to the agreement. But freight rates are fixed by the carriers by arrangement among themselves and without consultation or negotiation with those who pay the freight.

"Like all other transactions in which there is only one party to fix the price, the result may lead to conditions that might prove excessive or oppressive and be at variance with the rules of equity and fairness that should govern all commercial transactions.

"To correct the tendency to such conditions by all legitimate and honorable methods, and to furnish an instrumentality by which differences that have grown up or may in the future develop may be promptly and effectively adjusted, and to protect and develop the business interests of shippers generally throughout the United States, and to bring them into closer trade relations, the American Shippers' association is formed."

Complaints to Bring Action.

Secretary Glenn gave this explanation of the way in which the association will operate to the benefit of shippers:

"When one of our members complains of the rates which any or all railroads are charging him his complaint will come to our office. As an association matter then it will be taken up with the railroads, and if negotiations we cannot secure the remedy desired the association will take the matter up in such manner as seems wise, either by litigation or to seek corrective legislation. We feel that the railroads will have some respect for the power of an organization like the American Shippers' association where they would totally ignore an individual shipper."

Mr. Conkey as chairman of the meeting presented statistics to show how rates have risen in the last few years, and how at the same time the cost of transportation to the railroad companies had decreased. The revenue per train mile has increased from $1.81 in 1895 to $2.42 in 1904. Published rates from St. Louis to the southwest are said to be higher now than in 1887.

Chicago Boys Held for Robbery.

Goshen, Ind., May 4.—John Welsh and John Smith, Chicago boys suspected of robbing the Millersburg postoffice Wednesday night, were captured here today. The boys drew their revolvers and resisted the officers, but were quickly overpowered. They now are in jail here.

BROWN THE COLOR.

A Departure from the Monotonous Black, Now Having a Run in the East.

The leading hatters are showing a lot of brown—Capper's windows, by the way, are full of them. They tell me the eastern trade has taken very kindly to the idea, and that Chicago is not slow to effect the change.

Well, to say the least, it's an agreeable change and a color becoming to most men. Messrs. Capper & Capper, of 45 and 47 Jackson boulevard, show them in both the Youmans at five dollars, as well as their own block at three.

PRIMARY BILL TOY OF INSURGENTS.

ELEVEN BACK TO FOLD.

Recalcitrants Are Likely to Be Good After Flirting with the Enemy.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 4.—[Special.]—After the republican house organization had been beaten all along the line today and when a direct primary bill was about to be sent to third reading with seventy-five votes behind it—lacking only one of enough to pass it—eleven of the insurgent republicans who had been helping the democrats hand out bad medicine to the organization, came back into the fold and the complete downfall was staved off.

By a vote of 76 to 71 the combination of insurgents and democrats defeated the organization attempt to lay the Dailey direct primary bill on the table.

By a vote of 81 to 64 the organization managed to put through a motion to postpone all further consideration until next Tuesday.

After a day of hard fighting the proposition stands just where it did last night. The Dailey bill still is pending as a substitute for the Shurtleff measure. An attempt to kill it has been defeated. If it retains the support it had today it would be sent to third reading on Tuesday.

Shurtleff Bill Safe?

If the eleven insurgents who voted with the organization on the proposition to postpone and thereby saved it from a complete defeat mean to stay in the fold, then the Shurtleff bill is safe.

The house organization declares that the backbone of the insurgent movement has been broken and that the eleven are back to stay and to vote for the republican measure. The leaders in the insurgent crowd say that the eleven came back merely to save Speaker Shurtleff from the humiliation of a complete defeat. The speaker says he is much obliged for this friendly consideration.

Whatever may be the intentions of the combination for next week, it certainly made direct primaries look like the real thing for awhile, and it is also certain that if the insurgents had stuck there would be a direct primary bill on third reading tonight. Its advocates had it where they could do what they wanted with it and then they dropped it. They had the power, but failed to use it.

Eleven Back to Fold.

The eleven who came back to support the organization at the time of its greatest need were: Drew, Fetzer, Gillespie of Carroll, Haines, Harris, Heinl, Lindly, McGuire, McHenry, Russell of Iroquois, Taggart.

The five republicans who still are consorting with the democrats are: Dailey, Magill, Raynolds, Allen, and Zinger.

Shanahan, who was in the chair during all sessions, gave a roll call on the Shurtleff motion to postpone consideration. He could have gaveled it through, and when the organization complacently submitted to the demand for a roll call the democrats, who had been sticking to the combination, knew that the republican majority had turned the trick in the interval between the morning and evening sessions, and that the bottom had dropped out of the combination, at least temporarily.

For the purpose of getting on its feet again after being defeated in the morning, the organization had gaveled through a motion for a seven hour recess, and, these seven hours were used to good purpose.

Trautmann Stirs Up Comerford.

The day's proceedings started where those last night left off—with talk. Differences came this time mostly from members of the republican house organization who seemed to think that by speeches they might change the minds of some of the insurgents. Speaker Shurtleff, who, as he had done the night before, gave the gavel to Shanahan of Cook, led off with a short statement of conditions and then offered a motion to lay the Dailey motion to substitute the insurgent bill for house bill No. 4 on the table.

He withdrew this motion when he saw other republicans wanted to talk. It wasn't more than half an hour before Trautmann had stepped on Comerford's toes and there was trouble. The former finished a speech when the latter arose to ask if he would answer a question.

Trautmann made a reply in the following impressive manner:

"This bill recognizes as political organizations all parties which poll 2 per cent of the total vote. That is put as the minimum which must be reached for recognition. I decline to answer any question of the gentleman from Cook because he does not represent any party capable of polling 2 per cent."

With this reference to the fact that Comerford was reelected after he had been expelled last session from the house on the independent ticket, Trautmann sat down and his victim got busy. He could not secure recognition from Shanahan for some time, but when he did it was with a point of order.

Two Per Cent vs. Two Pay Rolls.

"My point is," he said, when he had been given the floor, "that one man sitting on this floor is disqualified from holding a seat in the house. Trautmann of St. Clair county has no business in this general assembly. He is a federal pay roll patriot. I demand that he be refused the right to vote and that his name be stricken from the roll call. While he acts as chairman of the appropriations committee you endanger the appropriation bills which this legislature may pass. He is disqualified and any court in the land will tell you that no United States district attorney and no other federal officeholder can sit in the legislature. Yet I am subjected to the insults of this man who has no right to speak from the floor. I may not represent 2 per cent of the total vote, but at least I do not represent two pay rolls."

"If the gentleman from Cook wishes to protest the eligibility of any member sitting here he knows he should file a protest in writing that it may be referred to the proper committee," he ruled.

Thereupon Comerford started a clamor which lasted with short intervals of quiet for about half an hour, he demanding recognition on another point of order. Shanahan refused to recognize him and other members tried to howl him down, but finally he took the floor and talked against the uproar until he talked it down and Shanahan subsided helplessly and gave him the floor without recognition.

Will Test Point in Courts.

Thus established in his rights by virtue of his good, strong lungs, Comerford turned himself loose. He referred to Shanahan as the product of the stockyards and, therefore, a thing from which courtesy was not to be expected. He told the howling members of the house that their treatment of him was on a par with the contemptible manner in which they did everything. Then he grabbed a copy of the constitution and read the section which bars out federal officeholders and offered to cite authorities innumerable. When he had quieted again Shanahan attempted to proceed with the business of the house. This brought a recurrence of the uproar.

"I promise you," yelled Comerford, "I will take this question into the courts. I will attack the validity of bills with which this man Trautmann has been concerned. I insist on my point of order."

"If the gentleman from Cook thinks that by continuing this disorder," remarked Shanahan, "he can secure some notoriety by forcing me to have him ejected from his seat and from the house he is mistaken. The chair will not give him this opportunity. I wish to state to the gentleman from Cook that he has been recognized once with his point of order and it has been ruled the point is not well taken. I wish to state further that the chair has been severely criticised by members from both sides of the house for recognizing the gentleman from Cook yesterday. The gentleman will not be allowed to gain any further notoriety with the aid of the chair."

Grein Defends Mayor Dunne.

All during this uproar Joe Grein, city sealer in Mayor Dunne's administration, had been standing on his feet waiting for a chance to talk.

"I apologize for this disorder," said Shanahan, turning to him and giving him the floor. Comerford seemed to realise he was up against it, and subsided. Grein's purpose on the floor turned out to be to defend Mayor Dunne against the attacks made on him by Phillips of Ford county. The latter is a large sized man, but Grein told him that if he had as much sincerity in his whole big body as Mayor Dunne had in his little finger he would not be advocating a primary bill not satisfactory to the people.

When the mayor had been properly defended Shurtleff laid a trap for Grein, just for the fun of seeing him wiggle. He asked the city sealer if he believed in a representative form of government and the enactment of laws by the legislature, or if he believed they should be enacted by the people by initiative and referendum.

If Grein had said he believed in a representative form of government Shurtleff would have pointed out that the same little ballot by which the people declared in 1904 for a direct primary also committed them as strongly to the initiative and referendum, and that he, as representative of the plain people, was obeying them in one particular but denying them their demand for the initiative and referendum.

If Grein said he did not believe in representative government he would have been asked why he, as a member of the general assembly, had allowed two years to go by without attempting to see that legislation carrying out this will of the people had been enacted.

City Sealer Bars Gavel Rule.

While democrats near Grein were endeavoring to whisper explanations as to what initiative and referendum were he was floundering and sidestepping. Finally, after many efforts, he managed to say that he believed in both, "but not the kind of representative government you gavel into us here."

This last remark let him out and Shurtleff had to sit down without pinning the elusive city sealer down on a direct confession of faith as to how far the will of the plain people should be obeyed and just when it was not to be followed.

Various and sundry were the allusions to the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, which came to a climax when Phillips called him the Rev. William Garrison Juggling Jones, admitting that he might have tripped somewhere in the course of a name.

This flippancy of Mr. Phillips brought down on him the wrath of Representative Charles Allen, who spoke with such reverence of the ministerial profession as exemplified by Mr. Jones and with such scorn of scoffers like Phillips that his remarks were equivalent to a missionary threat.

Finally, with the speechmakers exhausted, a call of the roll was demanded and it was started. It was made evident immediately that Dailey and Magill were delivering a large portion of the insurgents and that the democrats were making good as sincere well wishers of direct primaries.

Vote 71 to 70.

When Shurtleff's name was reached, last on the call, the vote was a tie. He made it seventy-one to table and seventy against. If the announcement had been made at once there would have been no more trouble with that bill, but Shanahan hesitated for several moments and the clerk added up the yeas and nays again.

During this interim Branen, democrat, who had been outside, came in and set up a yell to have his vote recorded. This would have made a tie and there were coming into the hall at that moment Walsh, Geshkewich, and McDonough, all democrats.

With these reinforcements the democrats began to clamor for a call of absentees and in this turmoil Shurtleff arose with a motion to take a recess until 8 o'clock. The democrats and insurgent republicans made considerable noise, demanding a roll call, but Shanahan declared the motion passed, and thus, with the result of the roll call not announced, the house adjourned.

Telegrams were sent at once by the republican organization to Clettenberg and Mabry, who were in Chicago, asking them to return on the afternoon of today. The democrats sent a similar message to Craig of Mattoon, who was not present. The insurgents have been successful in delivering the following republicans:

Allen.	Lindly.
Dailey.	Magill.
Drew.	McGuire.
Fetzer.	McHenry.
Gillespie of Carroll.	Reynolds.
Haines.	Russell of Iroquois.
Harris.	Taggart.
Heinl.	Zinger.

Vote on Motion to Table.

The three prohibitionists and the two socialists also voted against tabling the Dailey bill.

When the house met at 8:40 o'clock the democrats had five additional votes ready to be cast against the motion to table the Dailey bill, and a chance was given them at once. Shanahan resuming the gavel where the sudden adjournment had cut it off and calling for absentees. This brought Arrand, Geshkewich, Gillespie of Cook, McDonough, and Walsh, giving the insurgents and democrats 76 to the republican organization's 71, and the motion to table was lost.

Roll call on this motion was as follows:

The logical thing to them was to substitute the Dailey bill for the Shurtleff measure and shove it to second reading, the combined forces of democrats and insurgents having the votes to do it with. Then the eleven insurgents switched and voted with Shurtleff on the proposition to postpone all further consideration until next Tuesday.

NEW PRIMARY TRAP IS FEARED.

Socialists Expected to Attack Law as Soon as Passed—Will Hold Party Election.

There was a suspicion in political circles yesterday that trouble for any new primary law was being hatched at the socialist headquarters at 163 Randolph street. The socialists are expert on knocking out primary laws. They have done it before. Charles L. Breckon, secretary of the Cook county committee, would not say what the party would do.

The socialists are going to hold their primaries to nominate officers for the fall election for county offices on May 26. It's a case of their rushing in where the republicans and democrats fear to tread. The republicans and democrats are waiting to hear from Springfield.

Chief Clerk Powell of the election commission said:

James Aloysius Quinn spoke like the Delphic oracle.

"The socialists," said he, "have laid in a large supply of embroidered overshoes—without heels. Watch 'em on this primary proposition."

MME. ANDREIEVA TALKS TO GIRLS.

BOLD SCHEME BY FORGER.

Attempts to Pass Warrant Raised from $3 to $359,000 on the Night and Day Bank.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, May 4.

Mme. Andreieva Guest at Reception

Mme. Andreieva, the actress whom Maxim Gorky brought over from Russia and introduced as his wife, tonight was the center of an exclusive gathering at the home of Prof. John Dewey of Columbia university.

Prof. Dewey, who was one of the committee appointed to help Gorky raise funds for the Russians, planned a secret reception for Mme. Andreieva, and he selected his list with great care. He knew that some of the girls at Barnard college, who attend his classes at Columbia, were interested in the cause Gorky represents, and he thought it would be a good idea to ask them to his house to meet Mme. Andreieva. Besides twenty-five of the college girls, Prof. Dewey invited half a dozen other women whom he knew to be deeply interested in the plight of the Russians.

The reception was held at 8 o'clock, and the professor's home was filled. Mme. Andreieva was greeted enthusiastically. She gave a vigorous talk on Russian independence and spoke of the part being played by the women of her country.

"The time is bound to come," she declared, "when the oppressed people of Russia will rule the country. The women are fighting for independence as hard as the men. With true hearts and keen determination to win, the cause must succeed."

After the address the actress held a levee and spoke flatteringly of the charms of American women. She did not mention the unpleasantness her association with Gorky had occasioned here.

The French cruiser squadron which attended the John Paul Jones ceremonies at Annapolis, and which has been here for the last few days, sailed today.

Daring Attempt Made to Defraud Bank.

What appears to be a preposterous attempt to defraud the new Night and Day bank with a city warrant, raised from $3 to $359,000, was made early this morning. The police locked up in police headquarters tonight Harry L. Whaley of 205 West One Hundred and Second street, charging him with the forgery.

Whaley admitted to them, they say, that he had deposited the warrant, but said he did not know it had been raised.

A stocky built man, with iron gray hair, a dark suit, and a large jag rolled into the corridor of the banking house at 3 o'clock this morning. He said he wanted to deposit a check and draw on it. He then gravely handed Night Manager Wilmerding city warrant number 24,162, purporting to be for $359,000, and drawn on June 14, 1905, to H. L. Whaley and payable at the National City bank. The warrant was given by the controller's office for furnishing lubricating oil and drawn on the department of corrections account.

Wilmerding was suspicious. The sum looked large for lubricating oil and Wilmerding told the man to leave the warrant and call again later.

Mr. Wilmerding, in examining the warrant carefully, found a slight erasure and a place where the figure 5 had been substituted for 3. The controllers' office, after some searching, found that warrant 24,162 had been drawn to H. L. Whaley, but was for $3 and not for $359,000.

Keeper Badly Hurt by Mad Polar Bear.

Czar, the big polar bear of the Bronx zoo, attacked Fred Schlosser, the keeper of the bear den, this morning and half killed the keeper before the attendants got into the cage and beat him off with iron bars. Czar had been acting strangely for several days. Schlosser, with Tom Mulvihill, another keeper, went into the cage to clean it up. Czar, another polar bear, and a grizzly were above the men stretched on a pile of rocks. Mulvihill dropped a bunch of keys and the jingling noise seemed to irritate old Czar. He growled and dropped from the rocks on Schlosser before the keeper had time to ward him off.

The bear sank his teeth into Schlosser's right arm and worried him. Schlosser struggled to keep his feet and managed to jam his bar into the bear's mouth. Czar shoved the keeper into a pool in the den and rolled in after. Mulvihill managed to drag Schlosser out, but had to turn to beat off the other polar and the grizzly. Then Czar got to Schlosser again and bit him deeply in the right thigh.

Two keepers ran up and managed to beat Czar away from Schlosser. They then dragged Schlosser out unconscious. Mulvihill was bruised badly, but otherwise unhurt.

Thrice Agrees to Wed; as Often Backs Out.

Three times in a year and twice in a week Miss Hattie Webb, a public school teacher, has been on the point of marrying James H. Moffett, a young business man, only to back out at the last moment. Now they have disappeared and nobody who should know their whereabouts has had a word from them. It was on Tuesday last a Washington dispatch announced that Moffett, who had obtained a license in that city to wed Miss Webb on Monday evening, had returned it with the cynical indorsement:

"It takes a woman to change her mind. The license was not used."

Two other times their attempt to wed failed because of the woman's fickleness.

Leaves Jewelry in Baby Carriage; Robbed.

Mrs. Philip Schneider of 689 Melrose avenue, took her 6 months old baby out for an airing this afternoon and took with her, for safe keeping, all of her jewelry—four diamond rings, two pairs of earrings, and a diamond brooch—valued at $1,500.

Mrs. Schneider passed a penny theater on her walk and concluded to hear some phonograph music. She left the baby in its carriage at the door and tucked the handbag carefully away under the pillow. A thief happened along and took the bag and contents.

Hot Poker Game on the Baltic.

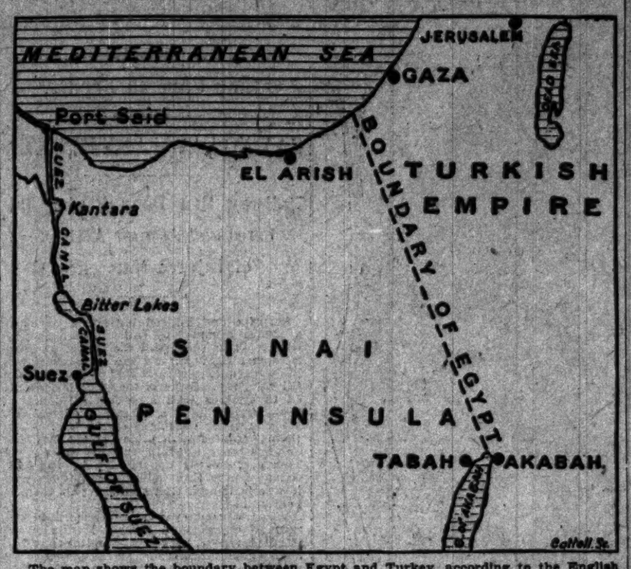

After the steamship Baltic docked today there was a rumor on the pier there had been a pretty stiff poker game during the voyage, and the name of W. P. Colvin of Pittsburg was mentioned. Colvin said that he, E. A. Cudahy Jr., and five others had played and that there wasn't any limit. Two Englishmen found the pace too swift and quit after Cudahy and Colvin had won several big pots. "They didn't have nerve enough to stand a bluff," Colvin explained. None of the players was a transatlantic card sharp.

STAND FALLS; MANY ARE HURT.

Accident at Athletic Meet at Astoria, Ill., Causes Numerous Broken Bones and Bruises.

Astoria, Ill., May 4.—[Special.]—At the annual athletic meet of the Fulton County High School association held today at Astoria part of the grand stand, seating about 2,000 persons, collapsed, injuring twenty-five or thirty people, none fatally. The injuries were chiefly broken bones and bruises.

Place of Dispute in Which Britain Has Sent an Ultimatum to Turkey.

The map shows the boundary between Egypt and Turkey, according to the English idea. Turkish troops to the number of 5,000 crossed the boundary and occupied Tabah. Great Britain has now given Turkey ten days to recall the troops, and is said to be preparing to use force if this ultimatum is ignored.

RUSS PARTY IN CAUCUS.

DEMOCRATS MEET TO DECIDE ON POLICY IN PARLIAMENT.

Two Hundred Members-Elect of the National Assembly Gather in St. Petersburg—Among the Number Are Sixty Peasants, Wearing Long Blue Blouses and Having the Smell of the Soil About Them—Program Will Be Formulated.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 4.—Enthusiasm and resolution marked the opening today of the convention of the constitutional democrats called to discuss the party's program and policy in parliament. Besides 200 members-elect of parliament belonging to the party there were present as spectators sixty peasant members, mostly simple peasants with weather beaten faces, wearing long, blue blouses and having the smell of earth about them.

It was evident at the outset from the temper of the speeches of the leaders that, while resolutely determined to secure the fruits of their victory at the polls and force the government eventually to yield a constitution along the lines which they demand, they will try to avoid an open conflict with the government as long as possible. Nevertheless there exists a minority which favors precipitation and courts an open rupture, the sooner the better.

Urged Not to Play at Politics.

Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, a descendant of the Ruriks, who is being held in reserve for the position of first liberal premier in case of a complete victory of the party, was chosen president amid rousing cheers. In a brief speech the prince urged the necessity for not playing politics, but for serious work.

Prof. Paul M. Milukoff, editor of the organ of the constitutional democrats, outlined the tactics of the party in a general way. The first necessity of the situation, he said, was that the members bury their individual differences and present a solid front. The country, especially the peasants, was expecting results. It would be a fatal error, therefore, to precipitate a conflict upon the government over a question the people could not understand.

There were two questions upon which the party could not flinch—an immediate general amnesty for political offenses and the abolition of the death penalty. There should also be a general parliamentary inquiry into the administration for the purpose of compelling the prosecution of officials who have been guilty of malfeasance in office and abuse of power. He considered the downfall of the Witte-Durnovo cabinet proof that the court camarilla wanted to avoid a fight.

In conclusion Prof. Milukoff said the first parliament would simply be a rehearsal for the real parliament which was bound to follow, and the work done behind the scenes would be more important than that done upon the stage.

Lays Down Campaign Program.

The professor in behalf of the central committee offered the following as the party's parliamentary program:

Legislative guarantees, the inviolability of the person, equality before the law, the introduction of secret, direct, and universal suffrage in national as well as in local elections, and the realization of agrarian reform as a just basis for the solution of the question of nationality.

M. Schwanebach, former minister of agriculture and controller of the empire in the new cabinet, who is Premier Goremykin's chief lieutenant, gave the following official note today:

"His majesty, the emperor, and the premier, M. Goremykin, have the full, honorable intention of carrying through the idea of national representation with all it implies. There is no intention of dissolving parliament. Naturally unforeseen circumstances may arise, as in any government, which might force such an unhappy event. But we do not anticipate such a misfortune, as the majority of the members of parliament are lovers of their country, and we do not believe that they are desirous of forcing a conflict."

Bomb Thrown in Warsaw.

WARSAW, May 4.—M. Proskuriakoff, chief of the traffic department of the Vistula railroad, was seriously wounded and A. Gutner, chief of another department, and an office servant were killed by a bomb this afternoon. As they were leaving the railroad offices a man threw the bomb at them, smashing their cab and seriously wounding the cabman and nine others.

EXPLAINS SECRECY IN WEDDING

Change of Astor-Shaw Plans Made to Foil Objections of Extreme Ritualist.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 5.—According to the Daily Mirror the reason for the secrecy observed regarding the time and place of the Astor-Shaw wedding was the fear that the notorious ritualist, Father Black, would make a scene by protesting against the marriage, as he has done on several occasions when divorced persons were remarried. Father Black told a Mirror reporter he certainly would have protested if secrecy had not deprived him of the opportunity.

AMERICAN STUDENT BRIGHTEST

Noted British Physicist Declares Undergraduates in This Country Show Greatest Mental Energy.

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., May 4.—Prof. Joseph John Thomson, the well known physicist, in an address here today declared that of all the students in the world, and he had had experience with most of them, the Americans showed the greatest energy and enthusiasm. This he attributed to the "fact that American universities have no courses comparable to the exhausting tripos of Cambridge," and the result was that the American preserved his freshness and enthusiasm, while the Englishman was intellectually tired.

SULTAN'S BLUFF IS CALLED

ENGLISH ULTIMATUM GIVES THE PORTE 10 DAYS TO CLIMB DOWN

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 4.—In an ultimatum presented to Turkey by the British ambassador today the sultan was given ten days in which to comply with the British demand for the withdrawal of his troops from Tabah and other points on the Sinai peninsula, pending the delimitation of the frontier by a commission.

The ultimatum constitutes Great Britain's last word on the encroachment of Turkey on the Sinai peninsula. The French and Russian ambassadors at Constantinople are supporting the British contentions.

Fleet to Bring Porte to Senses.

Should the ultimatum fail to have the desired effect a naval demonstration by the British Mediterranean fleet it is anticipated will quickly bring about the evacuation of the Tabah territory.

The source of the dispute over the Turko-Egyptian frontier lies in the porte's claim to the right of establishing military posts in any part of the Sinai peninsula, in which it includes the territory lying north of the line Akabah-Suez and south of the line El Arish-Suez.

Sultan's Claims Case of Bluff.

The reports that the Ottoman government has announced its intention of constructing railway forts between Akabah and Suez are denied in some quarters, but, if the above mentioned districts were ceded, the ultimate construction of such forts would be, it is believed, merely a matter of time.

The Ottoman claims were regarded as being in the nature of a bluff employed to prevent Egypt from insisting on the evacuation of Tabah and Gatah. It is worth noting that such native opinion as exists in the district involved, after displaying tranquil indifference in the early stages of the dispute, is showing signs of being influenced by the intrigues of the sultan's agents and the violent tirades of the nationalist press.

According to the Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Constantinople the sultan's only object in occupying Tabah was to secure control over the gulf of Akabah, a direct route from Syria to Hedjas and Yemen, enabling Turkish troops to move throughout the empire without leaving Turkish territory.

In return for full control of the gulf of Akabah, the correspondent adds, the sultan is ready to agree to the Egyptians establishing military posts in the Sinai peninsula at such places as would fully guarantee protection of the canal.

PARIS, May 4.—It is officially confirmed that France is supporting Great Britain's demand at Constantinople in connection with the Tabah incident. The influence of Italy and Russia also is given to Great Britain. The officials expect an adjustment without a serious Anglo-Turkish breach.

BOND CO. ASSETS OF LITTLE VALUE.

Only Unlisted Securities Discovered in Possession of American Reserve.

HIGH FINANCE IS FOUND.

Debenture Bonds of $800,000 Issued Without Guarantee of Payment of Their Face.

Further revelations of the condition of the assets of the American Reserve Bond company, and of the methods practiced by the officials, rendered bondholders almost hopeless of regaining any considerable portions of their investments yesterday. The most discouraging discovery was that in all the assets so far discovered by the receivership there are no listed securities.

Of $500,000 of capital stock of the bond company only about $227,000 has been paid up. Three promissory notes said to have been executed by Gibson, Greenwood & Elledge of St. Louis, and aggregating $500,000 in value, are looked upon by attorneys for the complainants in the receivership case as worthless. The 40,000 acres of land held by the company in Washington county, Mo., is not believed to be worth more than $100,000.

Another many operation in high finance is said to have been the issuance of $800,000 in debenture bonds, bonds which were to be worthless at the time of their maturity "unless enough money is on hand to pay their face value." No pro rata dividend was provided for.

Use Concern as "Dumping Place."

On top of these discoveries came the intimation that various financiers used the American Reserve Bond company as a dumping place for stocks and bonds to their personal advantage. Some of the men who are supposed to have carried on such operations were connected with the company for only a short time.

The marketable value of the unlisted securities is unknown.

It was intimated a suit may be started to test the validity of the contract of the Western Gas and Investment company. At a meeting of directors of the American Reserve Bond company held the day before the crash it is said a contract with the Western Gas and Investment company was annulled by a vote of three to two, with the result that $500,000 in securities was handed back to the gas and investment company and bonds of the Missouri land company reinstated.

Another legal clash is likely to occur when James C. Rogers, the receiver appointed by the Kentucky court, arrives in Chicago "to take charge."

Peoria Victims Are Here.

It is believed in Chicago that representatives of the company in Kentucky have been seeking to gain control of the assets themselves. Receiver Rogers and President Bowman are both believed to be on their way to Chicago. President Bowman is expected to arrive today. Attorney Kurz was informed that two men from Peoria, with investments of $5,000 each in the bond company, have come to Chicago to look after their interests.

The pay roll of the main office in the Chamber of Commerce building amounted to $9,000 a month. The president of the company is said to have received $12,000 a year. The vice presidents received $7,500 a year. C. H. Stoll of Lexington, Ky., known as "The father of the whisky trust," first received $12,000 a year for services as attorney, and later got a raise to $18,000 a year. It is said by agents of the company that railroad conductors and others received $10 a week for the mere exercise of their "influence" with their fellows.

Woman Loses Her Savings.

The offices in the Chamber of Commerce building were thronged with foreigners who learned of the receivership through papers printed in their own tongue yesterday. Mrs. K. Musest, 390 North Ashland avenue, borrowed carfare to come downtown. She made a pitiful appeal as she exhibited her deposit book showing she had paid in $240 in weekly deposits. Sympathetic persons "chipped in" and gave the weeping woman $2.50.

Members of the artists' colony in the Auditorium building, including Mrs. Evelyn Beachey, Mrs. Estelle W. McBride, Mrs. J. W. Burdette, and Mrs. Victorine Jenkins, invested in the bond company.

"The bond proposition was impossible, as anybody would have found out by figuring it up," said Attorney Andrew J. Hirschl. "The table of values printed on the back of a bond represented that anybody paying in $75 in weekly installments could expect $125 for his $75. At 5 per cent interest he would really be entitled to only $86, considering the fact that the term of investment for each dollar diminished with each succeeding installment. Even allowing for compounding interest does not materially help the argument of the bond company."

It was reported, but not confirmed, in St. Louis that several indictments had been voted against heads of the concern.

BUILDERS HOPE, BUT FULL OF FIGHT

UNION LESS BELLIGERENT

Ironworkers Inclined to Accept Employers' Offer; Push the Fight on Molders.

The employment of nonunion men to break the ironworkers' strike was discussed yesterday at the meeting of the Building Contractors' council and the probability is strike breakers will be working on buildings in Chicago within a week.

Both sides realize that the move will be virtually an open declaration of war and one that may precipitate a general building strike. The contractors showed their readiness for such a development by getting into communication with the National Erectors' association.

Walter Drew, secretary of this body, was present at the meeting in the afternoon and guaranteed unlimited support to the local employers. He urged the immediate establishment of employment bureaus and the hiring of nonunion men. The contractors, however, preferred to wait a few days in the hope that the striking ironworkers will accept their offer of arbitration.

Bridge Company Aggressive.

It was reported at the meeting that the American Bridge company will precipitate a fight on its own account next week by the employment of nonunion men on the extensions of the South Side Elevated road. The company was said to have served notice on Kelly & Atkinson, the subcontractors, that work must be begun on the elevated structure at once or the contract will be taken away.

Reports that the Thompson-Starrett company, the Joliet Bridge company, and other large firms had signed the union scale were denied.

The only gain reported by the union was the signing of R. E. Schmitz, who has the contract for the iron work on the addition to the Chicago Athletic club.

Strike Menaces Future Building.

William Grace, who holds the contract for the erection of the new county building, said the strike was a menace to future building enterprises in the city.

At the headquarters of the Associated Building Trades it was said the strike leaders were considering the acceptance of the arbitration offer held out by the contractors. Frank M. Ryan, president of the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' International union, was said to be an advocate of patching up the difficulty because of the numerous fights in which the union is engaged all over the country. It was said a committee with full power to act might be appointed at the union meeting this afternoon at 274 Madison street.

Foundry Men to Force Issue.

The National Founders' association took steps to break the strike of molders by opening up a national employment bureau in conjunction with the Employers' association. President Winslow of the founders denied the reports emanating from union headquarters to the effect that only 400 or 500 men now are on strike. Mr. Winslow declared that twenty big firms had refused to sign the union scale and that 600 men still are on strike. These places, he expects, will be filled in a few days.

Meanwhile the names of five more firms were posted on the bulletin boards of the strikers' offices.

Safe Moving Teamsters Strike.

One more strike was recorded during the day, that of the Safe and Machinery Moving Teamsters. The 200 men employed in this branch of the teaming business walked out because of the refusal of the Team Owners' association to grant the increased wage scale demanded by the men.

T. J. Cavanagh of the Chicago Team Owners' association employed men to take the places of some of the strikers during the afternoon. The strike was not authorized by the Teamsters' Joint council.

URGES ANTISEPTIC CURE FOR THE I. M. O. MICROBE.

Sidney C. Eastman Says Germ Is Identical with That of Socialism and Threatens to Undermine Institutions.

Sidney C. Eastman, United States referee in bankruptcy, put the I. M. O. microbe under the magnifying glass last night in a speech before the annual reunion of the Psi Upsilon Alumni association at the Grand Pacific hotel. He said it is identical with the dangerous germ known as socialism and would receive immediate antiseptic treatment.

"Socialism is the beginning of the downfall of our republican institutions," Mr. Eastman said, "and municipal ownership is the opening wedge of socialism. The advocates of the I. M. O. fad are idealists of a narrow gauge.

"Last fall I visited my old home in England. It was the first time I had visited that part of the world since a young man, and I was struck by the superiority of the educational and governmental conditions in England, Scotland, and even Holland, over those of our own country. Those conditions are put up as an I. M. O. argument, but improperly so, for we should not hope to entertain the municipal ownership idea until we have reached the plane of education and honesty that is prevalent in those countries.

"'Rotten' well describes the conditions of government in our city. Chicago today is the worst city in the world. Nowhere is there such danger from the robber and highwayman, not even in Constantinople or in Moscow—in darkest Russia."

Other speakers were Frederick W. Mehlhop, Walter Robbins, William B. McKenzie, and W. C. Holman.

HUNTERS SUE MAGAZINE CO.

Men on Hudson Bay Trip Declare They Failed to Get What They Bargained For.

Four suits against the Outing Magazine Publishing company and Frederick E. Scotford, an alleged agent for the firm, and each asking $500 damages, have been filed in the county court. The plaintiffs are A. J. Jago, Frank K. Jones, Dr. J. E. Moore, and H. C. Aldi. According to Attorney Harvey E. Wynkoop his clients took advantage of a hunting trip to the Hudson bay territory in Canada, alleged to have been conducted by the magazine company and Scotford, and their complaint is they did not get all they bargained for.

WOMAN'S "BODY" IS A DUMMY.

Excitement Follows Discovery in Prairie Avenue Flat Until Police Make Investigation.

A prostrate form that looked like the body of a woman was seen last evening in a vacant flat at 3200 Prairie avenue. There was much excitement until the police were called and made an investigation. The "body" then proved to be a dummy of straw dressed in a black skirt and a white waist. When the police arrived from the Stanton avenue station Mrs. M. O. Henderson, 218 Thirty-second street, had become hysterical. It is supposed the dummy was the work of practical jokers.

"STORM CLOUDS" by ALFRED JUERGENS.

Among the pictures which are attracting attention in the American water color and pastel exhibition now in progress at the Art Institute is "Storm Clouds," by Alfred Juergens of Chicago, a successful revival of the old Greek medium, "tempera," a mixture of pigments with the yolks of eggs instead of oil. The picture is that of two wind driven figures, a woman and child, against a threatening yellow sky, the effect being distinctly aided by the medium used, which allows the artist to use as deep colors as he chooses without losing any of the "atmospheric" effect. "Evening on the Desplaines" is another example. Juergens first studied the possibilities of "tempera" under Lenbach, in Munich. Except by Lenbach and one or two others its use is still comparatively rare.

MRS. DOWIE IS DEFIANT.

DECLARES VOLIVA CANNOT KEEP HER FROM SPEAKING.

Wife of First Apostle Says She Will Appear in Her Official Robes as Overseer of the Women of Zion and Deliver an Address from Tabernacle Platform Tomorrow—Smallpox Scare Causes Closing of the City Schools.

Violence in Shiloh tabernacle is threatened for tomorrow afternoon if Mrs. Jane Dowie attempts to speak from the platform, as she declared she would yesterday. Voliva said if she tried to interfere with the services he would have her ejected from the building.

In anticipation of trouble four more policemen were sworn in yesterday by Voliva. Mrs. Dowie received a committee of eight of the more earnest followers of the "First Apostle" in the afternoon at Shiloh house.

"We will escort you to the tabernacle," said Deacon W. P. Wainwright, their spokesman, "and will protect you with our lives if necessary."

"I said last night," declared Mrs. Dowie, firmly, "that I would speak from the platform, and I shall wear the robes of my office as overseer of the women of the church. Voliva cannot stop me."

Another exciting scene occurred last night in the tabernacle, where Voliva addressed an audience of 3,500 people. Hisses mingled with prayer when Deacon W. A. Eldridge, following a number of petitions for Voliva, asked divine blessing for Dowie.

"He is the leader of God's people. May he remain so," said the followers of Dowie, fervently.

"My man, that was a most unwise thing to say," Voliva observed.

Thereupon another supporter of Dowie jumped to his feet and shouted in a loud voice: "Long live the First Apostle!" Order was restored with difficulty.

Voliva, advised by V. V. Barnes and Overseer Brasefield, for the first time refrained from his violent verbal attacks on Dowie. He did not allude to the present trouble.

Zion City's junior and grammar schools have been closed. The general stores will be unable to run much longer. A smallpox scare has been added to the numerous troubles of the town. Dr. Speicher, health officer, said: "There are three cases, but they are all well in hand. All three are isolated in the pesthouse on the lake front, and there is no danger whatever."

MAYPOLE ASKS JURY INQUIRY INTO RUMORS OF VOTE FRAUD.

Alderman Is Involved in Charges of "Repeating" Made by His Opponent in Recent Election.

Ald. William T. Maypole of the Fourteenth ward applied to the state's attorney yesterday for a grand jury investigation of charges to the effect that a man named "J. W. Ewert" voted five times in his behalf at the last election. Mr. Maypole was elected by a plurality of only 37 votes. James H. Lawley, the republican candidate, made charges of fraud in a petition filed with the council, seeking a recount of the ballots. He said "Ewert" cast five votes for Maypole in the Thirty-fourth precinct of the ward, although his name is not on the registry of voters.

Ald. Maypole made an unsuccessful attempt to locate Ewert. He was unable to learn anything further than that the city directory gives 755 West Lake street as the address of the man. The address is in the precinct in which the alderman lives.

"If Mr. Lawley has any information of this kind it is his duty to bring it before the grand jury," said Ald. Maypole. "It is not a matter of politics, but of good citizenship, and if any man cast more than one ballot or cast a vote to which he was not entitled, whether it was for me or any one else, he ought to be punished."

MEN LEAD IN ELIGIBLE LIST.

Showing Made by Women Applicants for Civil Service Examiners Causes Comment in the City Hall.

Three men headed the eligible list for the position of examiners for the civil service office, which was posted yesterday in the city hall, although the majority of the applicants were women.

The fact that men received the highest marks was pointed out by William Rafferty, secretary of the commission, as an indication that men are more intelligent than women, but the young women in the office insisted it was only chance that the men were better represented in the markings than the women.

George B. Masslich, 1226 Lawndale avenue, heads the list with the mark of 87. Maurice C. Lipman, 4929 Forrestville avenue, comes next with 84.42, and Charles W. Lane, 1579 Kimball avenue, is third, with 84.28. The positions pay $75 a month.

Police Pension Trustee Appointed.

William J. Fortune, vice president of the Fortune Brewing company, was yesterday appointed by Mayor Dunne as a member of the police pension board, to take the place of E. E. Sunny. There are five members of the board, three of whom are appointed by the mayor.

O'LEARY'S PLACE IS RAIDED BY POLICE ON FALSE RUMOR.

Walls Are Smashed, but Detectives Find No Evidence of Gambling Devices in the Building.

Nine detectives, armed with axes, crowbars, and sledges, raided James O'Leary's saloon and bowling alleys at 4133 South Halsted street yesterday afternoon, despite O'Leary's repeated protests that he has retired from the gambling business, and the failure to uncover any evidence against him in the last dozen visits from detectives.

The detectives, in charge of Sergeant Cavanagh, entered the saloon at 3 o'clock and ascended the stairs to the bowling alleys on the second floor. Doors and a partition were smashed to gain entrance to O'Leary's office. Telephone and electric wires were cut, but no evidence of gambling or handbook connections was found.

"What's this wall here for?" asked Cavanagh.

The detectives disregarded this and continued to wield their sledges and demolish the wall until they encountered a dozen stoves stored in the next room.

"The police know I have retired," said O'Leary last night. "I have paid about $2,000 for repairs caused by their raids, but still they are after me. I would have given them access to my office through the door, but they would not let me open it. They preferred to smash it in. There is plenty of gambling in Hyde Park, and the police can find it without crowbars if they look for it," he added.

Just what influence has been wielded against O'Leary with the police has been a city hall mystery. Those acquainted with the situation connect the latest raid with the rumor that Inspector Hunt is to be retired shortly.

FAMILY IN ABJECT MISERY: MOVES EVEN A CONSTABLE.

Dennis O'Brien Refuses to Serve Writ of Ejectment—Instead Gets Doctor for Panetzkas, 1754 W. Indiana Street.

A distracted mother, six pale children, two of whom were ill with pneumonia, and a husband and father who was weak from the effects of recent illness, was a scene that met and defeated the strong arm of the law yesterday when Constable Dennis O'Brien of Justice Caverly's court called at the home of George P. Panetzka, 1754 West Indiana street, to serve an ejectment writ.

The rent, $8 a month, had not been paid for several months. The four roomed house is the property of James Kincade, a former Chicago contractor, who now lives in California.

"It was the third visit I had paid to the place," said Constable O'Brien, "each time going with the determination to perform my duty, fearing that unless I did, my bondsmen would be sued. When Mrs. Panetzka saw who her caller was yesterday she burst into tears, and told me all right, to go ahead. Some of the furniture was packed ready for moving. I stepped inside. In the cradle was a 6 months' old child that looked like death itself. Two other children were sick on blankets on the floor. I asked what their was to eat in the house and she pointed to some dry bread on the table. She said they had had no physician because their money was all gone. It was the most abject case I have seen in a long time. Did I put them out? I went and got a doctor. I made up my mind that I would lose my job before I would perform my duty in that case."

Patrick Lowney, 82 years old, crept into the basement of the stockyards police station in the evening. He said he had not tasted food for thirty hours. His four sons, he said, are employed in the stockyards, and his four daughters, all married, have homes of their own. Late in the evening one of his daughters, Mrs. Minnie Sullivan, 548 West Forty-third street, took her father home with her.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE OBJECTS TO THE SONG BUILT ON THIS PHRASE.

Proposal to Introduce It to Pupils Fought by Dr. E. C. Dudley, Who Says Chicago Is Alreadyw a Laughing Stock Everywhere Because of This Boast—Agreement Made to Have Miss Addams and Other Board Members Try the Ditty First.

With Miss Jane Addams as their leader, the members of the school management committee of the school board will sing a song called "I Will" at their next meeting for the purpose of determining whether or not it is too bumptious to be sung in the public schools.

Miss Addams, Dr. De Bey, and Mrs. Emmons Blaine will take the soprano parts, and Dr. E. C. Dudley, P. Shelly O'Ryan, Charles A. Plamondon, Charles O. Setliness, and John J. Haynes will attempt the alto. The committee was called upon to decide on the merits of the song by the receipt of an offer from a publisher to supply the schools without charge.

"I don't think we want it," declared Dr. Dudley. "I'm tired of Chicago's 'I Will.' We don't want any song with the words 'Chicago says I will' in the public schools. Chicago has gained the reputation of being the most bumptious city in the world, and this reputation has made the city a laughing stock everywhere. I move that the offer be not accepted."

"I think we ought to inspect the song before we reach a decision," ventured Miss Addams.

"I move," put in Trustee O'Ryan, "that the publishers be asked to send a copy to each member of the committee so that we may try it at the next meeting."

The motion was carried.

WOMAN IS SHOT BY HUSBAND DURING QUARREL AT HOME.

He Is Arrested, Together with Child Who Witnessed Shooting—Admits Firing on His Wife.

Mrs. Mamie Chapman, 42 years old, was shot and seriously wounded by her husband, Charles Chapman, aged 49, last evening in the yard at the rear of their home, 302 Campbell avenue. Chapman, a machinist, is locked up at the Warren avenue station pending a police investigation. Alice Cooke, 8 years old, an adopted daughter, is held as a witness.

According to the child Chapman came home intoxicated and quarreled with his wife. Mrs. Chapman left the house and was followed by her husband, who had taken a shotgun from his room. Chapman fired twice at Mrs. Chapman, it is alleged. She fell and was found unconscious by the police. Chapman ran into the house and hid. When the police arrived Mrs. Chapman was taken to the county hospital and Chapman arrested. Chapman admitted having fired the shots that wounded his wife. Neighbors informed the police Chapman and his wife had quarreled before.

What the Harrison street police believe will be the last murder of the old Custom House court "levee" developed when William F. King, 35 years old, a negro, died at the county hospital. King was stabbed Tuesday evening just after all the resorts of the "levee" had moved out in obedience to the orders of the police. Frank Foster, a peddler, is accused of having stabbed him.

TROLLEY CAR JUMPS TRACK; SIX PERSONS ARE INJURED.

Conductor Martin Christenson's Skull Is Fractured in Accident in Evanston and He Probably Will Die.

Six persons were injured, one probably fatally, when an electric car jumped the track late last night at a curve at Chicago avenue and Dempster street, Evanston.

The Injured.

Block, N., 1517 Sherman avenue; legs bruised.

Fitzsimmons, Mrs. S., 820 Ayers place, Evanston; bruised about the legs and arms.

Hobbs, Robert, 1504 Ashland avenue, Evanston; bruised.

Johnson, C. O., motorman; bruised about the body.

Motorman Johnson said the car was going north in Chicago avenue, and when it neared the Dempster street curve he attempted to slacken speed, but the brakes failed to operate. The car left the rails suddenly and ran 150 feet in Chicago avenue before stopping.

All the passengers were thrown into the aisle, and Conductor Christenson was thrown from the car. When found he was unconscious. He was taken to the Evanston hospital, where it is believed he will die.

WANT ROOSEVELT TO SETTLE STRIKE

READY TO FIGHT UNIONS.

Belligerent Spirit Is Shown at Convention of Bituminous Mine Owners.

President Roosevelt will be asked to take immediate steps to settle the coal strike or assume the responsibility of allowing the country to be plunged into one of the worst labor wars in its history.

This much was decided yesterday at the convention of the bituminous operators of Illinois. The coal men asserted they have reached the limit of negotiations with the miners. They propose now to carry their case to the president, and if he fails to act the operators are ready to fill the mines with nonunion men, establish the "open shop," and engage in a finish fight with the miners' union.

A delegation of operators from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and the southwestern states will visit the president in Washington within two weeks and ask him to intercede. Behind them will be aligned large manufacturers and other important coal consumers, who will join in the appeal by sending personal requests to Washington asking that every effort be made by the national executive to stop the strike.

Prepare to Wire Executive.

It is proposed to besiege the president with telegrams from all over the country. Every pressure from business sources will be brought to bear upon him to use his offices in forcing arbitration of the dispute upon the miners.

It will be represented to him that the prosperity of the nation is dependent upon the immediate settlement of the strike. He will be told the operators' offers to arbitrate have been spurned by the miners and that the coal men do not care to continue longer the peaceable suspension of mining by which they are losing millions of dollars. If the strike is to go on, the president will be informed, the mines will be opened by nonunion men and coal will be mined under armed protection.

Should they fail to influence the president the coal men propose to lay the matter before congress and seek to have the national legislative body appoint an investigating commission empowered to seize the mines in the name of the government and operate them with nonunion men.

Interstate Movement Is Planned.

Notices will be sent out today to operators of other states asking them to join in the movement. For the purpose of arranging for a concerted appeal to the president an interstate convention probably will be held next Wednesday at the Auditorium.

At this meeting it is planned to select a joint committee composed of seven operators from each state. This committee, cooperating with a similar one representing the coal producing states in the southwest, will proceed to Washington and formally demand that the government intercede.

Simultaneously the large consumers of soft coal throughout the country will take a part in the demand for arbitration of the strike. Their appeals are expected to reach the president about the same time the operators' committee is in conference with him.

Operators Show Fight Here.

The operators' meeting at the Auditorium was more belligerent than any held since the beginning of the strike. Reports that the union was calling out engineers, firemen, and pumpmen all over the state, thus leaving the properties exposed to destructive forces, did not tend to alleviate the bitterness.

When President Randolph Smith announced no reply had been received from John Mitchell relative to the last arbitration proposal of the operators the coal men became angry.

"Are the miners to run our business for us?" asked one operator. "It seems they pay no attention to our communications. We have been waiting upon them and submitting to them for several years, and it is about time we took an independent stand and asserted our rights as mine owners."

BOATS DEFY MARINE STRIKE.

Four Vessels Leave South Chicago with Nonunion Crews—Others Clear at Buffalo.

The first local strikebreakers appeared yesterday in the lake marine labor war. Four steamers, the I. W. Nicholas, the Chill, the H. Coulby, and the H. C. Frick, left the port of South Chicago with nonunion crews. Unskilled Hungarian laborers took the places of the striking firemen on the Nicholas and Chill. Owing to their inexperience, eight men were taken on each boat to handle fuel, where ordinarily three men do the work.

The Lake Carriers' association announced that the Luzon, the Panay, the Northern King, the Amasa Stone, and the W. H. Mack have left Buffalo since the strike was called.

At Duluth the Messaba ore docks probably will be shut down after Monday or Tuesday, according to the superintendent in charge. No mates have left their vessels at Conneaut, O.

P. J. Clark of the Lake Pilots' Protective association said forty-four boats belonging to the fleet of the Pittsburg Steamship company are idle in the ports at Buffalo, Cleveland, and South Chicago. The number was placed at three by an official of the company in a statement made on Thursday.

GORKY POSTPONES VISIT HERE.

Coming of Russian Author and Woman Who Travels as Wife Delayed by Illness.

Maxim Gorky and Mme. Andreieva, who travels as his wife, have postponed their visit to Chicago on account of the revolutionist author's illness.

Two meetings which he was to have addressed tomorrow under the auspices of the Industrial Workers of the World will be addressed by Ivan Narodny, whom Gorky induced to go to Chicago as a substitute. Narodny was minister of the interior in the short lived Baltic republic following the naval mutiny. He will speak at the West Side auditorium, Center avenue and West Taylor street, at 2 o'clock, and at North Side Turner hall at 3 o'clock.

Gorky and the actress now are in New York. It is believed by Chicago revolutionists that the pair will abandon their proposed tour of the United States in the interest of the Russian revolutionary movement. They say the publicity in connection with the actress has spoiled the program.

FAREWELL SERMON BY HIRSCH.

Pastor Severs Connection with Temple Israel and Will Make Six Months' Tour of Europe.

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Sinai temple, who for five years has filled also the pulpit of Temple Israel, Forty-fourth street and St. Lawrence avenue, gave his farewell address at the latter temple last night to a congregation that overflowed into the outer vestibule of the building.

He will start on May 28 on a six months' trip to Europe, his place at Temple Israel to be filled permanently by Rabbi Gerson C. Levi of Helena, Ark.

His sermon was in the nature of a personal valedictory with a general summing up of the teachings as to "Judaism, old and new," which he has given during his connection with the congregation.

Dr. Hirsch will preach in Sinai temple tomorrow, after which that pulpit will be occupied by various rabbis on Sundays until the end of this month, when the temple will be closed for the summer.

STRIKE UP TO MITCHELL.

MINERS' PRESIDENT IS IN CONTROL OF THE SITUATION.

Although the General Scale Committee Theoretically Is in Charge He Holds the Guiding Hand and May Turn Tide Either Way He Wishes —Chance of Settlement Still Small, Majority of the Delegates Favoring a Walkout.

Scranton, Pa., May 4.—The United Mineworkers' convention of delegates from the three anthracite districts, which has been considering the refusal of the operators to grant the miners' demands, will declare itself finally and definitely tomorrow. The entire situation now is believed to rest with President John Mitchell. Theoretically, it is in the hands of the general scale committee, but in reality Mr. Mitchell is the guiding spirit of that body.

The convention, at its session this afternoon, which was brief, decided to refer the entire question to the general scale committee of thirty-six with instructions to report recommendations to the convention tomorrow at 10 o'clock. The reference brought into the situation for the first time a possible suggestion of peace, though it is generally believed tonight that the majority of the delegates still favor the declaration of a strike.

Committee in Secret Session.

The general scale committee held a two hours' session this afternoon, when President Mitchell announced that the entire matter had been referred to the sub-committee and Secretary Treasurer W. B. Wilson of Indianapolis, who arrived in this city today. The sub-committee held an extended session tonight.

Mr. Mitchell said that the committee would submit resolutions and recommendations to the convention tomorrow, but further than that he would say nothing. He refused to make any statement concerning the sentiment prevailing in the convention today.

Committee Sums Up Situation.

The union will do one of three things tomorrow. These three points are succinctly set forth in the last paragraph of the scale committee general report, which was made to the convention at this morning's session, as follows:

"If it is true—and we believe it is—that the operators have made their final proposition, there is nothing left for us to do but to accept, for a period of three years, a renewal of the award of the anthracite coal strike commission or the conditional and restricted method of arbitration proposed by the operators, or to strike until we shall secure better conditions than are now offered by our employers."

Owners to Force Open Shop.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 4.—[Special.]—Bituminous coal operators, representing the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke company and all the leading firms supplying New York, Philadelphia, and the eastern market, held an executive session today. They will have nothing more to do with the miners' union henceforth and will insist upon an open shop.

In case the union miners continue upon the strike the operators decided they would go ahead and open their mines with nonunion labor. A system of notices was devised, addressed to the men, showing how much each company had collected for the miners' union during the last year, in the belief that the big sums named will make the striking miners demand strike benefits at once.

F. H Whitton was elected president of the operators' association and George F. Scott secretary.

CANDIDATE FOR SURVEYOR NOMINATED BY DEMOCRATS.

W. T. Feeney of Thirty-fourth Ward Named by Executive Committee—Vacancy Caused by Death of Graff.

Following the lead of the republicans the democrats yesterday nominated a candidate for county surveyor. The choice fell to William T. Feeney of the Thirty-fourth ward, who lives at 2111 Washington boulevard and is connected with the firm of Emil Rudolph & Co. He has no political record, it is said.

The nomination was made by the executive committee of the democratic central committee. At the same time John W. Whalen was nominated a candidate for constable to fill a vacancy on the Second ward ticket. He lives at 2022 Wabash avenue.

The republican candidate for the office of surveyor to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Surveyor Graff is Harry L. Emerson of the Thirteenth ward. The socialists will not nominate a candidate.

HEAVY STRAIN ON TRADERS' FIRE CO.

Enormous Losses in San Francisco May Force It to Suspend Business.

HOPE TO SURVIVE CRISIS.

[BY C. M. CARTWRIGHT.]

The fate of the Traders Insurance company, Chicago's largest and oldest fire company, will be decided today. It received a crushing blow in San Francisco, where, it is estimated, it has $3,000,000 or more in gross liability. The Traders was one of the leaders in San Francisco, it having more at risk in that city in proportion than in any other in the country. It stood eight among the insurance companies in the ill fated city, receiving about $60,000 in premiums last year.

Underwriters at once appreciated the embarrassment that confronted the company, but relied on the prominent financial men on its board of directors to meet any emergency. The directors were in almost continuous session yesterday and adjourned in the evening weary with the nervous strain of the day. In fact, ever since the fire, the board has met in daily session, often twice a day, to devise ways and means of financing the company through the crisis.

Alarm Is Caused by Rumor.

The company notified its local office on Thursday to accept no more business. When other offices endeavored to place risks with the Traders they were told the company had ceased writing. The news flashed through La Salle street agencies and created consternation. Rumors circulated through the insurance district in the morning that the company would apply for a receiver during the day. These reports were sent over stock exchange wires all over the country and were published in papers at various points as facts.

The agents of the company from Maine to California at once began besieging the company with telegrams and long distance telephone calls. Business in the local insurance agencies was practically at a standstill. Emissaries were dispatched to the general offices of the company in the Rector building to secure information, but found the board of directors in session wrestling with the problem before the company.

Heavy Losses Are Reported.

A day or so after the fire Secretary S. A. Rothermel and General Adjuster Louis A. Moore of the company went to San Francisco to look over the ground and get a line on the probable losses. Acting on telegrams received from these officials, the directors, after several meetings, authorized Assistant Secretary S. T. Collins to telegraph every agent of the company in the country that ample funds would be provided to pay losses promptly and enable it to remain in business. This restored the confidence of its agents and the insurance world to a large extent.

Secretary Rothermel returned from San Francisco on Monday and his reports as to losses were beyond the figures that were wired the company and on which the directors had based their action. Large stockholders were consulted and it was apparent that it would be difficult to arouse enough interest to raise funds to meet the liabilities.

Late Messages Are Conflicting.

A letter and telegram were received yesterday from General Adjuster Moore to the effect that the company's losses were not as large as estimated. His messages were conflicting, as the officers could not tell whether his figures were net losses or whether he had included the amount reinsured in other companies. Officials of the Western Union Telegraph company gave the Traders right of way over its wires to get in communication with Adjuster Moore, and, although two attempts were made to reach him, no advices had come at the close of business last evening, and the directors adjourned to meet this morning.

The situation hinges on the word that Adjuster Moore will communicate to his company. If the company finds its losses do not exceed $2,000,000, the directors will agree to make good and assess the stockholders. If the amount is far above that limit it is predicted that the company will retire.

Uneasiness in La Salle Street.

Insurance men generally agreed that if the losses of the company exceeded its capital and net surplus, $2,000,000, the company would confront legal obstacles in endeavoring to reinsure its business. The question arises if the company reinsures and the funds remaining are not sufficient to pay claimants, whether these claimants or a receiver, would not make a demand on the reinsuring company for the amount of money turned over.

The possibility of the Traders being forced into a receivership created almost a panic in La Salle street, as underwriters realize that the failure of the company would mean a general stampede and the failure of others or their reinsurance. The confidence of agents would be lost and companies' income shut off in case of those institutions that are known to be on the danger line.

Carries Large Local Risks.

The Traders writes a large local business, having more than $1,800,000 at risk in the district bounded by Lake Michigan, the Chicago river, and Harrison street. The veteran president of the company, T. J. Lefens, has aged perceptibly within the last two weeks and Secretary Rothermel is almost crushed with the blow.

Offers of assistance were made from various insurance men during the day, they being willing to help in bolstering up the company, knowing the calamity that would follow its retirement. However, as definite advices were not received as to its losses, the directors could offer nothing definite as to its financial condition. The hope was expressed by underwriters that some means will yet be devised by the directors to weather the storm.

The Traders is by far the largest company with home offices in this city. It was organized in 1865 and retired from business in 1870 by reinsuring its risks and paying 35 per cent to its stockholders. It was reorganized in 1872 and took over the business of the Packers and Provision Dealers' Insurance company of Chicago, which was forced to retire by the fire of 1871. Its first secretary was the late William E. Rollo. The late Robert J. Smith, former county commissioner, was elected secretary in 1874 and held that position until his death a few years ago.

Regarded as a Bankers' Company.

The Traders has always been regarded as a bankers' company. It has no insurance man on its board. Its officers are:

President—Thies J. Lefens.
Vice president—John J. Mitchell.
Secretary—S. A. Rothermel.
Assistant secretary—S. T. Collins.
Directors—E. Buckingham, C. L. Hutchinson, Ernest A. Hamill, J. J. Mitchell, T. J. Lefens, Abram Poole, William Dickinson, A. N. Young, and Clarence Buckingham.

The company operates in almost every state in the United States. It has department offices in Boston and New York. Gordon & Fraser are the Pacific coast managers.

The last financial statement of the company, as of Jan. 1, shows assets, $3,257,276; capital, $500,000; reinsurance reserve, $1,314,085; net surplus, $1,344,723. The net surplus at the present time is perhaps $1,500,000.

Probably Will Pay All Claims.

The reinsurance reserve of the company at the present time to protect existing policy holders is about $1,500,000. If it decides to reinsure, it probably can receive 25 per cent commission for the business, which, in addition to its capital and net surplus, $2,000,000, would give it $375,000 more with which to meet its losses. The total amount, therefore, left after reinsuring on a 25 per cent commission basis on the reserve, would be $2,375,000. A number of underwriters feel that it can pay all its losses with that sum of money.

San Francisco, Cal., May 4.—The San Francisco clearing house today received a report from its executive committee, which was adopted. A portion of the report read as follows:

"The committee feels that the business interests, as such, do not need charity to aid them in rebuilding the city. With $150,000,000 or more to be received from the insurance companies, the banks in a strong, solvent condition, bountiful harvests promised in the state, and general underlying business sound, any further financial help should be looked for only in strictly business principles.

"In other words, since the insurance indemnity will replace largely the destroyed buildings, as well as stocks of merchandise, and our banks are able to meet general commercial requirements, individuals or institutions who may come to find it necessary or expedient to apply to outside sources for loans, should do so as occasion may arise, on the usual basis or good security.

"We cannot rebuild in a day. We shall shortly have more money than can be immediately used; so it seems premature to assume that our resources will prove inadequate, and especially that the occasion demands the introduction of untried methods of finance which would be found to be illegal or otherwise impracticable."

May Stop Railroad Rates.

There has been no perceptible diminution in the number of persons applying for free transportation to points outside of the city and state, and, despite measures taken to prevent unworthy persons from profiting by the generosity of the railroads, it is believed that this privilege has been abused.

A passenger agent of one of the large roads said today that, in consequence, it is likely that the giving of free transportation to women and children and of half rates to certain class of men may be stopped at any time. The tickets thus far issued require that the holders must start for their destination before tomorrow night.

Greely Alarmed at Situation.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—The question of caring for the destitute in San Francisco is causing the officials there great anxiety as shown by the following telegram from Gen. Greely, dated yesterday and received at the war department over night:

"The number of destitute being fed is enormous, aggregating by today, as just reported, 191,637 in San Francisco. Apparently conservative estimates placed the destitute refugees at 40,000 in Oakland and Berkeley. How these terrible conditions are to be met is a subject of most earnest consideration between Devine, the finance committee, and myself. While the exertions of the army to reduce aid to the smallest possible limit has effected important changes, yet any solution of the situation without enormous suffering appears impossible. While I am daily hoping for great decreases in the number of destitute, I am not confident. The far reaching extent of this disaster cannot be appreciated without personal observation."

Soloists, Conductor, and Orchestra Give Their Services Free to Aid the San Francisco Sufferers.

Chicago's donation to the San Francisco relief fund was increased by $2,500 last night, that being the amount realized by the benefit concert given by the Apollo club in Orchestra hall. The money is to be handled by the Chicago Commercial association. The work of the soloists, conductor, and orchestra was donated, and the receipts of the box office were $2,200, to which nearly $300 in program advertising was added.

The receipts from the benefit baby show held in the afternoon have not been figured out.

Relief collections have begun to lag perceptibly, most of the activity consisting in pouring the minor funds into the general fund, of which David R. Forgan is the treasurer. A telegram was sent to E. P. Bicknell, representative of the relief committee in San Francisco, announcing that the Chicago committee had spent $150,000 out of a total of $531,000 collected.

The Red Cross association reported a gain of $3,801 yesterday, and the Chicago Commercial association a gain of $5,497. Among the contributions sent to the latter were:

Students and faculty, University of Chicago	$ 105
Employés Western Electric company	421
Chicago Turngemeinde	1,000
Employés "The Fair"	1,024

METHODISTS WILL REBUILD WRECKED FRISCO CHURCHES

Board of Bishops Planning to Raise $750,000 to Repair Ruin Wrought by the Earthquake and Fire.

A plan for the rebuilding of the Methodist churches in San Francisco was launched at the afternoon session of the board of bishops of the church, in conference at the First Methodist church of Evanston. A full statement of the damage to church property was listened to and a project of asking for contributions of $750,000 was considered. The matter will come up for further discussion today.

Dr. George B. Smyth, assistant missionary secretary of the Pacific coast, and Dr. W. S. Matthew, presiding elder of the San Francisco district, made the reports of conditions. Nine churches were destroyed, while twice that number were severely damaged.

Nearly all the bishops will occupy local pulpits tomorrow, several of them having agreed to deliver two sermons. The following is the list of churches in which they will speak:

SCHOOL TRUSTEES FLAY CONTRACTOR

J. C. Carrier's Bid Is Rejected and He Is Declared to Be Irresponsible.

COOLEY PLAN LAID OVER.

Tie Vote in Committee on His Substitute for Promotional Examinations.

The buildings and grounds committee of the board of education yesterday by unanimous vote refused to award a contract to J. C. Carrier, the painting contractor who made charges of graft against several employés of the school board a few weeks ago.

The board members made an effort to adopt a resolution to "blacklist" the contractor, but this motion was not put because of the declaration made by Chairman Fetzer that such action would be illegal.

Carrier was the lowest bidder for painting work in the new Bernard Moos school, offering to contract for the work for $2,240.

Bidder Called Irresponsible.

"I move that the Carrier bid be rejected," said Trustee Duddleston, "and that he be regarded as an irresponsible bidder and be not allowed to make any more bids for school work. He is not a legitimate bidder; he is not a responsible bidder."

Chairman Fetzer held that Mr. Duddleston's motion was not in order.

"Well, we don't want any more bids from that man," said Trustee Spiegel. "Let us throw his bid out and let him file a few more suits if he wants to."

The Carrier bid was thrown out and the contract was awarded to Edward S. Walter, the next lowest bidder, for $2,390.

After the meeting Architect Perkins said Carrier had failed to carry out his contracts at the McCormick elementary school and at the Lake high school.

Cooley's Plan Laid Over.

The committee took up the question of converting the present Hyde Park High school into a grammar school and erecting a new high school building across from the present site at a cost of $450,000. Action was deferred for one week.

The school management committee deadlocked by a tie vote on Supt. Cooley's substitute plan for the promotional examination system. The vote was:

Yeas—Dudley, Plamondon, Hays.
Nays—Miss Addams, Mrs. Blaine, Mr. O'Ryan.

The plan will come up for action again at the next meeting of the committee.

More Primary Schools Demanded.

The members of the board during the day supported Supt. Cooley's declaration that the overcrowding of the school rooms is wasteful of the lives and efforts of the pupils, and outlined plans to remedy the evil.

"I shall refuse to vote to build any more high schools or manual training centers," Trustee Spiegel said, "until the congestion in the graded schools is relieved. It would be better to close all the high schools and manual training schools than to allow the little children to be crowded into the school rooms as they now are."

Trustee Ritter declared that even the figures presented by the superintendent failed to reveal the true conditions in the schools.

"In many of the rooms there are from fifty-five to sixty children," he said, "and the average of forty-seven is caused by the small classes in the upper high school grades and in the kindergarten grades. The only way to remedy the evil is to compel every citizen of Chicago to pay his just and full share of the taxes."

Principal Bevans Exonerated.

Homer Bevans, principal of the La Salle school, who was charged with taking from the school glass doors which he believed had been abandoned, was freed from all blame by the report of the school management committee after hearing from a subcommittee appointed to investigate the case.

BOY DEFIES JUVENILE COURT.

Young Prisoner Declares He Will Escape from the Institution at Feehanville.

James McDonald, 10 years old, and small for his age, defied Judge Tuthill in the Juvenile court yesterday with the declaration it would do no good for the court to send him to the boys' institution at Fehanville, "for he would not stay there an hour."

"Do you mean to defy this court with such a statement?" said Judge Tuthill.

The boy, weeping, answered that he meant just what he said.

"You will stay there," replied Judge Tuthill, "and I want the Feehanville authorities to see that you do."

Charles Bleske, 15 years old, who stole $185 of his parents' savings, was given another chance by Judge Tuthill on the ground that he immediately obtain work and pay back to his parents what he took.

MONEY IS MOVING BETTER

RECOVERING FROM THE STRAIN CAUSED BY FRISCO DISASTER.

Dun's Review of Trade Says There Is No Diminution in New Demands for Future Execution and Current Consumption Maintains Its High Level—Failures Reported Exceed Those of Last Week—Main Industries Making Good Progress.

Dun's Review, published by R. G. Dun & Co., will say today in regard to trade conditions:

"Labor troubles and a relatively large number of commercial defaults are the unfavorable developments of the week. Against these there is no diminution in new demands for future execution, while current consumption is seen to maintain its high level and money movements have turned for the better after the strain of heavy withdrawals from local bank deposits for San Francisco's account.

"Notwithstanding the interruption due to the strikes, confidence in the business outlook has not been lessened and the main industries make good progress. More support is furnished by liberal buying of pig iron and finished steel.

Factory Demands Continue Good.

Hides and leather acquired further firmness in prices and more placing of orders for fall goods adds to activity at footwear, harness, and belting factories.

Board of trade dealings, in view of the May deliveries, indicated a steady tone in the principal grains.

Bank clearings, $236,890,854, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1905 by 5.8 per cent. Dividend payments were of large aggregate and added to the supply of loanable funds, but the discount rate for choice commercial paper was unchanged at 5½ per cent.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 33, against 29 last week and 15 a year ago.

Strikes Menace to Industry.

New York, May 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say: The violent decline in prices of securities is no criterion of business conditions. Railway earnings have continued to surpass those of the corresponding period in any previous year, the gain for April being 9.8 per cent over the same month of 1905, and other standards of measurement make equally gratifying exhibits. The only drawbacks regarding the future are the labor controversies and the stringency in the money market, neither of which may prove of more than temporary duration.

Manufacturing plants report little idle machinery, and trade in seasonable merchandise feels the impetus of settled weather. Foreign commerce for the last week shows gains of $1,909,972 in exports and $2,943,729 in imports, as compared with the same week last year.

Of greatest importance to the iron and steel industry of all the events of the last week was the strike of longshoremen on the lake water front. If this struggle is not promptly settled it will soon become impossible to maintain pig iron production at the highest point on record.

Great Trade and Building Boom.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Reports of active retail and jobbing trade, of immense, in fact unprecedented building operations, and of really excellent crops, furnish a sharp contrast to the weakness of the country's central markets for securities. This latter reflects liquidation due to past excesses by a comparatively small number of operators, not apparently, as in some past years, generally shared in by the public at large. Continued favorable weather has allowed good progress in planting, the germination of crops, the enlargement of country retail trade, improved reorders for summer goods, and the placing with confidence of a volume of fall orders fully equal to a year ago. Collections also have measurably improved. Easier money for legitimate business needs is likewise foreshadowed. Railway earnings are large, clearings still make records of this season of the year, and call for replacement at San Francisco is a feature helpful to trade in many lines.

Bank Clearings for Week.

The following table, compiled by Bradstreet, shows the bank clearings at the principal cities for the week ended May 3, with the percentage of increase and decrease as compared with the corresponding week last year:

One More Regal Difference

We never offer you "something just as good" in a Regal Store,—and we believe that can't be said of any other shoe-stores anywhere.

Two good reasons why we don't: First, it's bad business; second, there isn't any other shoe as good as the Regal except those made to order at more than double the Regal price.

—In style most especially. There simply isn't any other ready-to-try-on shoe that has one-half the style-value that's built into every Regal.

The others can't possibly have the same timeliness of style, for by the ordinary shoe-selling system the "Spring" shoes were built last Fall. The new-season Regals are never produced until the first of the fashionable new made-to-order designs are finished—and then we get perfect reproductions of these unquestionably correct new styles into all the Regal stores as fast as the great Regal factories can accomplish it.

FIND 'THE JUNGLE' 95 PER CENT LIES.

HE MAY BE PILLORIED.

Public Denunciation by Roosevelt Most Likely Sequel to Investigators' Report.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—[Special.]—It looks as if President Roosevelt had found in Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle," which describes awful conditions in Chicago packing houses, one of the men "with the muck rake."

The commission the president sent to Chicago to make an investigation into Sinclair's charges is now completing its report. It can be stated on excellent authority that the commission established the fact that 95 per cent of Sinclair's charges were without foundation. The remaining 5 per cent will be corrected by the packers, according to a promise they made to one of the president's commissioners.

The details of the report of the commission are being kept secret until the document has been presented to the president, and he has had an opportunity to determine upon the course he should pursue. What he will do has not yet developed. But, according to what he said at the time he ordered the investigation, which is known both by the packers and Mr. Sinclair, he intended to obtain legislative authority to eradicate the evils described by Sinclair if they existed, or publicly to denounce the author of the novel if the conditions were not as stated therein.

President to Pillory Author?

If the president adheres to his original intention, therefore, it may be expected, in view of the report the commission will submit, that Sinclair is in danger of being pilloried by the chief executive of the United States. At the same time it may be expected the president will send a message to congress in which he will recommend an extension of government inspection to all meats used in interstate and international commerce. In this way he will express his confidence in the government methods of inspection in vogue in Chicago.

There is no doubt whatever about the thoroughness of the investigation of the packing houses which was made by Messrs. Neil, commissioner of labor, and Reynolds, the tenement house expert, who were sent to Chicago by the president himself. Before these men began their inquiry a technical commission, consisting of Dr. John R. Mohler, head of the pathological bureau of the department of agriculture; Dr. R. P. Stedden, chief of the inspection division of the agricultural department; George B. McCabe, solicitor for the department; and Dr. U. G. Houck, traveling inspector, made an exhaustive investigation.

Every Serious Charge Untrue.

The investigators had been instructed carefully to read "The Jungle" and to look into every charge affecting the transformation of cattle into eatable meat. They reported they could not substantiate a single important charge. They admitted the possibility of packing house men and government inspectors conspiring to pass condemned meat, but they did not believe any such operation could continue long without discovery.

Some of the grewsome instances, such as a man falling into a vat, did occur in years past, but the man was not turned into lard as charged. He was killed, but his body had been gotten out promptly. The commission reported that some of the rooms were not as clean as they might have been and that more whitewash should have been employed.

Messrs. Neil and Reynolds practically have verified the report of the technical commission. The few additional facts they have brought to light are unpleasant, but not so serious as Mr. Sinclair alleged in his book and magazine articles. The lavatories for the men were found to be too near the room where meat is dressed and there were no facilities for washing their hands. No water for the use of the men was within 600 yards of any packing house. The packers have promised to correct this condition.

Meat Inspection Not Lax.

Mr. Sinclair placed special stress upon the way in which dead and condemned animals were gotten past inspectors and transformed into lard. Messrs. Neill and Reynolds concluded, after investigation, that there was no truth in his statements in this respect. These animals were conveyed to a factory near Chicago, where their fat was converted into axle grease and the remainder into fertilizer.

The inspectors were found to be high class men, intelligent and attentive to their duties. There was nothing to establish that they permitted passage of condemned meat or connived at that practice in any way. From all that can be learned they seem to have gotten a clean bill of health.

The effect of such a book as "The Jungle" was to create suspicion in the minds of every one who read it as to whether or not meat or any of the products of meat offered for sale was good. It was bound to hurt the industry less in the United States, to be sure, than abroad, because statements therein made were so unequivocal that they carried conviction.

Why President Investigated Book.

The president had no desire to advertise Sinclair or his book, but its publishers brought it to his attention and stated that here was a subject which demanded serious attention of the government. This representation would not have caused action had it not been that charges of inefficiency, dishonesty, and corruption were made against government inspectors whose duty it is to examine and tag meat prepared for export. If these charges were well founded the president concluded that he would clean out the inspection service and appoint men who would fulfill the duty intrusted to them.

As they have not been substantiated, there will be no dismissals or anything else.

It remains to be seen what comment President Roosevelt will make upon Sinclair and his book. It is an open secret that when he ordered his investigation it was with the intention of establishing clearly and definitely whether the writer was a mere sensationalist or a man who had conscientiously tried to obtain facts and put them in form in order that they might work good to the American people.

According to the findings which Messrs. Neill and Reynolds will submit, Sinclair evidently did not recall when writing his book that "the attack is of use only if it is absolutely truthful."

The proposal that legislation be enacted by which all meats used in interstate commerce shall be inspected by government officials will, it is believed, result in a better product reaching consumers. Under present conditions there is federal inspection to a certain extent, but it is not as comprehensive as officials believe to be desirable.

The packers are understood here to have started making the changes deemed desirable by the technical commission and Messrs. Neill and Reynolds. These changes are in the direction of greater sanitation and cleanliness, and to this extent only has the investigation resulted in good.

HOUSE CONSIDERS NAVAL BILL.

Burton of Ohio Speaks Against Enlargement—Wants Nation to Support International Arbitration.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—The house spent another day in consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the speeches in large measure being in support of the bill and the naval program therein outlined. Mr. Burton of Ohio delivered an address against what he termed the needless enlargement of the navy, contending that the American nation could well afford to serve notice upon the other nations that it stood for international arbitration and the peace of the world.

This jurisdiction is not limited in any way. From a layman's point of view, it would seem that if jurisdiction is not limited it is unlimited, and that hence, under the Allison amendment, the courts can take into consideration everything in connection with the reasonableness or unreasonableness of any rate fixed by the commission, whether that rate is actually confiscatory or not. It is for this reason, and because the jurisdiction conveyed is so vague it appears to be unreasonable, that railroad people believe they have won a signal victory, and have remodeled the Dolliver-Hepburn bill to suit themselves.

Test Case Will Determine.

With the president and Senator Aldrich each claiming a radical victory, it probably would be best for the average citizen to wait patiently until the courts themselves have decided how far the right of appeal has been extended and how far they are entitled to go in reviewing the actions of the interstate commerce commission. There is no possible doubt, however, that the Dolliver-Hepburn bill as it will be passed in the senate next week and accepted by the house shortly afterward, is a vast advance in the interest of the people upon the exisiting law.

When the interstate commerce law was passed, nearly twenty years ago, it was supposed the commission created by that law had the power to declare a rate unreasonable and fix a reasonable one to take its place. They exercised this right for a while, but for a short time only, and then the court decided that under the wording of the law the commission only could decide a rate to be unreasonable, but could not fix the reasonable one to take its place. That put an end to all real power on the part of the interstate commerce commission, because the railroads, after being beaten in the courts, could reduce their rates, as they frequently did, by a fraction of a cent and the whole case had to be fought over again.

Under the law if the commission finds that a particular rate is unreasonable, unfair, or "unremunerative" it goes a step further and fixes what it believes to be a fair rate. This rate will go into effect unless in the meanwhile the railroads succeed in convincing a Circuit court in the district where the railroad has its principal office that the commission has made a mistake, in which case the court first will suspend and then possibly reverse the action of the interstate commerce commission.

In all such cases the burden of proof, of course, is upon the railroad, and it is fair to assume, as President Roosevelt told many of his callers today, that the courts will not go out of their way to upset the action of the commission. On the contrary, the president believes that the courts generally will hold that the fixing of a rate by authority of an act of congress is an administrative function and that the courts will be slow to interfere with it except in cases where it is manifestly confiscatory. In such cases neither the president nor anyone else would desire the rate to stand, because all reasonable persons know that if the railroads are compelled to haul freight at less than cost they soon will go into bankruptcy.

Method of Procedure.

In the compromise finally agreed upon by the republican senators, there is, unfortunately, practically no actual protection for the consumer and none for the shipper in cases where the action of the commission is suspended pending appeal. The proposition of Senator Spooner which has been discussed favorably at the White house for a week, providing a railroad should pay into court cash deposits equivalent to the difference between the old rate and the new rate, pending judicial determination, apparently has been lost sight of. The same thing is true regarding the proposal of Senator Knox to require a railroad to file bonds to make good the difference. The result is that the procedure would be something like this:

First of all, a railroad fixes a rate, say on coal from Bloomington to Chicago. The shipper at Bloomington thinks he has been unfairly treated and appeals to the interstate commerce commission. The commission cites the railroad to appear, takes testimony, goes into the question of cost of transportation and similar matters, and then decides the rate is too high.

Thereupon the commission in the light of evidence it has gathered fixes a rate which it believes to be fairly remunerative to the railroad, but not more than fairly remunerative, and therefore just to the shipper. Then the railroad appeals to the Circuit court. It alleges the rate fixed by the commission is less than the actual cost of transportation or it produces so small a margin of profit that the railroad cannot continue in business on that basis.

Shipper and Railroad Factors.

Thereupon the court takes the matter under consideration. It has before it only two persons, the railroad and the shipper who made the original complaint, being represented in that case by the interstate commerce commission. The court has no means of knowing how many other prospective shippers are interested. To protect the railroad it suspends the rate fixed by the commission. To protect the individual shipper in that particular case it requires the railroad to give a bond providing it will pay that shipper the difference in rate if the action of the commission finally is sustained.

From a purely legal standpoint the rights of everybody interested in that particular suit are fully protected and there is, therefore, no reason why the court should hurry itself to decide the case, which may drag along, first in the Circuit court, then in the Supreme court of the United States, the whole subject matter being inquired into under the unlimited juriadiction provided in the Allison amendment.

Complaining Shipper Alone Benefits.

In the fullness of time the courts decide the commission was all right and the revised rate goes into effect. The shipper who made the complaint in the first place thereupon recovers from the railroad the difference in rate on his carload of coal, more or less, from Bloomington to Chicago. During the time between the fixing of the new rate by the commission and its final affirmation by the court there may have been thousands of men who shipped tens of thousands of tons of coal from Bloomington to Chicago. Every one of them paid the original rate. Every customer paid for his coal on a basis determined by the original freight rate, and absolutely no one gets a cent of benefit during all that period of time except the original complaining shipper, and his actual shipment may have been a small one.

It is easy enough to pick flaws in the Dolliver-Hepburn bill as it will go to the president within a few weeks, but no one can fail to recognize it is a vast advance upon the present law, and the victory, therefore, for President Roosevelt is a great one.

PONDER OVER TWO DANCE HALL LAWS

Council License Committee Members Get Hyde Park Men's Ordinance.

FORBIDS SALE OF LIQUOR.

Measure Provides Stringent Regulation of Balls and Shuts Out Bars.

Two ordinances to regulate the sale of liquor at dances are now before the subcommittee of the council license committee. The Hyde Park Protective association yesterday brought a measure before the aldermen which affects that proposed by the United German societies. The prohibitionist's measure called for stringent regulation of dances.

It was presented by Robert McMurdy, attorney for the association, to the subcommittee, consisting of Ald. Pringle, Scully, and Harkin. The principal provisions of the ordinance follow:

Owners of halls in which dances are held must secure amusement licenses.

No dance shall be held in any room from which there is direct communication with a saloon.

Sale of liquor prohibited in all halls to which public is admitted.

No liquor can be sold or given to any woman for an hour before and after the dance in the building in which the hall is.

Sale of liquor permitted at dances and entertainments attended only by members of organizations and their families.

Liquor not to be sold or given to women at these dances.

Farwell Opposed to All Liquor.

Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Hyde Park association, went further than the ordinance and argued against the sale of liquor at any dance.

"There are certainly enough places for a man to get liquor without selling it in dance halls," he said. "Where you have a dance and young people and liquor you are bound to have trouble. The saloon is bad enough but dance halls are worse. What might have been thought wise twenty-five years ago is not thought wise now. You may talk about drawing the line, but you must know where to draw it. You must draw the line right here and say that it is un-American, and not for equal rights to grant privileges to one and not another."

Chicago's Wickedness an Argument.

Chicago's wickedness in the eyes of the world was the argument used by the Rev. W. A. Waterman, who represented twenty-two different law and order organizations.

W. R. Michaelis, representing the United societies, took exception to some of the remarks of the Rev. Mr. Waterman.

"You will remember that in the bible it is stated that Christ turned water into wine at a wedding," he said. "I pray every night and every morning, and I am a member of the Lutheran church."

Ald. Pringle stopped the theological discussion, and Emil Mannhardt submitted a memorial from the German-American National alliance in favor of the bar permits. The committee decided to postpone the matter for another week.

The subcommittee was instructed to draft an ordinance to regulate the sale of liquor in drug stores.

Seek a Chop Suey Curb.

Chop suey restaurants may be closed at 1 o'clock if Corporation Counsel Lewis finds an amendment to the pending regulation ordinance proposed by Ald. Harkin is legal. It was decided to permit music in the chop suey places, but to limit it up to 12 o'clock. The ordinance will be introduced in the council Monday night.

City Hall Safe from Falling.

The city hall was declared safe for all practical purposes. The commission which has been examining it reported that while it would be wise to trim it on the outside so that no badly supported stones would fall on the heads of passers by and to take out mural ornaments inside which might fall, there was no danger of the building itself collapsing.

Drawing Teachers' Meeting Ends.

The annual conference of the Western Drawing and Manual Training association, which has been in session at the University of Chicago all week, closed yesterday with the following election of officers: President, Miss Florence E. Ellis, Grand Rapids, Mich.; vice president, Miss Lillian Cushman, University of Chicago; secretary, William P. Bawden, Normal, Ill.; treasurer, Lewis A. Bacon, Indianapolis. The meeting next year will be held in Cleveland, O.

BRIGGS STARTS LIFE ANEW

PROFITS BY EXPERIENCE UNDER SHADOW OF GALLOWS.

Man Sentenced to Hang for Murder and Acquitted on Second Trial Is Released from Prison — Standing Before a Bar in a Saloon He Makes Solemn Vow Never to Drink Intoxicating Liquor Again—Family Reunion Is Held.

Standing before the bar of a downtown saloon and grasping the hand of his aged father, Joseph, alias "Jocko," Briggs made a vow yesterday never to drink another drop of intoxicating liquor. The total abstinence vow of the man who had stood in the shadow of the gallows was made in a manner that bespoke a sincere desire on his part to live an upright life in the future.

Briggs was discharged from custody by order of Judge Ben M. Smith in the morning after four charges of robbery against him had been stricken from the court's docket. This removed the last charge against him on the criminal docket, and when the order for his release came Briggs was led downtown by his father and Attorney Robert E. Cantwell.

Object Lesson in Barroom.

"I feel awfully weak, and I think it would brace me up," he said.

"Well, if you feel that way let us all go in here," said Attorney Cantwell.

The three men entered a saloon and Briggs reiterated his desire for a glass of sherry wine. The bartender was about to serve the order when the attorney, taking his client and the latter's father by the arm, said:

"Do you see the rows of bottles there? Contents of bottles like those in front of you have brought many otherwise decent men to the gallows. Liquor placed the criminal's stain upon you, Joseph. You are barely out of prison, and the first thing you do is to call for a drink. You will take water hereafter if you take my advice as worth anything."

"Cantwell, I believe you are right," said Briggs. "I will try to do the right thing."

Pledge of Abstinence Given.

"Yes, and whenever you see intoxicating liquor just think of your wife and two little children, who have been deprived of your support for so long a time, and be manly enough to decline. I want you to promise that you will go to work and provide for your family as a husband and father should and to abstain from liquor forever."

"Yes, do it, Joe," pleaded the father, who lost one of his arms in the civil war.

"I promise," was the resolute answer of Briggs.

And the sherry wine was not served.

Briggs was convicted of the murder of Hans Petersen, a cigar dealer at Lake and Robey streets, and was sentenced to be hanged, but obtained a new trial and was acquitted. Then he was acquitted of a charge of robbery. Yesterday three other robbery charges against him were dismissed by the state's attorney.

ACCUSED OFFICIAL TO REPLY TO CHARGES OF EX-CONSUL.

Assistant Secretary of State Peirce Tells of Tiger Skin Incident Described by Dismissed Consul.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—[Special.]—Third Assistant Secretary of State Herbert H. D. Peirce today asked Representative Robert Adams of Pennsylvania, acting chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, for a hearing at which Mr. Peirce desires to make answer to the charges made against him before the committee yesterday by Robert McWade, formerly consul general at Canton, who was dismissed from service through charges made by Mr. Peirce.

Mr. McWade's accusations of yesterday, especially those concerning a tiger skin rug, which, he says, Mr. Peirce admired so much and so pointedly that Mr. McWade presented it to him, have excited much comment today in Washington. Mr. Peirce has returned the rug to Mr. McWade. Mr. McWade incidentally says that the rug is full of moth holes, but that the feature has not, and probably will not, be brought into the case officially.

Regarding the allegation of McWade that he practically had coerced him into giving him a tiger skin worth $500, Mr. Peirce said:

"While in Canton I bought a lot of Chinese tea tables and on these I desired the manufacturer to print my name in Chinese characters. I arranged with McWade to ship them to me. When I arrived in Washington I was surprised when I found a magnificent tiger skin packed with the tables. At first I was at the point of sending it back, but somehow it got cast into a storage room in the basement, where it has lain ever since till I was reminded of it by McWade's statement concerning it yesterday."

NEWSPAPERS FAIL TO PLEASE GROVER

Taking Them By and Large They're Poor, He Tells Magazine Publishers.

BUT HE FORGIVES THEM.

Ex-President Likes the "Muck Rake" Sheets Better; Gives Some Advice to Uplifters.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 4.—Former President Grover Cleveland was the principal guest tonight at the dinner given by the Periodical Publishers' Association of America. There was present a distinguished company of authors, artists, and publishers, and the ex-president was given a warm welcome when he rose to speak.

Mr. Cleveland, in speaking of daily newspapers and periodicals, said that under the present circumstances they should in scope and purpose be distinctly separated; that so long as newspapers keep the field they seem to have chosen nothing should tempt periodicals to follow them.

Vents Grouch on Newspapers.

Continuing he said: "We read the daily papers for the sake of gaining quick information and we sometimes wade through much that is unprofitably sensational, inexcusably false, grossly exaggerated, silly, and frivolous. All of us are willing to make due allowance for the haste and impossibilities of discrimination which result from the scramble and struggle for everything which has the complexion of fresh news.

"However, good or bad, I suppose we must abide the newspapers as they are. Perhaps, under the laws of their environment, the most of them do the best they can."

He then made a plea for conservative periodicals, saying: "We have fallen upon a time of such unrest and awakening that a disposition to tear down and uproot seems to prevail on every side. This has grown to be a manifestation of intense resentment on the part of our people.

Gives Advice to "Muck Rakers."

"I believe there is a danger that stands opposite this passionate temper that should be carefully watched. I refer to our liability to forget, in the heat of our righteous indignation, that whatever may be pulled down or uprooted something better must be put in its place. We cannot act safely or hope for reformatory result unless we look beyond the confusing rubbish and unsightly waste of demolishing activity.

"In any view of the situation which confronts us there should be a powerful constructive force to balance the impetuosity and check the recklessness which are apt to grow out of the exciting havoc of overturning. This constructive force should be found, if nowhere else, in the steadiness, patriotism, and outspoken courage of our periodicals."

SAVED BABY LYON'S LIFE

MOTHER PRAISES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our baby had that dreadful complaint, Infantile Eczema, which afflicted him for several months, commencing at the top of his head, and at last covering his whole body. His sufferings were untold and constant misery, in fact, there was nothing we would not have done to have given him relief. The family doctor seemed to be wholly incapable of coping with the case, and after various experiments of his, which resulted in no benefit to the child, we sent to Mazon, Ill., to a druggist and got a full set of the Cuticura Remedies and applied as per directions, and he began to improve immediately, and in about three or four days began to show a brighter spirit and really laughed, for the first time in a year. In about ninety days he was fully recovered, with the exception of a rough skin, which is gradually disappearing, and eventually will be replaced by a healthy one.

"Praise for the Cuticura Remedies has always been our greatest pleasure, and there is nothing too good that we could say in their favor, for they certainly saved our baby's life, for he was the most awful sight that I ever beheld, prior to the treatment of the Cuticura Remedies." (Mrs. Mastelle Lyon, 1826 Appleton Ave., Parsons, Kan., July 19, 1905.")

JUDICIAL INTEGRITY.

There is a reminder in Senator Tillman's arraignment of some of the federal judges of the good old Jeffersonian days when attacks upon the judiciary made one of the favorite pastimes of the average democratic-republican congressman. At best never popular with the state rights party, the judges frequently came in for attacks upon their personal integrity, being charged with drunkenness, with offensive partisanship, and with inability to decide questions fairly because of strong bias of temperament.

The senator says that there is nothing holy about a judge. That is one of the fundamental notions of democracy which asserts that no honor should ever attach to any office which does not rightly belong to the individual who holds it. It is true, nevertheless, that the judiciary in our system has been hedged about with a dignity which does not attach to any other branch of the government. The idea of the necessity of the supremacy of law almost insensibly carries with it the notion that those who administer the law should be persons of character and dignity, men each worthy of the high tribute which Daniel Webster paid to John Jay when he declared that the ermine touched nothing less pure than itself when it fell upon his shoulders. And there is no doubt that there is something repellant to the average American citizen in unworthy actions on the part of a judge, no matter what the bench occupied, whether national, state, or municipal.

It is fair to the bench to assert that in the main the judges have appreciated the dignity of their position and have reflected honor upon their branch of the government. The cases cited by the South Carolina senator, who seems to have the virtue of fearlessness, showing intoxication, partisanship, tyranny, or other malfeasance in office, are exceptions which prove the rule. The Supreme court may "wabble a little" occasionally, but, on the whole, its history has been an exceptionally honorable one. Some judges in the inferior courts may have been "not only not infallible but not incorruptible," and yet the general average of character has been high. It is probably true that "it is utterly absurd to say that the judges are higher creatures than other men." But it also is true that in no positions in public life has there been such an impelling motive to honor and dignity and fair-mindedness as in the judgeships. Senator Tillman's piquant attack will not have effect in lessening the appreciation of service of the judges or in lowering popular esteem for the courts, but may serve a useful purpose in calling attention once again to the dignity which should attend a position on the bench and in warning judges of the necessity of keeping themselves above that suspicion which might lead to any unpleasant reflections by "dirty newspaper reporters" or even by the intelligent and thoughtful writers who mold popular opinion through the columns of the press.

HEAR THE CASES PROMPTLY.

One day last March city employés removed most of the skids which obstructed travel on Michigan avenue, north of Randolph street. One man, seeing what was going on, hurried to a judge and got an order forbidding interference with his skids. In order that he might not enjoy special privileges other men doing business on the street were allowed to resume the old policy of obstruction until the courts had disposed of the matter.

The temporary injunction was granted two months ago, and in about three weeks arguments as to whether it shall be made permanent will be heard. After they have been concluded the judge will probably take the matter under advisement. How long it will remain there is beyond all conjecture. It may be a few days. It may be months.

Faulty methods of procedure make delays inevitable where private parties go to law. The controversy over the skids is not [illegible] between private parties. It is between [illegible] municipality, whose duty it is to maintain and enforce the rights of citizens in public streets, and certain persons calling themselves merchants and manufacturers who have been trespassing on the rights of the general public. Controversies of this kind should be heard and determined promptly. Judges should lay aside other business in order to settle them, instead of postponing action for months.

If the Michigan avenue case were an exceptional one it might pass unnoticed. Unfortunately it is not. The city authorities are frequently enjoined from enforcing legitimate ordinances or regulations. One day it is an automobilist who objects to speed regulations. Another day it is a property owner who dislikes a provision of the building ordinances. Months may go by before the authority of the municipality is sustained. It may be that the city law department does not press cases with sufficient vigor—does not go before the judge who has granted a temporary injunction and ask for an immediate hearing. Whether the department has been diligent or indiligent, judges should of their own motion give the preference to suits involving the rights of the general public and insist that they be argued without delay.

THE PRESIDENT AND STANDARD OIL.

President Roosevelt's message to congress and the accompanying report of Commissioner Garfield on the relations between the oil industry and transportation establish four facts.

First, the Standard Oil company has been receiving a direct illegal profit of $750,000 each year from rebates from railroad companies.

Second, the Standard Oil company has made far greater profits each year from the same illegal rebates through the consequent crushing of competition and the power to charge the consumer an unfair price.

Third, the only effective way to curb the Standard Oil company and other trusts, such as the sugar trust, which have profited by the illegal acts of the railroads, is to establish a thorough and rigid control of the railroads by the government analogous to that exercised over the national banks.

Fourth, an element of competition may be introduced by taking off the tax on alcohol when used as a heat and light producing agent, and also by the adoption of measures to prevent oil or coal lands belonging to the United States or the Indian tribes from falling into the possession of the greedy system.

This is the substance of the president's message. He transmits it to congress at a time when it may have an effect upon the consideration of the railway rate bill. Incidentally he expresses a desire to see the railway commission given powers which shall secure speedy results, subject only to such action by the courts "as is demanded by the constitution." The courts should not have power to review the decisions of the commission, he thinks, unless it shall take confiscatory action or otherwise overstep the bounds of its authority. The president admits that injustice will probably occur, but claims that greater injustice to the people would result from allowing the courts to delay or review the action of the commission.

After the railroad rate bill is out of the way and the appropriation bills have been disposed of congressmen will be eager to get away from Washington. There is not much prospect of immediate action on the recommendations of the president touching the oil trust unless it be the one relating to alcohol. The house has passed a bill which is in accord with the president's ideas. Unhappily it is in the hands of Senator Aldrich, who does not look on it favorably. Although exhaustive testimony was taken by a house committee and the desirability of the passage of the measure established, Senator Aldrich says his committee must hold hearings. He is for interminable delay.

But if congress does nothing at this session to curb the oil trust the president's message and Commissioner Garfield's report will go out to the people and will be studied by them. They will find in the report of the commissioner late and authentic information as to the methods of the trust. He gives facts, not surmises. He is not a sensational magazine writer but the compiler of an official report. Public exasperation over the Standard Oil company will be intensified and the pressure upon congress for effective legislation redoubled.

The president has a word to say about the sugar trust. It is not so generally odious as the oil trust. It has not been so offensive in its methods. But it has often exerted an unwholesome influence in congress. It has been able to extort favors from the national legislature as well as from the railroads. It is time that this great trust should be subjected to a searching examination.

THE "GENERAL STRIKE."

The "general strike" is the newest weapon in the arsenal of the men who are impatient to bring about the social revolution. The reasons why its advocates have faith in its efficacy have been stated by M. Jaurès, who is perhaps the ablest of the French socialists. He belongs to the less radical wing of the organization, and thinks the social revolution is more likely to come through a process of gradual evolution than through violence. He has no great sympathy with the theories of the men who wish to overthrow the existing social order in a few weeks, but he knows thoroughly what the theories are and states them as follows:

> They think that a general strike of the most important trades would be enough to bring on the social revolution; that is, the fall of the whole capitalistic system, and the establishment of democratic and proletarian communism. The economic life of the country would be suspended, the railroads would be deserted, the coal necessary for industry would remain buried underground; steamers could not even get into the docks, where no workmen would unload the merchandise. Everywhere there would be a stoppage in circulation and in production. Naturally great discomfort would result.
> The workers, in stopping exchange and production, would be starving themselves and would therefore be forced to adopt violent methods in order to live. They would seize food and other provisions wherever they could lay hands on them. The privileged classes, threatened alike in their persons and their possessions, would be shocked and frightened by the inevitable anger of the proletariat, whose time honored suffering would be intensified by the crisis of misery and hunger. Hence would come inevitable conflicts between the working class and the panic stricken guardians of the capitalist system.
> At the end of a few days, then, the general strike would become purely revolutionary in character. As the capitalist power would be scattered by the necessity of keeping watch over such a varied and widespread movement, as the army of repression would be scattered and submerged in the flood, the proletariat would be able to overcome the obstacle against which it had heretofore beat itself in vain, and, master of the social system at last, would install labor as sovereign.

The "general strike" was employed in Belgium thirteen years ago to secure universal suffrage. Though Belgium was a great workshop, the workers were practically disfranchised. There was a general suspension of labor to compel the government to give the ballot to the artisans. The government yielded and a fairer electoral system was put in operation. There could not have been a "general strike" under more favorable conditions. The object in view was not the overthrow of existing political institutions but their liberalization. Labor asked for nothing more than it was entitled to, and got it.

Conditions and results were different in Russia when the social revolutionists resorted to the "general strike" to subvert the government. Russia is an agricultural state, not an industrial one as Belgium is. The stoppage of factory work affected only a few cities. The paralysis of railroad and telegraph systems was general, and for a time it seemed as if the consequences might be serious. But while the government was weakened, it was stronger than the revolutionists. The men who had left the mills and factories discovered that they must have wages to get food. Their employers suffered, but they suffered more. One manifest result of the strike was to fill the professional men, the shopkeepers, and the whole middle class with intense indignation. It gave them a practical taste of revolutionary socialism and they want no more of it.

The "general strike" of which Paris was the theater this week was got up nominally as a demonstration for the eight hour day. If the authorities had not been on the alert it would have been turned into a demonstration in behalf of the social revolution. The authorities were resolute and the strike collapsed. All further attempts in the direction of social revolution will be a failure if the government does its duty.

There is one feature of the case which the socialists overlooked. It is that the "proletariat," as they call the city artisans, is nowhere in the majority. If there were to be a long continued "general strike," and discomfort and want should inflame the passions of the "proletariat," the "panic stricken guardians of the capitalist system" would not be the only bulwark against the social revolution. In the cities all who are between the "proletariat" and the capitalists, and in the country everybody, would be arrayed against that revolution. The "general strike" may lead to riot, bloodshed, and temporary local anarchy, but never to the overthrow of the existing social system.

THE REFORMERS EXAGGERATE.

A Chicago delegation appealed to the legislature on Wednesday on behalf of the "plain people" and direct primaries. The lawmakers were warned by one speaker that "the cry of the voters is for the abolishment of party machines and gang rule." Therefore, he pleaded for the passage of a law based on "scientific democracy, political economy, philosophy, and sociology." Another member of the delegation, who asked for a direct primary law and plurality nominations, said that he spoke for 150,000 Chicago workingmen.

If that number of workingmen were to take part in any kind of primary election they could carry it. The primary might be of the old fashioned kind where there used to be ballot box stuffing, repeating, and other forms of cheating, but there would be honest voting if 150,000 men were resolved to have it. If there were the directest kind of direct primaries 150,000 workingmen could not be lured to them.

If the "plain people," who constitute over 99 per cent of the voters, were in earnest about the "abolishment of party machines" they would not go on their knees to the legislature to pass a law to enable them to do it. They are not slaves. Their hands are not tied. They can smash a machine any time a number of them are inclined to do it. They have demonstrated their ability on numerous occasions when there was a worse primary law than there is now. It is absurd to speak of the voters as helpless creatures who cannot govern the parties to which they belong until the legislature shall have emancipated them. They can emancipate themselves whenever they please, but they do not take interest enough in the matter to do it.

It is possible to enact a better primary law than the present one, and it should be done, but the "plain people" are not losing any sleep while the legislature is muddling along. There is no reason why they should. Even if a law based on "scientific democracy, political economy," etc., were to be enacted, party machines would survive the shock, and the practical politician would not be deposed by the philosopher and the sociologist.

THE horse, of course, is a little slower than the cable, even on the Wabash avenue line, but it gets there eventually.

Awakened a Suspicion.

"I don't understand this traction question that everybody is talking about," said his wife. "What is there in it to make such a fuss over?"

"What is there in it?" echoed the alderman from the 'Steenth ward, eying her sharply. "Who told you there was anything in it? Has some muck raker been trying to work you for a little information?"

No Time for That.

Visitor—"I see you have spaded up your back yard. What are you going to plant there?"

Suburbanite—"I haven't decided yet, but it'll have to be something that will grow all right without needing any attention."

"Ah you people in this paht of the country interested in the spelling refawm?" asked the New England college professor.

"Sort o'," answered the wild westerner. "We believe you people ought to use the letter 'r' a little more than you do."

"It's like this," said the manager. "I have a new man I'm going to star next season. His name is Haggerty, but that would be a killing frost, you know, right at the start. What I want is a good stage name for him."

"Sometimes he is, and sometimes he's bum. He's got it in him, all right; but, to tell the truth about him, he has a way of dropping back into the amateur class now and then, you understand."

"The only name I can think of that would come near fitting such a star as he is," said the professor, "is Algol."

For astronomy is one of the professor's specialties.

"Paw," asked Tommy, "isn't there no end to eternity?"

"No, my boy," said Mr. Tucker. "After millions and millions of years have passed away there will be just as many more years to come as when you began to count them."

"Then what's the use of my spending so much time over this dog-blamed 'rithmetic? Won't I have plenty of chances to learn it after I die?" C. W. T.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1906: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

POPULAR sentiment in Italy has undergone a notable change with regard to Duchess Helen of Aosta since the recent eruption of Vesuvius. Until that time her attitude of proud reserve and her complete absence of effusiveness, so different from the affability of the other members of the house of Savoy, had contributed to indispose the Italian people towards her, and it is to the unfriendly sentiment of the Italian people towards her that must be ascribed most of the stories which have been circulated from time to time as to her differences with her husband.

During the days of terror caused by the eruption of Vesuvius the duchess, however, behaved with so much courage, abnegation, and boundless charity in relieving the sufferings and in comforting the stricken that the wildest enthusiasm prevails throughout the length and breadth of Italy today concerning her.

Innumerable stories are told of acts of actual heroism which she performed in carrying succor to villages already invaded by the fiery torrent of lava and from which the authorities had considered themselves obliged to retreat. On several occasions her clothes were burnt and her shoes badly scorched by the heat, and when there was nothing more to do in the absolutely abandoned villages and towns on the slope of the volcano, she spent whole days and even nights as well in the hospitals of Naples—all this without pose, fuss, or affectation. It may be safely taken for granted that no word will ever be heard against her any more in Italy.

All the members of the reigning house of Savoy are noted for their devotion to the people in hurrying to the scene of any catastrophe that occurs to bring relief, courage, and comfort. Both the present king and his father, the late Humbert, spent days in the wards of the various hospitals at Naples during its last great visitations of cholera for the purpose of infusing renewed courage and energy to the doctors and nurses and in order to bring sympathy to the sick and bereaved. That Duchess Helen should have rendered herself preëminent in good work of this character speaks more eloquently than anything else for her behavior during the recent calamity that has overtaken Naples.

The duchess is one of the tallest and handsomest princesses of the blood in Europe, is the second daughter of the late count of Paris, who served on the staff of Gen. McClellan during the American civil war, and is generally understood to have been at one time engaged to be married to the late duke of Clarence, eldest son of King Edward, the match being broken off by reason of her inability to resign herself to conversion to Protestantism, which of course was indispensable if she was to become the consort of a future king of England. It is probably owing to the attachment which subsisted between her and the duke of Clarence that she has always remained so particularly dear to his mother, Queen Alexandra, who has never allowed the misbehavior of the duchess' brother, the duke of Orleans, to modify her sentiments towards the beautiful Helen of Aosta.

The duke of Aosta is the best looking member of his house, and only the life of King Victor Emmanuel's little baby boy stands between him and the succession of the throne. It is therefore within the bounds of possibility that the duchess of Aosta, who was brought up almost entirely in England as an English girl, with pronounced tastes for hunting, shooting, and open air sports of every kind, may yet become the queen of Italy.

Incidentally it may be mentioned that there is no truth in the story according to which the kaiser has allowed his alleged irritation against Italy for the attitude of her delegates at the congress of Algeciras to influence his feelings towards the sufferers from the eruption of Vesuvius. An effort has been made to insinuate that the support given by the Italian envoys to the views of France against those of Germany had caused the latter to hold aloof from any manifestations of sympathy in connection with the catastrophe at Naples. This is entirely without foundation. For a committee has been formed in Germany under the presidency of Prince Salm for the raising of a big fund for the benefit of the victims of the fury of Vesuvius, and to this fund the kaiser has subscribed through Prince Salm a sum of $20,000.

King Leopold and England have settled their differences on the subject of the so-called Lado Enclave on the Nile, which brought them to the verge of war and led the British authorities some time ago to virtually blockade that portion of the Congo Free State which runs parallel with the Nile. No supplies or even letters were permitted to reach the Belgian and Congo Free State officials and troops by way of the Nile and via Egypt and the Soudan, and as the alternative route by way of the Congo valley occupied many months, in fact, is so long and costly as to be virtually impracticable, the people of the eastern portion of the Congo Free State were virtually cut off from all access to the outer world.

This situation of course became intolerable to King Leopold and to the Congo Free State, and therefore with a bad grace they have complied with the terms of the English ultimatum and withdrawn their troops from the Lado Enclave on the Nile, which they had occupied in defiance of treaty arrangements. Following the withdrawal the blockade has been raised and communication reëstablished between Belgium and the Free State by way of the Nile.

Lord Abinger, who has recently been suing the American born Lady Helen Abinger, widow of the third lord and mother of the fourth, as one of the trustees of the entailed estates, is a son of the adopted daughter of Sir Percy and Lady Shelley, the son and daughter-in-law of the famous poet Shelley. It is owing to this that he bears the name of Shelley, and that he has inherited not only the place at Bournemouth, where the Shelleys live, but also all the treasured relics of the poet. Lady Shelley, who was a spiritualist, imagined that these relics enabled her to hold direct commune with the spirits of her father-in-law, at whose shrine she may be said to have worshiped.

Lord Abinger is only a distant cousin of his predecessor, the late lord, and was on far from friendly terms with him. He is married to the only child of Sir William White, who died as British ambassador to the sublime porte, and who was the one man of all others who knew how to manage the sultan.

With regard to the widowed Lady Abinger, she was one of the daughters of Commodore Magruder of the United States navy, and is one of the principal leaders of the Christian Science cult in England. Her daughter, formerly known as the Hon. Ella Scarlet, and now as the Hon. Mrs. Synge, achieved distinction by taking Belgian and English degrees of medicine, and then securing the appointment of physician to the princesses of the imperial house of Corea. She did not remain, however, long at Seoul, having discovered that it was customary in the event of one of the imperial patients dying to put all the attending physicians to death so as to furnish an escort into the other world.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH CHICAGO?

Chicago, May 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The bounties of nature have been liberally bestowed upon Chicago.

It is surrounded by agricultural lands which in extent and quality are not excelled anywhere on the globe.

It has a climate capable of producing a people of maximum physical and mental power, and has at hand an unlimited supply of excellent drinking water.

Almost at its doors it has a practically inexhaustible supply of good and cheap fuel. It has by rail and water a transportation system more extensive and more complete than that centering at any other point on this continent. Through that system it has direct and speedy connection with the great producing sections of the country and with all Atlantic and gulf ports through which steamship connection is made with European countries.

This should give it more favorable rates than can be secured at any one of these ports, by reason of the competition which each of them has to meet from all the others.

Chicago can always select its port for foreign shipments anywhere on the coast, from Montreal clear around to New Orleans or Galveston.

It would seem that these natural advantages, combined with its geographical location, should have insured the building at this point of the greatest city on the American continent. In other countries the world over of the great cities few can be found that are salt water ports.

Has Chicago made the most of these wonderful advantages, and if not, why not?

Here may be some of the reasons why she has not:

The present constitution of the state, which went into force about the time of the great fire, contained restrictions that have made it impossible for the city to obtain a revenue at all adequate to its needs.

If every dollar collected from the people had been honestly and wisely expended (which it has not), even then we should have fallen short of the sum that could have been used to advantage by the city. It is expected that some relief from this condition will be obtained through the new charter movement.

It has been a great disadvantage that the public works of a city of 2,000,000 people should have to be built (and rebuilt) by practically one generation of men. Not only the school houses, street pavements, sidewalks, sewerage, and water supply, street grading, public libraries, parks, buildings, bridges, etc., etc., the funds for which are raised by taxation, but at the same time the same generation has through public motives, though not under legal compulsion, built several hundred churches, many hospitals and charitable institutions, art galleries, museums, libraries, etc., etc.

The rapid growth of the city, especially since the fire, has made it difficult to keep up with municipal needs. Much of the public work done has necessarily been of a temporary character. Cheap wooden sidewalks and pavements have until recent years been common even in the central portions of the city.

Water and sewerage systems ample for the time when built have soon become inadequate, and had to be rebuilt and extended. Owing to the continuing municipal poverty it would probably have been impossible for any administration, even the purest, wisest, and best, to have administered the city's affairs to the general satisfaction of the citizens. Unfortunately, the personnel of these administrations has not been at all times either the purest, wisest, or best.

One of the worst effects of this municipal poverty has been not only the temporary character of much of the public work done, but the means that have been (unfortunately) resorted to by the municipality in order to raise revenue sufficient to even do the work that it has done.

Every source of revenue available under the law, or under cover of law, has been exhausted to the limit.

In times past (at least, it has been so charged and believed) wagon loads of disreputables have been arrested and hauled into court more as a means of revenue than as a punishment for evil courses.

Licenses have been issued to improper persons and continued even after they had become a public disgrace for the purpose of the revenue gained therefrom. The city thereby becoming a partner in this illegitimate business.

Public corporations, national, state, or municipal, that had investments here have been exploited to an extent that was not only unfair but unwise as a simple business proposition.

Chicago could not have been built and could not now be maintained on its present scale without the aid of capital from the outside. If the foreign capital now invested in Chicago should be withdrawn the effect would be disastrous. Growth would be paralyzed, real estate values would decline, and the power of the city to raise revenue by taxation would decline to the same extent.

The municipal credit of Chicago used to be hardly second to that of any city in the United States. There is abundant evidence that this is not true today, neither its financial credit nor its good name. It is a well known fact that many, even of our own citizens, some of whom have made their fortunes through their faith and belief in Chicago, are now declining to purchase or to hold local securities that are in any way subject to municipal attack.

Good credit is as valuable an asset for a city as it is for a corporation or an individual. When once impaired it is not easily restored. What Chicago seems most to need is a business administration of its affairs, one in which the needs and good name of the city should be given precedence over political considerations of any sort.

If the convention now at work framing the new charter shall do its work wisely and well, and if the people will do their part as well at the municipal election next spring, then Chicago may hope to retrieve the errors and misfortunes of the past and in time to reap the benefits that its location and surroundings so manifestly entitle it to.

Sacredness of the Mantilla.

[From the Country Gentleman, London.]

Many attempts are being made in London and in Paris to adapt the Spanish mantilla to our use. To the Spanish women the mantilla stands for all that is national and characteristic, and so intimate a part of herself is the mantilla deemed that it is even held sacred by law, and cannot be seized for debt.

Modern Existence.

To dress better, live better, and occupy better houses that are better furnished, forces men to work harder and longer than their predecessors did. The result of this is that the ordinary man is separated from his wife and family almost as much as if he were absent.

A TRIP TO EUROPE IN AN ARM CHAIR

BY CORA ROCHE HOWLAND.

BECAUSE we reached Zurich in good time yesterday afternoon we were able to see all of the town that we wished and to catch the last train for the summit of the neighboring Uetliberg—a journey of half an hour—where we spent the night at the big hotel, which is never crowded so early in the season. This morning we decided to climb to the restaurant above, a matter of three minutes, and to have our coffee at the Uto-Kulm, beneath the big marble obelisk, from which the sculptured face of Jakob Dubs gazes with imperturbable serenity upon the surrounding landscape. I advise you to take chocolate for breakfast instead of coffee, for the latter, made entirely with milk and thickened with cream, is not like the coffee you got in Vienna, which has cultivated your taste above the average of excellence reached upon this mountain peak of Uetliberg.

The view from this height is, however, better than anything we got in Austria or shall get again in Switzerland, even when we approach those lofty pasture lands above the forest belt and beneath the eternal snows which give these mountain ranges of central Europe their designating name of "The Alps." What we lose in grandeur here we make up in beauty. There is a wonderful variety of form and color, especially in the early morning when the air is clear and the mists are rosy tinted. The outlook includes the lake of Zurich, lying just below, and the valley of the Limmat, the river which drains this mountain reservoir. From the east to the southwest, as the eye follows the horizon's zigzag line, from the snow clad Sentis to the distant Jungfrau, conspicuously white in the early morning sun, one peak after another reveals itself in splendor; far on the southwest, beyond the hidden lake of Thun, curves the bell shaped top of Stockhorn, with the long crest of the Rigi in the foreground, and the rugged mass of Pilatus almost isolated from the surrounding heights.

On the west the Jura spreads from the Chasseral on the lake of Bienne to the great spurs near Aarau. The Vosges peaks beyond are cloaked in mist. Looking northward we can locate the Black Forest by the Feldberg and Belchen and a cluster of volcanic peaks. Near by, southwest of us, about nine miles away, the long low outlines of the Abbey of Muri's wide façade are distinct in the morning light, and Baden, on the northwest, shows the tower of its ruined fortress like a signal placed intentionally to catch the eye.

It is a sight to remember always; mountain peaks and mountain hollows, labyrinths of valleys; dazzling whites, soft pinks, and purples, the silvery sheen of snow in masses, and of clouds above that seem to be all filled with shining light. Below the line where whiteness ends are greens—light, dark, gray, yellowish greens—as the mist floating up from the valleys partially hides the hills, or the sun pouring down from above discloses their vesture. If you love color you feel warm all through you, however cold the air is; your pulses quicken, and your breath comes faster. You are inspired with youth, and vigor, and expectation. The Alpine fever has you in its clutches; you want to climb among these mountains, to know them, to subdue them.

This, however, is something that we cannot do; not for us are the hobnailed shoes, the rope, and the ax headed alpenstock. Those are for others more intrepid and less hurried than ourselves. We'll take the first train down this mountain we are on and go by rail, and boat, and rail again, to Rigi's summit, which we see over there on the horizon. It's a short trip and a most attractive one. After leaving the terminus on the Uetliberg our train describes a wide curve on the hill slope to a tiny town called Waldegg, where we enter a strip of woods, to reach upon leaving them an open space where from our seats on the left side of the train we get a final view of Zurich and the valley of the shining Limmat. Our descent ends at Weldikon; we cross the purling Sehl, and in a quarter of an hour are in Zurich, checking our luggage through to Lucerne.

Zug, our first stopping place, is nearly forty-two miles away, and we reach it in an hour and a half. At Altstetten we get a farewell vision of the long Uetliberg, which lies upon our left as the train skirts it in a wide circle. To the right extends the pretty valley of the Limmat, which flows busily on toward Baden. As we continue along the Reppischthal we see on our left, above us, the hotel where we stopped last night; we thread a tunnel and emerge from it to behold the magnificent masses of the Bernese Alps upon our right, inviting us to visit them, and Mount Pilatus on the left. As we turn toward Zug we descry the Engleberg Alps, where are the sheltered health resorts and the handsome Benedictine abbey of the name; the Uri, the Rothstock, and the Titlis all become visible. Just before we reach Zug we cross the foaming Lorze, in whose wild valley as it descends from the Ageri See there are stalactite caverns of surpassing beauty. Finally we are at Zug, the capital of Switzerland's smallest canton.

One important fact we have learned already about the capacity of our own intelligence. Coming from a flat country originally, as we do, we have great difficulty in grasping the arrangement of the land here. The little spin which we have had through mountain valleys and over watersheds has not trained our geographic sense as much as we have been pretending to ourselves. Really to know this ground one would have to tread it. The traveler who whizzes through Switzerland on a railway cannot possibly know Switzerland. He stores his mind with a richness of impressions which elevate his spirit incalculably, but he does not gain as great an acquaintance with the physical aspect of the country as he thinks he does. This knowledge is the peculiar gain won by the effort of pedestrian and mountain climber.

The Lake of Zug is a blue lake; we notice this particularly, for we were beginning to wonder if all the lakes of Switzerland were green. Four times as long as it is wide, it spreads out comfortably, and its azure waters are picturesque against the setting of its wooded banks. Across its wide expanse of sparkling blue the Rigi stands up proudly, a free and royal figure. In the neighborhood of this northern bank, where we are, in the town of Zug, this quaint old medieval place of heavy old buildings, strong walls, and ancient towers, the cave dwellers used to live—those people who used to eat apples long, long ago, before they called them apples.

In token of this fact we hunt for apples in the town during the few minutes at our disposal before the boat starts, and though we fail to find the fruit desired we learn on our quest to what mixed uses old monuments of architecture are put in modern Zug. The old Rathhaus has become a restaurant and a museum combined. The Rosenberg restaurant, we are told, contains the interesting Swiss museum of bee culture. Presently as the steamer moves out from the fine old quais we notice as conspicuous features of the town two handsome schools upon the hillside just above it, and another fine building which turns out to be a nunnery.

The boat has scarcely left the pier when Pilatus looms up on the southwest, with the Bernese Alps, the most romantic and the most graceful of mighty Alpine masses, and the Stranserhorn on the left. Glancing back we discern rising above the plain the slender zinc covered church tower of Cham, the tower where the condensed milk which we shall have in our coffee at luncheon comes from. Ahead of us, on the west bank, as we go southward, the green promontory of Kiemen juts boldly into the lake. We get a clear impression of it as our steamer touches on the east bank before it crosses to the romantic settlement of Immensee which sits down comfortably at the foot of the Rigi. This side of the Rossberg, which we see on our left, with St. Adrian nestling at the foot of it, is green with wood and pasturage. As we draw nearer, approaching Arth, there peeps at us from behind the Rossberg one of the Mythen of Schwyz, that canton whence the country at large acquired its name. The mildness of the climate is evident from the foliage; there are chestnut trees and the slopes are clothed with vines.

Arth is the place where we take the toothwheeled railway up the Rigi. The train is waiting for us at the station—two cars and an engine placed behind them to push them up the slope. The town itself is at the extreme south end of the lake between the Rigi and the Rossberg. Its tiny houses have a helpless air beneath the enormous masses of earth behind them. They are safe, however, for the strata of the dangerous Rossberg lie in another direction.

Goldau, the station on the Gotthard line where the ordinary railway ends and the rack and pinion system begins, is not so fortunately placed; it is, however, a hundred years since anything has happened to it, but traces of the landslip from the Gnippen which devastated it and the surrounding villages at that time can still be seen distinctly upon the Rossberg's side of barren rock. As we proceed upward, climbing the Rigi, we cross a part of the desolated land—a dismal tract, moss grown some times, and holding pools of stagnant water in its broken rocky basins. Not until we nearly reach the Rigi's top does the view impress us; then suddenly it bursts upon us in all its glory, mountains of magnitude, clouds overwhelming, alpine mists of definite outlines and crystal clearness; earth and heaven intermingled in one great harmony of white and gray and vaulted blue.

We are, at this moment, at the station of the Rigi Staffel, looking toward the north and west. The Rigi-Kulm is higher. At its grassy top there is a wooden Belvidere; the hotels are below, placed there to gain a shelter from the westerly and northerly winds. If we had thought to find a solitude we are disappointed. The place is thronged with people; and some of them who have to climb up here are so ridiculous we can hardly keep from laughing. Many have funny old clothes on, though some, of course, are fancifully attired as if they had stepped out of comic opera. This much is apparent at a glance—the energetic women are not lovely; they have surrendered beauty in the quest of it. Some of them wear bloomers, and usually the ones who do are the ones who shouldn't. As for us who came by train, we have ulsters on; and our steamer caps, tied down, give us a tidy air which does ourselves good to contemplate if it doesn't do good to any one else.

The view is disappointing. Only occasionally is there a rift in the mist. We know, however, what we ought to see, and as soon as we have filled our hands with memories we try to imagine how things would look if we saw them. In the far east, in Appenzell, should be the Sentis, which we discerned this morning from the Uetliberg. Nearer us should be the snowy Glärnisch, the Tödi, the Clarendon, the Scheerhorn, and the pyramidal Bristenstock above the St. Gotthard road. And so on down the list, we ought to see the Jungfrau, fair queen of the Bernese Oberland. There should be serrated peaks, and glacier tracts, and perpendicular precipices of dark rock. But these are not. Instead there are dim outlines and mist that constantly grows thicker until before we leave the place in the late afternoon the scenery reminds one of a possible laundry scene on Monday. All you need is a smell of soap suds and a sense of warmth to complete the illusion.

There's a good dinner, anyhow, and that is something. And as we eat it we explain to each other that down here is Lucerne, and down there is Zug, and down there is Lowers. We quote all the poetry we know, which isn't much; and we talk over the people whom we see as if we were chaperons at a college "Prom."

It's time to go now. The train for Vitznau is about to leave. You are sure you have everything—your kodak and your field glass, your guide book, and the edelweiss and carved paper cutter you bought for souvenirs? Don't get left. Who would want to spend a night up here in this chilly, gloomy place for sake of a sunrise that probably'll not come off?

We're on our way to Vitznau, on a railway made just like the one we came up by, although the descent is different, of lesser gradient, and more attractive views as soon as we get down below the mist. Presently we arrive in Vitznau, an interesting village that has a great stalactite grotto above it on the rocks, and beyond which there juts out far into the lake of Lucerne "the noses," as two rocky promontories are jocularly called, one a spur of the Rigi, the other a spur of the Burgenstock.

This lake of the Four Forest Cantons which we are now crossing to Lucerne, the lion city of the Alps, is without question the most grandly beautiful of all the Alpine lakes. Its shape is that of a cross, the bay of Lucerne forming the head, and a bay on each side the two arms. It is marvelously blue—at morning, evening, in sunshine, and in storm, always blue. Its shores are familiar to us through romantic story, for these are the scenes which Schiller describes in his "William Tell." Far back of us, where the mountains close in and the Lucerne narrows down to become the little Lake of Uri, and every gorge you glance into has a romantic peak at the end of it, there stands the Mytenstein, a great pyramid of rock, which bears upon it an enormous gilt inscription to the memory of the distinguished "Bard of Tell." And farther on this side of Flüelen and the Axenstrasse at the base of the Axenberg is a narrow ledge of rock, whereon Tell's chapel stands, built on the spot where the great Swiss liberator sprang out of Gessler's boat.

But all of this is far to the rear of us and out of sight. Looking ahead, we see on the opposite side of the lake from the Rigi, of verdant slopes, where gardens bloom and fruit trees grow, Mount Pilatus, standing, a grim old giant, whose barren peaks frown darkly on the cheerful scene below. There are mountains to the right and left as we advance; the lake of Kussnacht opens on one side and on the other a small bay rounds the contours of the banks. Before us is an island topheavy with poplar foliage and beyond it the pinnacled villa of the Megerhorn. Ahead a city lies in the amphitheater of the lower hills which undulate with pleasing lines; there nine stout watch towers stand in unremitting guard over the houses and the people, over the ancient wooden bridges from whose spandrels quaint old paintings hang, over Thorwaldsen's lion, hewn out of the solid rock, over the grass green Reuss, over the Hofkirche, with its two slender towers—in a word, over the dear old city of Lucerne, resting peacefully at end of day, the evening shadows closing in upon it.

Practical Use for Spirits.

[From Vanity Fair, London.]

After earnest study of the question, I am convinced that the spirit world is peopled by disembodied Oetsmen, inspired with a passion for moving furniture, who should most certainly be encouraged to do so. How useful it would be to have a familiar spirit whom one could rely upon to help whenever one wished to move the piano nearer the window or to drag the chest of drawers out when looking for a lost collar stud.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PUBLICATIONS.

Extracts from the Many Delightful Epistles of Elizabeth Montagu, Who Numbered Statesmen and Poets Among Her Friends.

"ELIZABETH MONTAGU, QUEEN OF THE BLUE STOCKINGS," is the title of a two volumed book of which Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co. are the fortunate publishers. The book is written and edited by the famous blue stocking's great-greatniece, Emily J. Climenson, herself something of a "blue stocking," for she has some half a dozen published volumes to her credit.

Miss Climenson from her early youth desired to know everything that there was to be known in regard to her great-greataunt, and her joy was unbounded when her cousins gave her the whole of Mrs. Montagu's manuscripts, contained in sixty-eight cases, holding from 100 to 150 letters each! How many of the blue stockings of today will leave behind them over 17,000 letters of their own writing and from their friends?

"Adored by men of all opinions," writes our author of Mrs. Montagu, "and liking their society, she was the purest of the pure, as is amply proved by the letters of Lord Lyttleton, Dr. Monsey, and others, but she was no prude with all this. Her worthy husband adored her, and no wife could have been more devoted and obedient than she was."

Mrs. Montagu was a model for all blue stockings to follow, for not only did she find time to write books and letters but she also found time to keep house to perfection, and was adored by her many servants. Besides this she planned feasts and dances for the poor of her parish and founded schools for them. Mrs. Montagu could not have lived a more strenuous life had she lived in the twentieth rather than in the eighteenth century.

In these volumes Miss Climenson has confined herself to the story of Mrs. Montagu's early life, leaving her letters to tell as much of the story as possible. There is enough material unused to fill two more volumes of the size of these, and it is quite possible that Miss Climenson may edit them at some future day. In the meantime we have to thank her for one of the most readable books of the year—one that is not only interesting as the life of a famous woman but as a picture of the times in which she lived. Reproduction of portraits of Mrs. Montagu and her familiars enlivens the text.

The reader must bear in mind that Elizabeth Montagu and Lady Mary Wortley Montagu were not one and the same person. It is curious that two Montagu women should have been blue stockings and that they should have flourished at near the same time. Blue stocking though she was, Mrs. Montagu enjoyed a good time as well as the most frivolous of her set. From Tunbridge Wells she writes "To her Grace, the Junior Duchess of Portland":

You know some of our Grub street wits compared marriage to a country dance, which scheme I extremely approved, but when I read it I thought it could have been set to the tune of "Love forever"; in that way it never did go to that tune, nor ever will. I danced twice a week all the time I was at Tunbridge, and once extraordinary, for Lord Euston came down to see Lord Augustus Fitzroy, and made a ball. Lord Euston danced with the duchess of Norfolk, but her grace went home early, and then Lord Euston danced with Lady Delves. We all left off about 2 o'clock.

The person who was taken most notice of at Tunbridge in particular is a young gentleman your grace may be perhaps acquainted with, I mean Lord Bathurst. He is always making mathematical scratches in his pocketbook, so that one-half the people took him for a conjurer and the other half for a fool.

In another letter she writes that the Canterbury races were to be on July 18, and begs her grace, if she knows any dancing dogs which "lye idle," to bid them trip to Canterbury, as there will be many forsaken damsels:

"Our collection of men is antique; they stand in my list thus: a man of sense, a little way; a beau a good deal the worse for wearing; a coxcomb, extremely shattered; a pretty gentleman, very insipid; a baronet, very solemn; a squire, very fat; a fop, much dusted; a barrister, learned in 'Coke upon Littleton,' but knows nothing of 'long ways to many as will'; an heir apparent, very awkward; which of these will cast a favorable eye upon me I don't know."

It seems that even back in the middle of the eighteenth century duchesses were not particular as to their habits. "What will the world come to now the duchesses drink gin and frequent fairs?" she writes.

In another letter she writes:

I hope while you are at Croydon the good archbishop will animate you to defy that foul fiend, my Lord Bolingbroke; I believe I shall take some of Ward's sneezing powder to clear my head of the impurities and impurities of his book. I am not satisfied with Mr. Warburton's answer; the levity shocks me, the indecency displeases me, the grossierete disgusts me. I love to see the doctrine of Christianity defended by the spirit of Christianity. When absurdity is mixed with impiety it ceases to be a jest. I can laugh at his lordship's cavils at Mr. Locke, his envy to Plato and all the old philosophers, but I could with great seriousness apply to him the words of his friend and poet to the Dunces:

"'Tis yours a Bacon and a Locke to blame,
A Newton's genius or a Milton's flame.
But O! with one, immortal one dispense

I never read such a mass of inconsistencies and contradictions, such a vain ostentation of learning, and if I durst I would say it, all that can show "the trifling head or the corrupted heart." I think I may venture to say trifling, for whatever does not relate to the argument is so, and to raise the gentle reader with all the miserable sophisms that perplexed the world 2,000 years ago is barbarous. I wanted to apply to him the epigram on Hearne, the antiquarian:

"Fye on thee! quoth Time to Thomas Hearne, Whatever I forget, you learn. . . ."

Managers had their troubles in those days as well as today—

"There is a great bustle at Mr. Garrick's playhouse," writes Mrs. Montagu, "about some dancers, though they are chiefly Germans and Swiss, the mob considers them French, and I imagine they will be driven off the stage, tho' the dancers and scenery have cost Mr. Garrick an immense sum; this evening is to decide their fate, and I imagine that at this time there may be a bloody engagement."

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu does not seem to have had the domestic qualities that Mrs. Montagu of this book had, for the latter writes:

"Lady Shadwell saw Lady Mary Wortley at Venice, where she now resides, and asked her what made her leave England; she told them the reason was people were grown so stupid she could not endure their company, all England was infected with dullness; by the bye, what she means by insupportable dullness is her husband, for it seems she never intends to come back while he lives. A husband may be but a dull creature to one of Lady Mary's sprightly genius, but methinks even her vivacity might accommodate itself to living in the kingdom with him; she is a woman of great family merit; she has banished her children, abandoned her husband. I suppose as she cannot reach Constantinople she will limit her ambition to an intrigue with the pope or the doge of Venice."

Richardson had just finished "Sir Charles Grandison," of which Mrs. Montagu writes:

"I want you to read 'Sir Charles Grandison,' it is not formed on your plan of banishing delicacy. I am afraid it carries it too far on t'other side, and is too fine spun, but there are fine things and fine characters in it, and I don't know how it is, but his tediousness gives one an eagerness to go on; there is a love sick madness that I think extremely fine and touching, but if you have not read it I must not forestall. I think I will own to you, the great fault of my friend's writings, there is too much of everything."

It is most interesting to read in a letter dated Nov. 15, 1741, of the first appearance of Peg Woffington in London:

"London is as full now as it used to be in January. Plays are much frequented, both to see Barbarini dance, and a new actress from Ireland, her name is Woffington, . . . she excels in men's parts, and is to act Sir Harry Wildair next Monday, by the king's commands, and all the world goes. We poor Irish run the gantlet about her; we hear in many companies, 'She has a great deal of Irish assurance.' I desired it should be called stage assurance.

"Handel next week has a new opera, which those who have heard the rehearsal say is pretty. Tell Pen the 'Lion Song' is in it."

In another letter, Mrs. Donnellan, to whom the former letter was written, writes that she has seen Mrs. Woffington:

"One of our plays was to see Mrs. Woffington perform the part of Sir Harry Wildair, and indeed I never saw anything done with more life and spirit, but at the same time she looked too young, too handsome, and her voice seemed more proper for opera than the play; so that we see when things are out of nature, though they may have many beauties, in the whole they will not please, and a beard and a deep voice are as proper to make a man agreeable as a soft voice and smooth face to a woman."

TWO BOOKS ON WHITMAN, ONE BY AN ENGLISHMAN, OTHER BY TRAUBEL.

Latter Is a Diary of Daily Visits to the Good Gray Poet for Several Months, a Sort of American Boswell.

THE day has come when that "vast, elemental sympathy" which was Walt Whitman's is appreciated and accepted by men. He, the comrade, no longer is forced to walk alone. He is dead, but he is innumerably companioned. There are thousands now who walk beside him, thinking his thoughts, proud to understand him and be understood by him. As time passes and peculiar temptations come to the America which he celebrated, it becomes a peculiar duty to refresh the spirit at his deep well of patriotism and democracy.

Timely, therefore, were the two books offered simultaneously on the subject of Whitman. One, "LIFE OF WALT WHITMAN," is by an Englishman, Henry Bryan Binns (E. P. Dutton & Co.) The other, "WITH WALT WHITMAN IN CAMDEN," by Horace Traubel, is an intimate—but not too intimate—record of a few months of the good gray poet's life in his cottage home, when days and pence were few and friends were many. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston, publish the latter book.

It is gratifying to the literary patriotism, if such an expression may be used, of any American to note the genuine sympathy which an Englishman so discriminating and fine in his tastes has of our boisterous singer, Whitman. He does not shirk from the consideration of any of the accusations brought against Whitman by the timid in imagination, or those who like delicate privacies of thought. He faces these accusations, and meets them with his own loyal interpretation of Whitman's meaning. It seems fitting—and friendly to Whitman—frankly to meet one of these questions, and to quote from Mr. Binns in regard to it. The matter referred to is the mature attitude of Whitman toward women. The literary attitude of America toward women has been that of the devotional suitor before the maiden. Suppositiously, in the American mind, women are maidens, or wives as tender as maidens. It is a form of adolescent chivalry which the women have come to love, and both men and women were offended by Whitman's outspoken recognition of the part that women played in the struggle of life—in the sin as well as the salvation; in the never satisfied yearning of mankind as well as in the content.

Mr. Binns writes: "Whitman has been roundly abused by Mr. Swinburne and others because, as they say, he lacks the romantic attitude toward woman. Mr. Meredith has shown in his own inimitable way the fiends that mask themselves too often under the romantic mien; and one is not always sure whether Whitman's honesty is not in itself a little distasteful to some of his critics. It is true that he has addressed woman as the mother or the equal mate of man rather than as the maid unwed, as though his thought of sex transcended the limits usually assigned to it. I am persuaded that the explanation of this is to be found in the fact that Whitman's mystic consciousness had broken many of the barriers which have constricted the passion of sex too narrowly during past centuries. He heard all the deeps of life calling to one another, and responding with passionate avowals of life's unity. The soul of the lover—as all the poets have been telling us since Dante's day—discovers its true self in the beloved person; but the soul of Whitman discovered itself, and as passionately, in the beloved world. The expression is so novel that it sounds well nigh absurd to ears that do not hear. But for those who can hear Whitman's voice is surcharged with the lovers' passion; not less intense, but larger in its sanity than the voices of other poets. His love, when he wrote, was that of a man of middle life, in whom the yearning tenderness of fatherhood mingled with the other currents of passion. His vision beheld the Divine Child, without whom life itself is incomplete."

Lovers of Whitman, who have suffered from the shallow abuse heaped upon him by persons of much less perception and religion than the poet himself, will be thankful that so valorous and able a defender as Mr. Binns has constituted himself his biographer.

Horace Traubel's book is an excellent, though an unintentional, supplementary volume, revealing Whitman not merely as poet, and in his relations to the world at large, but as man, in his relations to his friends—friends such as Emerson, Thoreau, Burroughs, Symonds, Rossetti, Gosse, Dowden, Joaquin Miller, Tennyson, Stedman, Lanier, Hay, and Gilder. Between these men and Whitman there was the correspondence that can exist only between the initiate. They invited their souls when they sat in conversation together, or mitigated their separation with their soul-disclosing letters.

In all matters save one they served Whitman well, and that was when their differing artistic point of view caused them to advise the expurgation of Whitman's work. The old seer, who longed for nothing so much as lief to say what was in him to say, and who meant well, both by sinners and good men, fumed at this like a human Vesuvius.

I have heard nothing but expurgate, expurgate, expurgate, from the day I started. Everybody wants to expurgate something—this, that, or the other thing. If I accepted all the suggestions there wouldn't be one leaf of the Leaves left—and if I accepted one, why shouldn't I accept all? Expurgate, expurgate, expurgate! I've heard that till I'm deaf with it. Who didn't say expurgate? Rossetti said expurgate and I yielded. Rossetti was honest. I was honest—we both made a mistake. It is damnable and vulgar—the mere suggestion is an outrage. Expurgation is apology—yes, surrender—yes, an admission that something or other was wrong. Emerson said expurgate—I said no, no. I have lived to regret my Rossetti yes—I have not lived to regret my Emerson no. . . . Did the Rossetti book ever do me any good? I am not sure of it; Rossetti's kindness did me good—but as for the rest, I am doubtful.

There is really no doubt about the matter. It is a certainty that the fact of expurgation had about it a kind of pruriency which no line of Whitman's ever had. If a man means honestly, sees deeply, feels religiously, loves his country, and indeed all men, is compassionate for the sinner, realizes that the world is made up of sinners, and still tries to brother them, he cannot be far wrong.

What has been most offensive in him is his "celebration of himself"—his "romantic individualism," as one critic terms it. He was, indeed, surprised at himself. He loved his fancy and bade it farewell with infinite regret—it had so diverted him! The harmony and marvel of his body amazed him and he could not be thankful enough for it—for having such a mechanism at the disposal of his spirit. Have I said it was offensive? How I could say that? Can such recognition of a marvel and such gratitude for it compare in offensiveness with the impious stupidity of a man who accepts his body with no delight in it, no thankfulness for it, no study of it, and who mentions it only when it falls out of repair owing to his maltreatment of it?

But, after all, why go looking for the faults of Whitman? So many have done that! The chase has been followed too long and the scent is stale. Let all that pass. He was—nay, is—a great American, and his utterances were as the essence of the boldest and most virile of the breed. He is dead, as to the body, and for long he heard death coming, and was divinely inquisitive as to what it might all mean. Here is his death poem—fit to be compared with the greatest written upon that subject, which is, though so dread, yet incontestably dear:

Whispers of heavenly death murmur'd I hear,
Labial gossip of night, sibilant chorals,
Footsteps gently ascending, mystical breezes wafted soft and low,
Ripples of unseen rivers, tides of a current flowing, forever flowing

I see, just see skyward, great cloud masses,
Mournfully, slowly they roll, silently swelling and mixing,
With at times a half dimm'd, sadden'd, far-off star
Appearing and disappearing.

(Some parturition—rather, some solemn, immortal birth;
On the frontiers to eyes impenetrable,
Some soul is passing over.)

Mr. Oppenheim's Novels

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

All the world loves a good mystery story and E. Phillips Oppenheim is, to quote Ainslee's Magazine, "by all odds the most successful among writers of fiction which may be termed mystery stories. His eminence is due to a certain distinction of literary style. His craftsmanship is of the finished sort. In none of his previous books is his skill more apparent than in his latest, A MAKER OF HISTORY."

Life, that critical-humorous New York weekly, says: "E. Phillips Oppenheim during the past four years has developed into the best equipped writer of strenuously exciting novels now before the public. 'A MAKER OF HISTORY' is at once the most daring and the most consistently sustained of his many stories, and is heartily recommended to seekers for exciting reading."

NATIONALS WIN ONESIDED GAME.

BROWN DOES GOOD WORK.

Chicago Twirler Proves a Stumbling Block; Liefield Knocked Out of the Box.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 4.—[Special.]—In a onesided contest the Chicago Nationals defeated Pittsburg today by a score of 7 to 2. The game was even more onesided than the score would indicate, for the Pirates did not have a "look in" until the eighth inning, when a scratch two base hit by Pitcher Karger was missed by Jimmy Sheckard, and a wild pitch and a hit followed, scoring the first run for the locals and saving them a shutout.

Chance's batters drove Pitcher Leifield to the bench after four innings, after seven hits, two of which were good for home runs, were made off him. Karger, another left hander, took his place and managed to make a little better showing than his predecessor.

"Miner" Brown was the stumbling block in the way of the Pirates. He had everything on the calendar in the way of pitching, and for seven innings only three hits were made off him, and only once did a Pittsburg player reach second during that time.

Spuds Play Fast Game.

The Spuds played the game from start to finish and the local fans were forced to laugh at the sorry attempts of their favorites in comparison. Tommy Leach in center field twice misjudged the ball and Kling's home run was due to one of these miscalculations. Schulte got credit for the other home run on a sharp hit ball to left field, which Manager Clarke failed to stop. Clarke fell in his attempt to block the ball and it rolled to the center field bleachers before he could recover it. The day was bright and pleasant, but a strong wind interfered with the high flies.

Manager Clarke sent Leifield to the firing line in the hope that a southpaw could puzzle the left handed batters on the Chicago side. He guessed wrong, however, for the visiting batsmen made him look bad before the first inning was half over. Sheckard was the first man to land a hit, but he wandered too far from his base and was nipped. Schulte then cut loose with a drive to left field that counted for a home run. Chance drove another hit to left, and when Leifield threw wild to first to stop him stealing "Husk" broke for second and kept on to third, but was thrown out by Nealon.

Bombardment Continues.

The bombardment did not stop in the next inning. Steinfeldt and Tinker led off with singles, and Evers sent "Steiny" home with a two bagger, and Tinker crossed the plate on Kling's roller to third.

The third inning was a blank, but in the fourth the Spuds bothered Leifield some more. Steinfeldt drew a base, went to second on Tinker's out, and was out at third on Evers' grounder. Kling fussed around until he was handed a ball to his liking, and he drove it over Leach's head, and pulled up at the plate with Evers ahead of him. Leach had played in too close for Kling in the fourth, but he made the same mistake again in the fifth on Chance's long hit, and was charged with a muff.

Karger took Leifield's place on the slab and Gibson was behind the bat in place of Peitz in the fifth. Slagle and Scheckard were out when Schulte hit safely to left, and Chance drove a swift liner to center. Tommy jumped and got his hands on the ball, but dropped it, and Chance was on second and Schulte home when he recovered. Steinfeldt drove Chance in with a hit past Wagner.

The Pirates were going out in quick succession all this time and the crowd was pulling for a run to save a shutout, and it finally came in the eighth. Score:

Notes of the Nationals' Game.

The Pirates are badly crippled. The loss of Beaumont and Clymer from the outfield is a great handicap.

Ganley caught Sheckard's fly in the ninth inning and shot the ball to first in time to double up Slagle in the final play of Chicago's half.

"Loole" Mann was a spectator at the game, but he did not see the game as the guest of Col. Dreyfuss. The "Hey Barney" case is still fresh in the memory of the Pittsburg magnate.

RAIN BALKS NAPS AND WHITE SOX.

TEAMS WILL PLAY TODAY.

Smith Is Slated to Pitch for Chicago; Home Twirler Not Yet Chosen.

Cleveland, O., May 4.—[Special.]—A thunder storm inundated League park here this afternoon just as the Chicago White Stockings and Cleveland Naps were about to play ball and turned the pasture into a lake, fit only for water polo or golf.

So severe was the cloudburst that the Chicago players had to seek protection in the grandstand, their bus being of no value in that line. After nearly an hour's wait the visiting club was driven back to its hotel. This is the first postponed game for either Cleveland or Chicago, though Lajoie's men have an eight inning tie with Detroit, stopped by rain and early darkness that amounts to the same thing.

Under the new rule in the American league, this postponed game must be played off on the second trip of the Chicago club to this city, if possible. As there is no open date on that trip, June 28, 29, and 30, a double header will be necessary on one of those days. The White Sox play here tomorrow afternoon and then return home, taking the Cleveland club with them for a single game on Sunday, St. Louis following on Monday for a series of three games before Comiskey's men start on their first eastern trip. Smith will pitch tomorrow for Chicago. Lajoie has not settled definitely on his box artist.

GRAPPLE WINNER BY FIVE LENGTHS

John A. Drake's Colt Easily Captures Newton Selling Stakes at Jamaica.

FAVORITE OUT OF MONEY.

New York, May 4.—[Special.]—John A. Drake's speedy Grapple won the Newtown selling stakes for 3 year olds and upward at six furlongs at Jamaica today. Grapple was second choice in the betting. His owner got to the track in an automobile just in time to bet on him.

Diamond was favorite, but he cut up as usual at the post, so it was necessary to give him a running start of several lengths behind the lineup. As a result Diamond rushed pell mell into the bunch at the first furlong pole. Shaw was compelled to take hold of him to escape a nasty fall. It was impossible for Diamond to get anything after that, and he finished well outside the money.

Grapple meanwhile was out in front sailing along with his best speed, little Garner sitting motionless on his back. There was nothing behind him that could make him extend himself. At the wire he was just breezing, with five lengths to spare, in 1:13⅗. Fustian with Miller up had the place at his mercy.

Grenade, favorite in the third event, at a mile and a sixteenth, cut out the pace from the start, but it took a drive from Homer to make him win by a head from the rapidly closing Yorkshire Lad, which got a hustling ride down the stretch from Radtke. Ebony was a poor third. Time, 1:47⅗.

BANNER'S DEFEAT A SURPRISE.

Odds-On Favorite Loses to Beacon Light in Feature Race at Churchill Downs.

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—[Special.]—The defeat of Banner, Tom McDowell's mare, in the fourth race, the feature, was the surprise at Churchill Downs today. The filly defeated a fair field at Lexington last week, breaking a track record, and she was made an odds on favorite today. She led for six furlongs, but Beacon Light ran over her in the stretch.

The filly suffered from fright at the crowd in the paddock before the race, and was in a tremble before going to the post, which may have affected her speed.

Margaret Morris, which beat the barrier and lasted just long enough to win the fifth race, was the only public choice to win, although a plunge on Tarp in the last race just as the horses went to the post made him favorite. Summaries:

BEDWELL GETS A "REST."

OWNER OF LOS ANGELENO IS SUSPENDED BY MEMPHIS JUDGES.

In and Out Running of the Long Distance Horse, Taken in Connection with Betting, Results in Prompt Action by the Officials—L. A. Cella's Filly, Ben Strome, Gives Indication of Class by Victory Over De Oro and Others.

Memphis, Tenn., May 4.—[Special.]—At Montgomery park today the judges informed H. G. Bedwell he could start no more horses here until he had reconciled the running of Los Angeleno in today's race at one mile and one furlong with his last previous effort at this track.

The last time out Los Angeleno opened at 3 to 2, soared to 4 to 1, and ran accordingly. In today's race he was backed down from 5 to 1 to 5 to 2 and won cleverly by a length from Bannock Belle. The judges lost no time informing Bedwell his badges would be no good until the matter was cleared up. The ruling affects not only the owner, but his trainer, H. G. Stevens, and horses.

Just before the race a horseman came out of the paddock and said: "The last time I saw Los Angeleno a man was leading him. Now he is leading the man." This was taken to mean Los Angeleno had been stimulated.

Louis Cella's Ben Strome filly, Miss Strome, showed quality in the 2 year old event. She met a smart lot and won easily by two lengths over the much touted De Oro and the Texas trick, Lady Alicce. Cella is said to have refused $7,500 for Miss Strome.

AROUSED AT SON'S DEATH.

PARENT OF CULVER STUDENT BLAMES MEDICAL SERVICE.

Investigation of Circumstances Surrounding the Fatal Illness of Edward Beery Is Promised by His Father, a Chicago Physician—Suspicion Boy May Have Been Hazed Is Heightened by Recent Wholesale Dismissals from Academy.

Declaring the medical service at Culver Military academy was inferior, Dr. C. C. Beery yesterday prepared to make a full investigation into the cause of the death of his son, Edward, who was a student at that institution. There is a suspicion that the boy may have been hazed. His death on April 25, followed by the dismissal last Friday of fifteen students found guilty of hazing, has greatly exercised the father, who is a physician with offices at 1737 Wabash avenue.

Interest in the affair was revived yesterday by the discovery that the youth had written to a girl friend a few days before his death saying forty students were to have been plunged in Lake Maxinkuckee, near the academy at Culver, Ind., as a hazing ordeal, and he feared he would be one of them.

Father Will Investigate Death.

"I am going to sift the matter to the bottom," said Dr. Beery yesterday. "I do not believe my boy's death was due to hazing, but I am convinced he was neglected or his case did not receive proper attention. The medical service at the institution is rotten, and I blame the authorities for not letting me know at once of the serious character of my son's illness.

"At any rate, I should have been notified at once. Another boy died there not long ago from pneumonia before his parents were notified. There is no excuse for such carelessness and neglect.

"I made careful inquiries of the boy's roommate and others to see if he had been hazed, but could not learn that he had. I know, however, that hazing has been practiced at the institution, although the authorities are opposed to it. I shall expect a full report on the case from the school authorities. Until I have received it I don't know what to think."

Col. Fleet Makes Statement.

Col. Fleet, superintendent of the school, said young Beery died a natural death and everything possible was done for him.

"He caught cold while playing tennis," said the superintendent. "The dismissal of fifteen students for hazing last Friday had nothing to do with Edward Beery's death. The boy never was hazed. The fifteen were dismissed for making eight new students wade in a pond. We will not allow any sort of hazing at the school and any one found guilty will be dismissed immediately. Dr. Beery was called as soon as his son's illness developed to a serious stage. He made a full investigation, as I supposed, and so far as I know was satisfied. We will afford every opportunity for a further investigation if desired."

SHERIFF PEASE DOUBTFUL ABOUT GRAFT IN MILEAGE.

Does Not Believe Money Has Been Held Out Under Predecessors, and Certain It Is Not at Present.

Sheriff James Pease said yesterday that he did not place much credence in the stories of irregularities in prisoners' transportation accounts in the sheriff's office.

A rough estimate put the amount at $1,500 a year for nearly every year since 1872. The theory of the auditors who investigated the accounts was that the state allowed 10 cents a mile for all prisoners and that certain employes of the office did not make a return of the difference between that and the actual outlay.

President Brundage of the county board admitted there had been irregularities. Their extent he said would be made known when the reports are made at the meeting of the county board next Monday.

"It has been found," said President Brundage, "that accounts dealing with the transportation of prisoners to the penitentiary have been incomplete in the sheriff's office in the last few years. Incumbents of the office appear to have thought that any amount that they were able to save from the money provided by the state belonged to them."

"I don't see how such errors could have been made," said Sheriff Pease. "I don't take much stock in the report. When we see the official report we will know more about it. There is no way such errors can occur in the future. As soon as I took the office I insisted on the adoption of a system that will show at a glance every dollar taken in and every dollar paid out."

STOP WORK TO DISCUSS WAGES.

Group of Employes of Water Pipe Extension Department Almost Lose Jobs Because Caught "Loafing."

Because they were discussing the prospects of being paid rather than working to earn their wages, a group of men employed in the water pipe extension division almost lost their places yesterday. City Engineer W. A. Shaw was making a tour of inspection when he noticed the men at Sixty-seventh and State streets discussing conditions. He heard them talk about the delayed pay roll; then he decided that enough time had been wasted and told them that if he finds them "loafing" again he will discharge them.

CONSTABLE AS BUNKO AID

WILLIAM DENNIN ACCUSED OF FLEECING TAILOR OF MONEY.

Complainant Implicates Writ Server of the Court of Justice Kehoe in His Charges, Which Also Are Accusatory of Others—Extortion Is Alleged by Jacob Mellman—Lawyer Gets Aid from the State's Attorney.

Constable William Dennin of Justice Kehoe's court, Madison and Halsted streets, was arrested on two warrants sworn out in Justice Everett's court yesterday charging extortion as a public officer and conspiracy to defraud. The complainant is Jacob Mellman, 201 West Twelfth street. An alleged confederate of Dennin is Harry London, a tailor at Peoria and Madison streets. Mellman came here three weeks ago with $475 to open a tailor shop. He claims Dennin, London, and their "gang" bunkoed him out of all his money. The case was referred to the Associated Jewish Charities in the evening.

The specific charge against Constable Dennin is that he extorted $75 from Mellman after telling him he would get money from Bush. Mellman had advanced $101 to Bush as his business partner.

Mellman's story comprises numerous charges as to how the crowd got his money. He said on the night of April 25, after leaving London's tailor shop in company with London's partner, Jacob Barton, he stopped at an alley at Barton's suggestion, and two men attempted to rob him while Barton escaped.

W. W. Johnson, Mellman's attorney, said: "I have referred this case to the state's attorney, and will be assisted in the prosecution by Assistant State's Attorney Barnett. My only motive is to show up that gang. I have not implicated Justice Kehoe, but he and his clerk will be summoned as witnesses, for I don't believe they acted altogether fairly in the matter."

Food Poison In Your Joints —Makes Them Grit Together and Gives You Rheumatism.

OUCH! that was a bad twinge! My rheumatism is worse today—that bleak East wind cuts through me like a knife.

* * *

That's the wail of Mr. Rheumatic.

Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid which gets into the system through the Food we eat.

Meat, Fish, Fowl, Game and Eggs contain from 6 to 8 Grains of Uric Acid to the pound.

As the Uric Acid keeps collecting in the body, it gradually gets all through the Blood, Kidneys, Liver, Bowels, and finally reaches the joints and muscles.

Now you can't cure Rheumatism by local applications—you might just as well rub your joints with water as with any kind of Oil, Liniment or Embrocation. For you see local applications can't affect the cause of Rheumatism.

Then Londonderry does more than that—The other Elements in Londonderry stimulate the Kidneys and Bowels naturally so that they throw off every particle of this Lithia Uric Acid combination.

The Uric Acid deposits in the joints are dissolved out and the Uric Acid removed from the blood without the least danger to the heart.

And Londonderry is simply delicious to take—clear, sparkling—any time you feel thirsty—there is absolutely none of that disagreeable flattish taste usual with most mineral waters. Write for our valuable book on Uric Acid, the diseases it causes and their cure by Londonderry—we mail it free upon request. Send us a postal today for it, for the edition is limited.

Londonderry Lithia sells as follows: One dozen quarts, $2.25; one dozen pints, $1.50; one dozen splits, $1.25. Half gallons (still) per dozen, $4.75.

If your dealer won't supply you remit to Londonderry Lithia Spring Water Co., Room 416, 167 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. Same address for free book. Tel. Central 6566.

If so, and you will consider a mining proposition, will absolutely prove to you where you can get your money back in 90 days and $25,000 profit before Jan. 1st, 1907. Your conscience must permit you to take easy money. I cannot furnish bank references, but will satisfy you that I am square, and as you handle all the cash, you have no one to trust but yourself. This is absolutely legitimate. Your attorney can pass on that, but I have no time for men afraid of their own shadow or those who cannot think for themselves. Act quick if this appeals to you. STOCKS ON THE UPTURN.

SHARP RECOVERY IN PRICES EVIDENT IN NEW YORK MARKET.

Amalgamated Copper Is Leader in the Advance, Having Withstood a Heavy Attack Near the Opening—Reading Also Is a Prominent Feature in the Day's Trading—President's Message on Standard Oil Is Partly Responsible for the Raise.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Special.]—A sharp recovery in stocks was evident in the market today, the rate of recovery being closely apportioned to that of the previous decline, and a lively demand developed from the uncovered bears to secure stocks.

The upward movement was caused partly by the appearance of the president's special message on the Standard Oil inquiry. Amalgamated Copper was a prominent leader in the recovery, after withstanding an attack of the bears to force a further decline soon after the opening.

Reading was another conspicuous feature in the recovery. No definite news was received from the miners' convention, but the action of Reading was taken to indicate that the prospect of the strike had been overdiscounted in the trading.

The preliminary estimates of the showing by tomorrow's bank statement are unusually involved, but the tone of the call money market was distinctly easier and the impression was strong that the condition of the banks was improved.

The day's net changes in stocks show gains ranging between 2 and 10 points for all the active issues and the closing tone was buoyant, with the bears in full rout and scrambling to cover shorts.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,920,000. United States bonds were all unchanged on call.

Money on call firm, 4@5 per cent; lowest, 4; ruling rate, 4½; closing bid, 4; offered at 5. Time loans firm; sixty days, ninety days, and six months, 6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 5½@6 per cent. Sterling exchange steadier at 483.90@483.95 for demand and at 480.50@480.55 for sixty day bills. Posted rates, 482 and 485. Commercial bills, 480¼. Bar silver, 66¼. Mexican dollars, 50¾. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular.

WHEAT BEARS HUG SHORE.

May Firmer and New Crop Months Easier—Lower Cables and Larger Argentine Exports Factors in the Market—Strong Cash Market in Northwest—Improved Condition in Ohio and Missouri—Corn and Oats Weaker—Provisions Liquidated.

Although favored by much of the news, bears in the wheat market yesterday paddled close to the shore. Prices fluctuated slightly within a range of 1⅛c, those at the finish showing ⅛c higher for May, ⅛@⅜c lower for July, and ½c weaker for September. Stringency in the May, strength in the northwestern cash market, reports of new export business, and accumulating damage reports were among the factors that kept shorts on the uneasy seat. Toward the close some of the more confident bears sold with a freer hand, causing the final easiness in the new crop months and clipping off a good part of the advance in the May. Prices at the close were 79⅞c for May, 78⅜@½c for July, and 77½c for September.

Weakness at Liverpool, larger Argentine shipments, a general map that inspired confidence, a gain of 2 points in the condition of Ohio and Missouri wheat over the April showing, materially larger receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, and a lack of outside business caused a weaker opening. The soft spots, however, found shorts present with enough buying orders to drag the market out of the dumps in a twinkle and lift it to advances of ⅛@⅜c for the new crop months and ⅜c for the May. The upturn was held only a short time, local longs putting out liberally. It was a case of seesaw throughout, advances bringing out the grain and declines witnessing renewed activity of the shorts at covering.

Argentine Shipments Larger.

The Argentine shipments for the week were 3,216,000 bu, 800,000 bu more than those of last week, but about 300,000 bu under those of the corresponding period last year. Indian shipments were unofficially given as 8,000 bu, 1,000,000 bu less than those of a year ago. Primary receipts were 328,000 bu, 191,000 bu more than those of a year ago. Minneapolis reported a decrease of 415,000 bu in stocks for the week, and wired a good demand and better prices for the No. 1 northern at the cash tables. The Modern Miller's statement as to winter wheat conditions was bearish in tone, although it confirmed claims of the loss of a large wheat area in northwestern Kansas, along with losses elsewhere. There were reports of high winds in western Kansas, and some of the advices from parts of Missouri and southern Illinois were bullish. The map showed showery weather in the Red river valley, where not more than 50 per cent of the seeding of spring wheat is reported completed. Duluth and Minneapolis had 219 cars, against only 79 a year ago. Kansas City had bids from the other side of the Atlantic at about the July price for August shipment. Domestic exporters, however, were reported not disposed to take the long time risks before first shipments. Rains and cooler weather were predicted for the west.

Heaviness in Corn.

Except for a time when shorts covered moderately, the corn market displayed heaviness. Trading was comparatively slow and sentiment appeared to be more generally bearish. Final prices showed declines of 1-16c for May and September and ⅛@¼c for July. The weather was of the sort to hasten farm work, although the prediction was for more rain in parts of the belt. The shipping demand was light, there being too marked a difference between all rail and lake and rail rates to allow of business handled all rail and too much uncertainty as to the outcome of the strike on the lakes to warrant engagements. Lower Liverpool prices, fairly heavy receipts here—348 cars, or 15 cars more than the estimate—materially larger Argentine exports—2,803,000 bu, against 1,471,000 bu last week and 1,216,000 bu last year—lighter clearances for the week from America, and an increase of 375,000 bu in primary arrivals over those of a year ago also figured as bearish ammunition.

Oats Dull and Narrow.

The trade in oats was dull, narrow, and devoid of notable feature. The start was lower because of some demoralization in the eastern cash market and because of further selling from the leading long in May. Shorts covered on a moderate scale, lifting prices back to about the previous close. The final prices showed declines of 1-16@¼c. The weather was favorable for the growing crop. The Missouri report estimated the oats area in that state at 16 per cent under that of last year, and fixed the condition at 74. Ohio reported an area of 1,387,000 acres, or 66,700 acres less than that of last year. Local receipts were 202 cars. The cash market was ¼@½c lower, the demand being slow. There were sales, however, of 450,000 bu on the low bids made by the leading long the night before. Seaboard clearances were 47,000 bu.

Break in Provisions.

Provisions suffered another break on liquidating by longs and selling by confident shorts. There was a sharp rally after an early decline, but the higher prices brought out big offerings. At the close pork was 15@22½c lower, lard unchanged to 5c lower, and ribs were unchanged to a nickel off. Hog receipts, 16,000, were about the estimate, and prices at the yards were 5@10c lower. Shipments of meats and lard again were large—[illegible],000 lbs of the former, 569,000 lbs greater than a year ago, and 881,000 lbs of the latter, an increase of 590,000 lbs. The western run of hogs was 53,500, against 47,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago. Liverpool showed further declines for the leading products.

Rye Market Is Steady.

Rye ruled steady, with both demand and offerings light. Two cars were inspected in and three cars estimated for today. No. 2 in store was nominally 58c, choice No. 3 sold 60c f. o. b. May closed 58c bid.

Barley had a firm tone and a fair business was transacted. All the better grades were in good request. A lot of 50,000 bu was reported at the seaboard. Feed was 40@41c; malting, 42@55c; screenings, 30@39½c. Receipts were 13 cars.

Flaxseed prices were ½c easier for cash and May and 1c lower for September. Duluth received 62 cars and Minneapolis 29 cars. No. 1 was quoted $1.07; No. 1 northwestern, $1.18; May, $1.11; September, $1.15.

Timothy seed was strong, about 5c higher. May was $3.30 bid, September sold at $3.55, country lots were $2.00@3.15.

Clover seed was dull and unchanged. May was $11.25, country lots $7.00@9.75.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

There was only a moderate milling demand for sample wheat here and sales were small —22,000 bu, including 5,000 bu No. 2 hard sold at May price f. o. b. No. 1 northern was quoted 2c over May in store; No. 2 red, nominally 8c to 10c over May in store; No. 2 hard, 2c under May. The St. Louis cash wheat market was reported weak, with No. 2 hard 1c lower. Kansas City wired that the sample wheat was unchanged, but dull. No. 1 northern at Minneapolis was steady—2½@3c over May. There was a poor inquiry for Manitoba wheat from abroad, New York wiring that bids were closer on new crop wheat than on the old. Both corn and oats here were easier, with offerings liberal. Receipts of corn continue heavy enough to fill current needs, although country acceptances are practically nothing. Patten was again a heavy seller of oats, and it was claimed in some quarters that the eastern markets were becoming demoralized as a result of his big sales the last three days. He has disposed of approximately 1,000,000 bu in that time. Prices for corn were unchanged to ¼c lower; for oats, ¼@½c lower. Sales were 200,000 bu corn and 450,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales of 24,000 bu wheat, 130,000 bu corn, 150,000 bu oats, and 50,000 bu barley.

The Modern Miller in its weekly crop summary said: "In reply to inquiries whether the condition of winter wheat improved or deteriorated during April, the cause of deterioration and extent of abandoned acreage, the largest number of millers reported improvement and spoke highly of the crop. Most deterioration was reported from Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, and Texas, and little elsewhere. The poorer condition of the crop is attributed to too much moisture in March and too dry in April. A number of millers who reported deterioration also noted beneficial effects of recent rains. Abandoned acreage is reported in Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, and Indiana. Latter in the flooded river bottom lands. Elsewhere the loss of acreage is small. In western Kansas a large acreage was winter killed by dry weather and high winds and the area put into other grains. Otherwise conditions in the state are highly favorable."

The pit crowd sold wheat early on the weakness in the cables. On the resulting decline there was short covering led by Hellman, Lake, and locals. Brosseau, Lindman, and commission houses sold July on the bulge. Friedman sold the September on the advance and Champlin the July. Wrenn, Armour, Sickel-Roberts, and Rankin bought and bid up May wheat. Ware-Leland and the Northern Grain company were late buyers, with selling general by commission houses. Hellman and Rumsey were good buyers of corn, with Bartlett-Frazier-Carrington and Brosseau selling a considerable quantity. Bartlett-Frazier-Carrington were the big sellers of May oats. The Northern Grain company bought July and September and commission houses the July. Tietgens was again about the best seller of provisions, with A. S. White a good buyer of lard; Logan-Bryan, ribs; Cudahy, and English houses both lard and ribs.

Wheat seeding is completed in southern Minnesota and southeastern South Dakota. It is 75 per cent completed in the Jim river valley, S. D., and from 75 to 80 per cent is finished in North Dakota, except in the Red river valley, where but 50 per cent of the wheat ground is seeded, from Wahpeton to Grand Forks, perhaps not more than 20 per cent in the two tiers of townships bordering the river.

The trade had its daily quota of good and bad crop reports to choose from. High winds in western Kansas reported from Kansas City and a message from Oregon saying there had been undoubted damage to the Washington and Oregon wheat crop, helped to cheer the bulls; while the Burlington's first crop report of the season, claiming all crops along its lines were in excellent condition, and reports of improvement in the damaged area in western Kansas gave courage to the bears. Wrenn & Co. had a message from Newton, Kas., saying: "Farmers agree that acreage in this section is larger and wheat better than a year ago this time. Stand is heavy, ten inches high." Coffeyville, Kas., wired Lindman: "Wheat prospects much improved since the rain."

The Missouri May report as wired to King of Toledo makes wheat condition 87, against 85 a month ago, 91 a year ago, and 81 in June last year, when the crop harvested was 30,000,000 bu, state figures. Only 27 per cent of corn area planted, against 52 per cent a year ago, but plenty of time yet. Total acreage estimated at 6,700,000 acres. Oats area 16 per cent less than last year. Condition, 74. Ohio May wheat condition compared with an average crop 103, last month 101, a year ago 90, last July 91, and the crop turned out 32,000,000 bu. Every county showed an improvement. Damage by Hessian fly light. Wet weather reduced oats acreage to 1,387,000, or 66,700 less than last year. Clover seed acreage 91 per cent of average. Rye condition 96.

"Exporters generally confirm the situation abroad weakening for all cereals," said a message from Munn, New York, to Love & Co. "Foreigners do not send bids except for new crop wheat and those bids are well out of line today, as freights advanced over night for fall loading and f. o. b. sellers of wheat have advanced the premium relative to the futures. The continent is again reselling corn, replacing with the purchase of Argentine at a good premium over American, as Argentine corn condition is guaranteed on arrival."

Per cent of spring plowing and of spring planting completed by May 1.

Broomhall's weekly Argentine cable said: "Wheat market is firm, with quiet demand. Arrivals from interior larger and quality satisfactory. Weather is settled and favorable for plowing and seeding. Corn market is weak on large offerings. There is a fair demand."

A Buenos Ayres cable to Kneeland-Clement-Curtis said: "Weather is showery. Holders refuse to sell to any extent at present low prices. There will be more doing a little later on, during next week or two."

IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD.

SENTIMENT OF CHICAGO COMMISSION HOUSES BEARISH.

Volume of Buying Credited to Covering by Shorts—Increase in Investment Yield of Stocks Caused by Decline of Over 20 Points—Reported That Next Semi-Annual Dividend on the Soo Railway Common Will Be 4 Per Cent.

Sentiment of Chicago commission houses is on the whole, bearish. More advise selling on bulges than buying on breaks. It is recognized that the liquidation of the current week has been heavy and will likely result in an improvement in the money market. But easy money is not of a great deal of use without collateral on which to borrow.

One of the largest New York houses wired yesterday that it was buying a few of the better issues. The volume of trading, however, was credited to covering by shorts. Until sentiment radically changes the market will be in the possession of traders.

Money Movements.

Known movements of money for the week indicate that the New York banks have gained $5,449,900 in cash.

There is an additional $5,500,000 imports of gold which will not figure in today's statement. Further engagements yesterday amounted to $2,500,000.

Announcement was made that arrangements had been completed for the retransfer of $500,000 from San Francisco to New York.

Price Changes and Yields.

Active stocks show a decline of more than 20 points compared with the high prices in January. This has led to a considerable increase in the investment yield of dividend paying issues. This yield is not yet large in the case of the assured earners. But, as setting forth the changes in price and yield May 3, 1906, as compared with prices and yield in January, the following, issued by Solomon Sturges, may be presented:

General Financial News.

The Consolidated Rubber Tire company for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1905, shows an increase in gross sales of $223,830, being approximately 57 per cent. Net earnings were $57,010.

The Gorham Manufacturing company interests propose to control the property of the Silversmiths company, preparatory to a merger of the Durgin and Whiting companies. The capital of the Silversmith company is to be increased to $7,000,000. It will be the holding concern.

It is reported in New York that the next dividend on Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Sault Ste. Marie common will be 4 per cent for the half year, placing the stock on an 8 per cent basis. The road is understood to be earning at the rate of 10 per cent.

Oil Stock Advances.

Standard Oil stock developed decided strength on the New York curb yesterday. The shares early showed an advance of 12 points over the previous day.

Illinois Central.

In order to regain some of the business the Illinois Central lost at the Forty-third and Forty-seventh suburban stations the company is making improvements, and the Forty-third street station has been renovated.

However, in the meantime the company pays a train dispatcher and train crews salaries to run trains out of these stations ahead of time and leave north bound passengers behind to lose twenty minutes, after 9 o'clock, or to patronize the improved service of the City Railway company, the latter being the usual result.

Chicago Stocks.

The local stock market was in better tone yesterday. Subway shares recovered their losses and closed at 51½. There were some transactions in Union Traction, the preferred selling at 17 and the common at 6.

Biscuit common showed some improvement, advancing ⅛.

The elevated bond issues have shown a lower tendency, this being true especially of South Side elevated and Northwestern. It is probably the result of the fact that both companies are puting out bonds.

LIVE CHICKENS ARE LOWER.

Liberal supplies of live chickens, with a slower demand, caused ½c decline in prices. Receipts have been heavy this week, and although shipments east have been large, the offerings were more than sufficient. Green stuff was on the market in abundance, and an easier tone prevailed. Strawberries were generally of poor quality, and shippers had difficulty in finding stock good enough to send out. A few crates of extra fine berries sold easily at good prices, but the bulk of receipts were slow sale. Veal was again dull and ½c lower.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Early hopes on the part of sellers for good trading yesterday in the hog market at the stockyards were inspired by buying by scalpers, but the market soon slumped and the bulk of stuff sold at an average decline of 5c from values of the previous day.

No change was reported in the cattle market. The demand for live mutton was good.

Hogs.

The hopes of the sellers were doomed when the regulars, aside from the single instance of a shipper who paid as high as $6.55 for choice butcher weight stuff, refused to follow the lead of the scalpers and even declined to consider offers that were not made at a discount. Receipts were 16,000 head.

Quotations follow:

Good to prime butcher	$6.40@6.47½
Good to choice shipping	6.40@6.50
Good to choice heavy mixed	6.37½@6.45
Heavy packing	6.25@6.37½
Light mixed	6.35@6.45
Good to prime heavy	6.40@6.55
Good to choice pigs	5.35@6.25

Cattle.

While the demand for cattle was not characterized by any marked activity, the market was fully steady, and if there had been any choice stuff ordered it undoubtedly would have sold in a hurry, in spite of the fact that Friday is no day for starting anything in the cattle business. Few steers were good enough to bring $5.00 or better, and the run was only 2,000. The butcher cattle market was fairly steady and a good clearance was effected.

Good to fancy steers	$5.65@6.25
Common to good steers	4.00@5.65
Inferior to common steers	3.60@4.60
Good to fancy cows and heifers	3.50@5.25
Yearlings, good to choice	4.50@5.35
Fair to choice feeders	3.40@4.75
Fair to choice stockers	2.25@4.25
Good cutting to fair beef cows	2.00@3.25
Common to good canning cows	1.50@2.40
Bulls, common to choice	2.35@4.25
Calves, common to good	3.50@5.00

Sheep.

The demand shown for clipped lambs was the best of the year, and prices took another upward shoot, scoring levels 5c to 10c higher than the sales of the previous day. There was less activity to the sheep trading, and the market for wool lambs was inclined to be a trifle easier. Receipts were only 5,000 head.

Fair to choice shorn wethers	$5.00@5.80
Fair to choice shorn ewes	4.75@5.50
Yearlings, shorn, good to choice	5.25@5.90
Ewes, culls, fair to good	3.50@4.25
Bucks and stags	3.50@4.25
Shearing lambs	6.75@7.00
Native lambs, fleeced	6.50@7.50
Western fed lambs, fleeced	6.50@7.50
Fair to good shorn lambs	5.50@6.00
Good to choice shorn lambs	6.00@6.40

Mrs. R. B. Ennis Volunteers to Serve on the Juvenile Court Staff.

Evanston is to have its first woman juvenile officer in the near future if Judge Mack approves the appointment of Mrs. R. B. Ennis, who has been named by Chief of Police Frost for that place. Mrs. Ennis volunteered her services without pay. She is a New York woman, now living in Evanston at 1827 Orrington avenue. The only juvenile court officer in Evanston has been a policeman, Thomas Dickinson, whose time was occupied fully in his regular duties.

San Francisco Fire and Earthquake Ruins

The high standard established by us for

The Peck Clothing
Made in Syracuse.

FOR MEN AND YOUNG MEN

rigidly excludes the sacrifice of fabric-quality or tailoring—both must be good—and you can be absolutely sure that "The Peck Clothing" is good.
